Russia Seeks Peace Role In Cyprus

Times News Services

The Soviet Union moved today to play a role in settling the Cyprus crisis, complicating an explosive situation threatened by faltering peace talks and warnings of new violence.

The Russians called the third United Nations Security Council meeting in as many days today to push demands for unilateral UN action to enforce the ceasefire on Cyprus and restore the government of Archbishop Makarios.

Other UN delegates showed little enthusiasm for a new set of Soviet proposals, including sending a mission to Cyprus for on-the-spot supervision of the situation.

The other 14 members of the Security Council had only grudgingly complied with Soviet envoy Vasily S. Safronchuk's request for a council meeting Sunday night. The council took no action after two hours of debate but scheduled a new meeting for today to consider the Soviet proposals.

On Cyprus, Greek and Turkish Cypriots traded charges of atrocities and massacres. "We are checking them all, but we have no evidence to substantiate any so far," a UN truce official said.

A UN official on the island reported the week-old ceasefire holding, but a high Turkish official warned of possible military action to protect minority enclaves in Greek areas.

In Geneva the foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey and Britain agreed early today on a "provisional solution" to end the military confrontation on Cyprus. But the Turkish government balked, apparently at provisions concerning the Turkish invasion force on the Mediterranean island.

The Turkish cabinet met at dawn and discussed the proposal telephoned from Geneva for nearly three hours. Premier Bulent Ecevit said the Geneva negotiations "are in the final stage" and "if there is going to be an agreement, we will know today."

But he said his cabinet decided it will not even discuss the presence of Turkish armed forces on Cyprus and

More Canadians For UN Force

EDMONTON (CP) — Planeloads of commando troops that will raise to battalion strength Canada's peacekeeping contingent on Cyprus begin leaving today for the troubled Mediterranean island.

Military spokesmen at the Canadian Forces base near this western provincial capital said Sunday that a total of 450 troops, mainly from the Canadian Airborne Regiment stationed here, will be airlifted to Cyprus during the next eight days.

They will bring to 936 the number of Canadians in the United Nations force that is charged with the chore of keeping at arms length Greek and Turkish antagonists.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp admitted Sunday Canada's armed forces are "stretched" to meet the peacekeeping roles this country has undertaken.

However he said he had not heard any suggestion in cabinet that this country consider expanding the present forces.

The minister stirred up a strong reaction at the United Nations last week when he suggested more nations should be called on to share the burden of peace-keeping on Cyprus.

Several diplomats in New York interpreted the Canadian minister's remarks as support for Warsaw Pact countries including the Soviet Union to move into Cyprus as part of the UN force.

Truant Taku Sighted Near City

Taku, the truant killer whale that gave federal fisheries researchers the slip almost a year ago, was sighted Saturday alive and well off Trial Island.

The bull whale was released at Pedder Bay last October but evaded his trackers when bleeps from a telemetric device fitted on his dorsal fin were blocked out by rock formations.

Named for the windy conditions that prevailed when he was released, Taku had taken off on a fling for freedom and led researchers on a merry chase until they ran out of bleeps.

Dr. Michael Biggs of the department's biological station at Nanaimo said today the department had received no information about the bull whale until Saturday when he was sighted among a pod of 30 to 40 whales off the Island.

"We're one hundred per cent certain the bull sighted near Trial is Taku," he said, explaining positive identification had been made by nicks on Taku's dorsal fin and other markings.

Biggs said pictures taken of the whale Saturday showed no sign of the transmitter, designed to record movement of the whale for one month when it was supposed to drop off.

"We had hoped to be able to pick up the animal's whereabouts during that month, but lost him after only a half-day of tracking and we were curious to know what had happened."

Biggs described the experiment as a success. "We are happy the transmitter did come off and there were no negative effects to the animal, which was playing with a female and calf and otherwise behaving normally.

"It also means the animal has stayed in the area."

Fisheries researchers "will be keeping an eye out" for the evasive Taku, Biggs said, although there are no plans to capture him for a transmitter re-test.

REACTION TO CLACK

In discussing the Rod Clack report on the future of Victoria's Inner Harbor, Victoria's two aldermen primarily concerned with planning today expressed both criticism of the report and some qualified approval.

Ald. Mike Young said Clack, the Ottawa planner, has some suggestions on malls that could lead city council to reconsider its Government Street mall project. And Ald. Sam Bawlf said the report although "old hat" is also an "excellent summary" of city-endorsed principles on waterfront planning (see story Page 17.)

Land Sales Law Alters

All purchasers of land in B.C. will have to register their nationality with the land registry office, beginning Thursday when amendments to the land registry act come into effect.

The amendments will give the government an opportunity to find out how extensive is foreign ownership of B.C. land.

10% BONUS FOR ICBC

An interim 10 per cent cost-of-living bonus for the 1,500 government insurance corporation employees was on pay cheques for the first time last week.

The move, granted Insurance Corp. of B.C. staff retroactive to June 1 by the Labor Relations Board, quelled unrest stemming from the fact that some employees had been with ICBC more than a year without a raise while living costs jumped by about 16 per cent.

Employees were reported to have been ready to strike in support of a wage hike, but the move would have been illegal.

Insurance corporation employees have no union representation or contract with the government, although the LRB has ruled in favor of the corporation's position that a single union should represent all employees.

LRB Registrar R. F. Bone said in Vancouver today a second board decision forthcoming within a matter of days would determine which of two vying union organizations will be granted certification of ICBC staff.

They are the Office and Technical Employees Union and a joint group of B.C. Government Employees' Union and Canadian Union of Public Employees, which presented a bid under the name of the Association of ICBC Employees.

Connally Indicted

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Former United States treasury secretary John Connally was indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of bribery, perjury and obstructing justice.

He was charged with accepting $10,000 in bribes to influence the setting of support prices paid by the government to dairy products.

A Watergate grand jury also indicted Jake Jacobsen, a long-time Texas colleague of Connally's, on one count of making an illegal payment to a public official.

Connally thus became the fourth former member of President Nixon's cabinet to be indicted in connection with Watergate scandals and related investigations.

Connally has repeatedly denied as "rumors and lies" reports that he took money for his role in helping milk producers to change the administration's mind on supports. The industry pledged to raise $2 million for President Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972.

'Only Miracle' To Save Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill says "only a miracle" can prevent the full House of Representatives from voting to impeach President Nixon. Senate Republican whip Robert Byrd, however predicts Nixon would be acquitted if a Senate trial were held now.

The House is ready to impeach by a margin of about 70 votes, O'Neill said.

"I'd have to say that around 50 Republicans will vote to impeach him and I would say there will be 40 members of the Democratic Party who will not vote to impeach him. The difference would be somewhere around, I believe now, about 70 votes."

Only a majority vote of the 435 House members, is necessary to impeach and send articles to the full Senate for trial.

A two-thirds vote in the Senate is required to convict and remove Nixon from office.

Nixon, however, his chief aide says, remains determined not to resign.

White House Chief-of-Staff Alexander Haig, asked Sunday if Nixon would step down rather than face a Senate trial, said: "No. At this juncture I just don't foresee it."

The president does not feel quitting would be in the best interests of the American people, Haig said.

Haig admitted: "We have suffered some losses this week and some very severe losses, quite obviously."

He cited what he termed "a triple whammy" that involved a "rehash of evidence" by the House Judiciary Committee, an adverse Supreme Court ruling in the Watergate tapes and documents case and the shift of some judiciary committee Republicans to pro-impeachment positions.

If a vote were to be held now on the House floor on whether to impeach Nixon and place him on trial before the Senate, "it would be very close," Haig said.

As the committee resumed debate today, it appeared certain that the panel would approve a second article recommending Nixon be removed from office for abusing his presidential powers.

The margin could be as great or greater than the 27 to 11 vote by which the committee urged Nixon be impeached, tried and removed from the presidency for obstruction of justice.

Rep. Robert McClory (Rep. Ill.), second-ranking Republican on the committee, said he would switch his vote and urge Nixon be impeached for abuse of office.

Meanwhile, many southern Democrats in the House of Representatives, a group crucial to President Nixon's hopes of avoiding impeachment, appear prepared to follow their three judiciary committee colleagues into the pro-impeachment camp.

Interviews with a dozen southern Democrats, representing a cross-section of the 74 from 11 states, and estimates of experienced House head-counters indicate Nixon may hold barely half of them.

With most of the 174 northern and western Democrats expected to vote for impeachment, that means the president would have to hold almost all of the 187 House Republicans, a difficult task after six of 17 Republicans on the judiciary committee voted for impeachment.

Some Nixon aides now claim the White House has failed to develop a coherent strategy to prevent Nixon's impeachment and removal from office.

Members of the White House staff, now often openly acknowledging despair, say that there is little or no guidance from the president or senior advisers in the efforts to save the presidency.

On Capitol Hill, according to sources there, some key

Arab Surge Seen

WASHINGTON — The Arab oil-producing bloc could have more than $1 trillion to invest in the U.S. and other countries by 1985, according to a confidential study by the World Bank.

That is 10 times the total $100 billion book value of current U.S. investments overseas and 100 times the value of all the gold now held by the U.S. government.

In short, the staggering amount of money building up in the treasuries of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) from selling oil promises to revolutionize economic and power relationships in the world within 10 years.

The World Bank report, which has a "not for public use" admonition on its cover, states the OPEC countries will be so rich that they will find "massive" overseas investments "unavoidable."

At the Treasury Department, officials expressed astonishment at the size of OPEC money reserves projected by the World Bank in its "Background Paper III" entitled "Prospects for the Developing Countries," Report No. 477.

Specifically, that report states: "The accumulated reserves of all OPEC countries could rise to $650 billion in 1980 and about $1,200 billion ($1,2 trillion) by 1985. Massive outflows in some form will therefore be unavoidable."

The reason outside investment will be "unavoidable," the report states, is that OPEC countries will have more money "than could be effectively absorbed by their domestic economies in the short term."

Iran, in announcing last week its purchase of a one-fourth interest in Germany's giant Krupp steel manufacturing interests, was showing the world the thin edge of this new wedge OPEC nations are driving into the world's economy.

COOLING OFF Tokyo style brought an estimated 10,000 people together in giant swimming pool on Sunday, the first weekend after the long rainy season. Temperatures were in the low nineties.

SUN, ROCK DRAW 5,000

An audience described by organizers as a "clean-cut crowd of 5,000" descended on Mount Douglas Park for a blast of hard-beat rock in sweltering sunshine Sunday.

Sugarcane, Holy Smoke, Earthbound, Night Hawk and special guest violinist David LaFlame of San Francisco provided the entertainment as a mass of bodies including dogs, cats and kids, conglomerated for their seat on the grass.

Dave Ringland, a festival organizer, said the park filled up in the early afternoon as 5,000 stopped for the music and about "10,000 drove by, because the parking facilities couldn't handle any more."

He said there was no rowdiness.

"It was just a fun day in the sun for the clean-cut crowd", and Saanich police spokesmen who attended to direct a mass of traffic concurred.

their right to reinforcement and supply.

He said certain other problems which have arisen during the Geneva talks can be taken up at a later date.

Turks Confident Of Talks Outcome

ANKARA (WP) — With their troops posing for victory snapshots on Cyprus soil, Turks are waiting the outcome of the Geneva peace talks with an almost arrogant confidence. "The Greeks are broken and ashamed," said a senior Turkish official. "They can make some crazy move, but we stay calm."

Sources here made it plain the Turkish government sees itself parlaying military gains in the Kyrenia-Nicosia salient into a diplomatic ascendancy at Geneva.

A high official in the Ecevit administration said that "a small unofficial partition of Cyprus has begun." Fearful Greeks were leaving the area controlled by the Turkish army, he said, and Turkish-Cypriots also fearful for their lives were flooding in.

The Turkish advances in the Kyrenia area were a deliberate tactic, the source said, to force the Greek government into urgent and serious negotiation of a ceasefire.

The Turks believe that both the Greeks and the Greek-Cypriots come to the conference table crippled by divisions at home. They dismiss threats by the Greek delegation to leave the talks and dire warning from the Greek-Cypriot president of Cyprus, Gl. Afkos Clerides, as overblown rhetoric born of a desperation to build some domestic unity in their respective counties.

Complaining that Turkish forces have almost doubled their territorial gains in Cyprus since the July 22 ceasefire, Clerides told newsmen in Cyprus Friday, "time is running out. It will be with the greatest reluctance that I will appear before the Greek people of Cyprus to invite them to fight to the last man and to the end."

"It is tense in the island," the Turkish government official agreed, "but there is nothing that forces Mr. Clerides to say he must make ready his forces . . . " "Whatever is said in Cyprus," he added casually, "I don't take it too much seriously."

Gunes immediately went into session with Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros.

The Soviet Union launched its Cyprus diplomatic offensive Sunday after accusing the North Atlantic Treaty Organization of plotting to use the crisis to increase Western military strength in the Eastern Mediterranean.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said "certain circles of NATO" have encouraged "cynical haggling" at the peace talks "for the sake of consolidating their military and strategic positions" in the region.

The Soviet government announced plans to send Victor Minin, the Kremlin's Middle East specialist, to Geneva to observe the tripartite peace talks. U.S. assistant secretary of state William Buffam has been observing the talks.

Meanwhile, Turkish troops pushed east today along the coastal road from Kyrenia in Cyprus after shelling a Greek-Cypriot village Sunday night, informed sources said.

The sources said Greek-Cypriots withdrew from the village about four miles east of Kyrenia, and the Turks then moved up after shelling the village last night.

The fighting in this area was believed to have stopped. The Turks may merely have wanted to improve their positions on the Coastal road east of their bridge-head at Kyrenia, sources said.

Otherwise they were reported sitting tight on the wedge of territory they have captured between Kyrenia and Nicosia.

Another breach of the week-old ceasefire occurred in Nicosia itself, where Turkish- and Greek-Cypriots exchanged sporadic fire across the "Green Line" boundary near the embassy area of the capital.

'Only a Miracle' Can Save Nixon

Republicans in both House and Senate have been involved in tentative discussion about obtaining the president's resignation before an impeachment vote in the House.

Although they discussed this more than a month ago, these leaders, who include Sen. Barry Goldwater (Rep.—Ariz.) and House Republican leader John Rhodes (Rep.—Ariz.), have dropped the subject for the time being — in part to avoid a party bloodletting that would probably result from such a public suggestion or demand, according to several sources.

One key Republican senator said the White House impeachment strategy "changes every 10 minutes, but it adds up to nothing."

For his part, the president was becoming increasingly isolated and appears to be putting off key impeachment policy decisions, according to White House insiders.

Almost Non-Person On His Home Turf

By LOU CANNON
Washington Post

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — The cold reality of impeachment has finally broken through here.

Chief of Staff Alexander Haig and press secretary Ronald Ziegler, the two men who spend the most time with the President, maintain steadfastly that the full House will reject impeachment. White House strategy to prevent Nixon's removal by the Senate is not even under discussion, they say.

Unofficially, however, the signs are everywhere that Nixon is all but considered a non-person in his once-supportive Southern California homeland.

At the San Clemente Inn, for instance, White House staff aides and Secret Service men were summarily evicted 10 days ago by Paul Presley, the owner and long-time friend of Nixon.

"To the San Clemente Inn, there is no more White House and to the White House, there is no more San Clemente Inn," said Presley, who complained that various concessions to White House needs had cost him $100,000 so far during the Nixon presidency.

"We treated them like Jesus Christ just because they were the White House," Presley said.

It is a recognition that is reflected in a more general way by a Southern California banker, also an old Nixon friend, who listened and applauded Thursday when the President gave a speech in Los Angeles calling upon Americans to join an "anti-inflation lobby" that would demand balanced budgets.

The banker said he liked the speech because of Nixon's renewed opposition to wage-price controls. But when he was asked about impeachment, he responded: "I expect that he'll be impeached and removed from office, but I'm not too worried about it. Ford strikes me as very sound."

Canoe-In Backs Anti-Dam Force

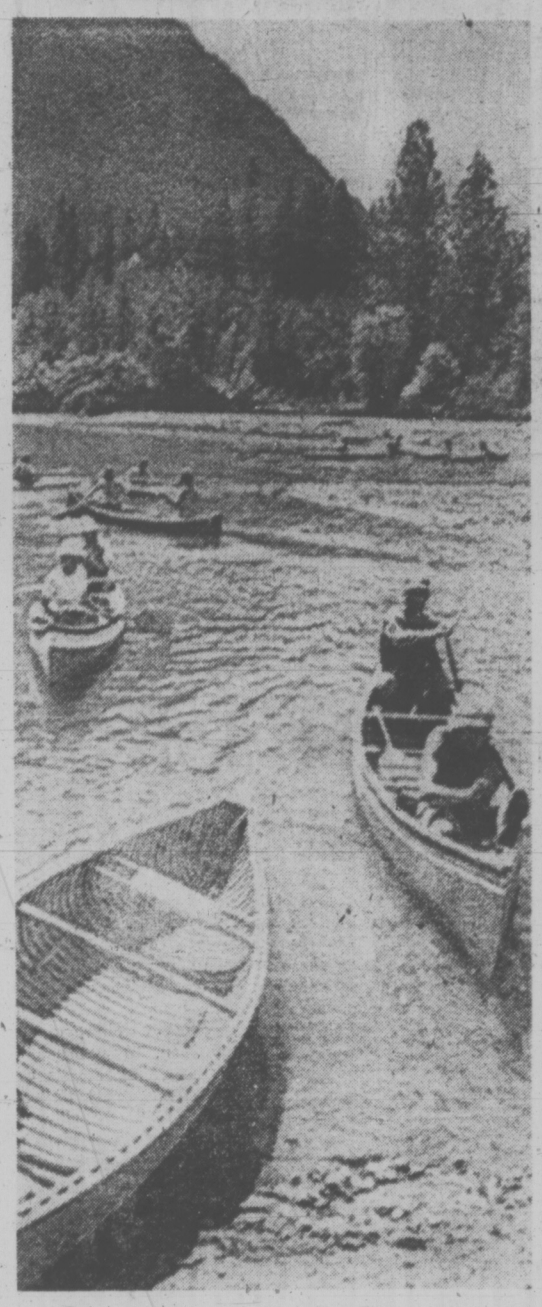
VANCOUVER (CP) — Three British Columbia cabinet ministers and members of a number of environmental groups canoed down the Skagit River Sunday to protest a U.S. proposal to flood the river's valley.

Recreation minister Jack Radford, Resources Minister Bob Williams and Public Works Minister Bill Hartley joined what was called the First Annual International Skagit River Canoe-In and Picnic, sponsored by Canoe Sports B.C. and other environmental groups.



Canoe-In glides to finish

Forty-three canoes traversed six miles of the fast-flowing river which, along with 5,300 acres of surrounding wilderness, would be flooded if Seattle city light was permitted to raise the high Ross Dam.

At the beginning of the day's events, Radford dedicated 92,000 acres of land as recreational area and announced the start of construction on a 44-space campsite.

The valley is located about 100 miles east of here along the Canada-United States border.

After his trip, Radford said he hopes to see the Skagit area dedicated as a provincial park in the future.

Campsite construction would be in small units to avoid disturbing the wilderness atmosphere, he said, adding some sites would be walk-in ones.

Although U.S. politicians were invited, none attended. But Lowell White, supervisor of the U.S. North Cascades National Park service branch, said the U.S. Interior Department was on record as opposing the proposed dam, which would also flood neighboring parts of the U.S.

Dr. Patrick Goldsworthy, president of the North Cascades Conservation Council, attended and said both the B.C. government and Seattle City Light are guilty of unnecessary delay in reaching an agreement to cancel a previous international agreement to flood the Skagit.

Officials at the protest said Sunday they believe the dam will never be raised, but negotiations now are being conducted under the International Joint Commission.

$60 Hike For Crews On Tugs

Towboat crews in British Columbia will be given a mid-contract anti-inflation raise of six per cent with a $60 a month minimum, Towboat Industrial Relations Association announced today.

TIRA, the bargaining agency for tug companies, said the raise will go to 1,500 licensed and unlicensed crew members "to help overcome the effects of inflation."

Current contracts with three unions run until Sept. 30, 1975. The unions had sought pay raises to compensate for inflation since the contracts were signed in early 1973.

The special increase is effective Aug. 1 and will not affect negotiated increments for members of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers and Seafarers International Union.

No Rush Says Curtis

Saanich and The Islands Conservative MLA Hugh Curtis said today he refuses to be rushed into deciding whether to abandon his party in the wake of a weekend decision by Tory leader Scott Wallace to drop Unity plans.

"Nothing has changed in the last two weeks," said Curtis, who said earlier he would decide at the end of the summer whether to join the Unity movement with Socred and Liberal members, or perhaps join one of the other opposition parties.

"I am not going to be rushed into any decision by any group or the media," Curtis said.

He said he and his constituency association executive keep each other fully informed and each knows where the other stands.

Meanwhile, Wallace said just because the Unity concept had not worked out to his or provincial Tory directors' satisfaction was "no reason to throw in the sponge," as Tory leader.

He admitted it would be difficult to lead a party with only one seat in the legislature if Curtis decides to leave. But he was going to discuss with Curtis the chances of his remaining in the Conservative fold.

Curtis said that prospect was remote, but not to be completely ruled out.

The Unity concept was supposed to have formed the vehicle to defeat the NDP government in the next provincial election.

Wallace said some directors of the Conservative party expressed much concern about his efforts, and he then offered to resign as Tory leader.

There was no formal vote of confidence in his leadership, Wallace said, but the directors were unanimous that he withdraw his offer of resignation.

Wallace said it was too early to say how many candidates the Conservatives would field in the next election, but the party was working with its federal wing to build up a "responsible party attractive to non-socialist voters in the province."

He said a main obstacle to forming a Unity party was Social Credit leader Bill Bennett, who's "definition of unity is that everybody join the Social Credit Party."

Liberal MLAs Alan Williams (W. Van-Howe Sound) and Pat McGeer (Vancouver-Pt. Grey) said they still favor a common opposition to the NDP.

Williams said he agrees with Wallace that unity among the existing parties is impractical, however. McGeer said his position is unchanged and added that Wallace is being forced to conform to Conservative "hawks".

"There are also Liberal hawks and Social Credit hawks. In the warfare between the free-enterprise parties, I happen to be a dove," he added.

He would continue efforts to unify free-enterprise parties against the NDP, he added.

Indians Pick Up Guns

KENORA ONT. (CP) — Militant Indians who have held a park in this Northwestern Ontario community for the past week said today they would take up their weapons again at noon local time following a weekend truce.

Meanwhile, representatives of the Ojibway Warriors Society and officials from the federal, provincial and municipal governments were to resume negotiations later today on a host of Indian demands.

No definite time for the resumption of talks had been set. A top-level official of the federal Department of Indian Affairs was expected to arrive from Ottawa to join in the negotiations.

Although spokesmen for both sides refused to discuss their bargaining positions in any detail, are Indian leader said a road running next to the park could be blocked off if progress is not made in the talks.

And an official said the federal government is concerned because of the fact that the Indians were bearing arms for the first time in years.

During the weekend truce, authorities said they would not try to oust the Indians from the park, located about two miles from the town's business district. In return, the Indians promised to lay down their arms.

The Indians claim the park is actually their own territory, purchased for them by the federal government with their own money in 1929. However, a spokesman for the Indian Affairs Department said the government was having difficulty confirming details of the transaction.

The park was sold to the town in 1959, a sale the Indians consider illegal.

In addition to return of the park, other Indian demands include: Stronger human rights legislation, creation of a native council on alcoholism, the removal of a local judge from the bench and establishment of a local police college with a course in dealing with native peoples.

No agreement has been reached on any of these matters.

FIRE THREAT EASES IN HOPE AREA

HOPE (CP) — A forest fire centred 18 miles east of here today had grown to cover at least 500 acres. A spokesman for the British Columbia Forest Service said the fire was spreading to the northeast and away from town.

About 100 men were fighting the blaze and the forest service said more were being sent there all the time. The service was calling on members of the general public to assist in putting out the fire. Volunteers could expect to work a 12-hour shift and be paid $4 an hour for their services, a spokesman said.

From the Ground Up

The published report of Mr. Rod Clack, the former Victorian who now is assistant general manager of the National Capital Commission in Ottawa, answers many of the questions which face Victoria in determining the best development of the Inner Harbor, and particularly of the Wharf Street area.

Among many suggestions, comments and recommendations which Mr. Clack sets forth, two ideas emerge as of particular value. One is that the importance of the waterfront calls for its designation as a special planning area by the provincial government. The other is that all development should conform to an over-all concept to be laid down through co-operation between provincial and civic authorities with public participation, with implementation through some body similar to the Capital Improvement District Commission although with wider powers.

Some of Mr. Clack's more detailed proposals may find critics, but there will be little quarrel with his general concept of Inner Harbor development, and the report should receive the very careful study of provincial and civic authorities as one of the best sets of guidelines yet to appear.

After the city's harrowing experience with the Reid project, and its current difficulties with the Nordal plan and other proposals, it is clear that a detailed planning and design program for the Wharf Street area is a prime necessity. But the muscle to set up and enforce such a plan is also essential, and here the civic authorities, acting under limited municipal powers, can use provincial assistance.

As Mr. Clack says, "this waterfront area is too important to allow individual entrepreneurs to decide its fate .... this waterfront area is too critical to take chances."

One of the essential factors in any plan, Mr. Clack emphasizes, is the matter of scale. The Reid centre, he notes, would have been a disaster if only because it was entirely out of proportion to the area and would have destroyed the intimate environment which is part of Victoria's charm and vital ingredient in the waterfront concept. For the same reason of scale Mr. Clack raises a question regarding the size of the proposed Laurel Point construction at the entrance to the Innner Harbor: no such building complex should dominate the scene, detract from the proportions of the Causeway harbor area or impinge on the Legislative precinct.

Keeping construction in proportion will not limit the flexibility, variety and usefulness of a sound Wharf Street development plan. Mr. Clack's report gives high importance to the need for residential development in the area, along with commercial use, park areas and "public display" facilities which will stimulate pedestrian traffic and people participation.

None of these concepts will succeed, however, unless the entire plan is governed by an overall design concept to which individual projects will conform. This has been one of the most obvious lacks so far, with piecemeal development too often finding official favor.

Mr. Clack observes that the Inner Harbor is "a very special place" in Victoria's past and future, and that "the best thing that has happened to it is that nothing has happened." By this he means that the way is clear to develop the area on an acceptable plan without the need to undo a lot of unplanned intrusions that might have occured over the years. But every Victorian knows that the danger has been imminent, particularly in the past few years, and that it still exists.

This knowledge gives added point to the advice that the obvious desire of the public for a distinctively Victorian development of the waterfront be answered by establishment of a body with adequate response to the public, with sufficient co-ordination with the city to ensure the local viewpoint, and with ample powers to implement the overall concept when it is finally agreed upon. In the meantime, while details are worked out, the temporary freeze on major changes is obviously good sense.

A Political Bill in Quebec

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa's controversial Official Languages Act has been given approval in principle by an 80-to-10 vote in the National Assembly but the bill raises constitutional doubts concerning its legitimacy under the British North America Act. Seven McGill law faculty members who have studied the bill say it violates the BNA Act and is an affront to individual and collective rights.

While McGill, in some Quebec political circles, is viewed as an English bastion of west Montreal, the professorial view has been reinforced by a cautious Prime Minister Trudeau. The prime minister has pointed out that the first article of the bill proposed to make French the official Quebec language while currently there are two official languages in Canada. Mr. Trudeau added that it would have been more desirable in the context of law to use the term "priority" concerning the French language in Quebec.

With such thunderheads building up over the contentious legislation which has split Quebec Liberal ranks, and is not wholly acceptable to any party in the National Assembly, Premier Bourassa should consider sending the bill back to committee for revision. Since Francophones outnumber Anglophones more than four to one in Quebec, French should certainly have priority in that province over English. Only a few English-Canadian bigots would begrudge such a policy. But when it comes to legislating how, and in what language, immigrants should educate their children, the Bourassa bill oversteps the bounds of any democratically elected government.

French language and culture are in no danger in Quebec. And nationally two official languages are guaranteed in the constitution —an intelligent policy which can only enlarge the mental horizons of future Canadian generations. So what is Mr. Bourassa doing with such parochial, narrow-minded legislation? Most Quebecers realize that English is an essential second language if they hope to travel or work in any part of North America. It is galling that their English counterparts in the rest of Canada have still not reached a corresponding conclusion about the learning desirability of the French language. But three hundred years of suspicion takes more than a decade to melt away.

It becomes obvious that Mr. Bourassa hopes the language bill will pull a few separatist teeth and establish the Quebec Liberals as a nationalist party as well as the federal party. But Canada can have only one constitution and it must apply equally to all if the country is to exist as a federal state. Rather than suffer the embarrassment of a Supreme Court battle and the attendant alarmist publicity in some parts of the country, Mr. Bourassa should re-draft the bill for the good of his party, of Quebec, and most important, of Canada.

Canada and the U.N. Jobs

OTTAWA — The government seemed to be seriously troubled by the United Nations' request for additional troops for the Cyprus force but it would have raised serious questions about our defence and foreign policies if it had stood aside.

As it was, this country seemed to have no ideas to contribute during the crisis and no interest in seeking to develop any. That is a great change from the days of Canadian prominence and activity at the United Nations.

Unless as a nation we have come completely to distrust the peace-keeping role, there is not much doubt that Canada should respond positively when the United Nations seeks our support in a crisis. The decision taken at last week's cabinet meeting was the right one. But the pallid and negative reactions that initially greeted the United Nations' request were disturbing.

Two Aspects

There is, however, a need to distinguish between two aspects of the question. One is the response we should be prepared to make during an emergency when the United Nations seeks our support. Canadians are probably prepared to agree that in such circumstances we should react positively, although there is not much leadership these days to encourage that or any other response.

The unresolved question is whether we want to take part in what tend to become semi-permanent garrisons, as in Cyprus, or equally lasting observation posts as in Kashmir. Perhaps that is a satisfactory role for this country, a contribution to the general welfare that we ought to be prepared to make.

But if so, it should be taken out of the category of drift and examined on its merits. As matters stand, the semi-permanent roles simply develop without much consideration through a series of ad hoc decisions taken each time a contribution comes up for reconsideration and extension.

The international force in Cyprus, stationed there for more than a decade, has undoubtedly helped keep the Greek and Turkish Cypriot communities from each other's throats.

It has also greatly relieved those two communities of the pressures that would normally force them to come to terms with each other.

The events of the last two weeks, predictably, must increase the tensions between the two communities because there must be innocent Turkish victims of the Greek coup and equally innocent Greek victims of the Turkish invasion. It is not often that fear alone drives opponents to come to an accommodation. It is much more likely to be fear coupled with exhaustion, the sort of revulsion against blood-shed that may some day, many deaths from now, drive the warring communities of Ulster to understand the reality that they must live together.

Where the element of ultimate revulsion and exhaustion is not present, fear does no more than compound hatred and bitterness. That seems likely to be the case in Cyprus and if it is, any calming of tensions between the two communities that has taken place during the last decade will have been undone by the past fortnight's fighting. The need for some outsider to hold the ring will probably go on for a long time. If the rest of the world is unwilling to watch the two communities slaughter each other, then it will presumably have to keep a well-intentioned international garrison on the island.

At some time, months from now, this country will have to make a decision entirely different from the one taken here last week in a crisis. The later decision will be whether we should go on taking part in that longterm operation extending far into the future.

The first thing to be said about that is that we are a very prosperous and extremely comfortable country. There is no obvious reason why we should be too reluctant to take on such a commitment as long as it seems likely to make a contribution to the general welfare of the Eastern Mediterranean. Any national interest we have there, however, is extremely indirect, existing only through NATO and our interest in the alliance. Thus there are no great compulsions of policy resting on us that compel participation in such a permanent or semi-permanent force.

This is, perhaps, a problem of the prosperous middle powers. They do not have great foreign policy interests in the way that the great powers do.

Their international interests are heavily financial: how to make still more money. This makes their contributions to such things as peace-keeping in Cyprus acts of goodwill rather than acts of self-interested policy.

Tinge of Unreality

That somewhat reduces the reality of the whole thing and it is this tinge of unreality that produced such a negative aspect to our initial responses in what was then an urgent crisis.

The national effects of comfort and affluence are not entirely re-assuring because complacency and inertia can so easily be prominent among them. The corrective is not so easily found, however. It becomes analagous to the problem of the well-fed city dweller who knows that he ought to become more active and take some exercise. The problem is to find some that is not too boring. Sensible men probably take up golf and find the outlet in competition, getting their exercise as an incidental benefit.

The national equivalent of golf, for countries that are fat and comfortable, is hard to find but the need is there for the condition of the human spirit begins to be affected.

Although the government of Canada worked its way around to the correct decision in the end last week, during most of the crisis it managed to convey the impression that Canadians had become a pretty flabby and dispirited lot. That may be the case, but if it is, some questions of national leadership become instantly apparent. But perhaps it is the leaders who have become flabby.

Beef Stew Still Simmering

WASHINGTON — An agreement worked out more than two weeks ago by Canadian and U.S. civil servants to end Canada's ban on American beef is still awaiting a decision by the cabinet in Ottawa.

Richard Bell, deputy assistant agriculture secretary for international affairs, confirmed Friday that "the civil servants, at the working level, agreed to a joint plan" at a meeting in Ottawa July 10; he said he hopes the Canadian cabinet will reach a decision on the proposal when it meets this week.

"We had thought the cabinet might have considered the matter when it met Thursday. We even thought the matter might have been considered the previous week. But there has been no decision," Mr. Bell said in an interview.

Once Before

Asked whether the U.S. is hopeful that Ottawa will agree to lifting its embargo on U.S. beef, Mr. Bell replied: "I dont know. We just have to wait and see."

"We've been at this stage once before," he added.

The deputy assistant secretary's reference was to an agreement reached in June by U.S. and Canadian civil servants — but later vetoed by the Canadian cabinet.

Ottawa has demanded guarantees that U.S. beef entering Canada has not been treated with diethylstibestrol (DES), a growth-stimulant that can cause cancer in laboratory animals. It is outlawed in Canada, but is legal in the U.S.—although its use here is not widespread. Mr. Bell declined Friday to reveal details of the proposals made to Canada.

EUGENE WHELAN

partment of agriculture (USDA) veterinarians, that DES has not been used. In June, Washington proposed a system — rejected by Canada — which would rely on sworn statements by beef producers and veterinarians in private practice that the hormone had not been used.

These documents would be the basis on which USDA veterinarians would certify — at packing plants in the case of meat, border stations for live cattle — that to the best of their knowledge DES had not been administered. In addition, the U.S. proposed a system of random checks of feed lots to assure that farmers and their veterinarians were signing accurate certificates.

Canada imposed its embargo April 9, cutting off U.S. beef imports at a time when there is an abundance of meat and cattle on both sides of the border. American farmers have complained that many producers face financial disaster because of low beef prices.

Propping Prices

U.S. officials believe that Ottawa's ban is propping up Canadian beef prices, rather than protecting consumers from DES-fed animals. This belief was strengthened by the clash in cabinet shortly before the July 8 Canadian election between Health Minister Marc Lalonde — who said the U.S. certification program was acceptable on health grounds — and Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan. The agriculture minister supported the embargo.

Top U.S. officials have speculated that Ottawa's position — when it eventually considers the most recent U.S. offer — will be more conciliatory now that the election is over. U.S. officials believe Canada's hard line was an attempt by the Trudeau administration to attract farm votes.

Editorial Correspondence

Co-op Housing

The attitude of Aldermen Bawlf and Savage in co-operative housing (Times, July 24) is, sadly, that of too many people today. Surely decent housing is as basic a need for all citizens as food and clothing. The attitude that a house is nothing more than an investment to be bought at the lowest possible cost and sold 12 months later at an exaggerated price, with no effort on the part of the owner other than lifting the phone and calling the realtor, is appalling. I am getting sick and tired of hearing the "equity, equity, equity" cry.

If people wish to own their own homes, that is their prerogative. If others desire the more humane concept of "people helping people", surely that too should be acceptable. I am one of those who has paid $1,700 not, as Alderman Savage stated, for the "privilege of renting", but for the privilege of having a share in what I believe is a viable alternative to owning my own home. Myself, and several others in our co-operative are former home-owners who are tired of the buy and sell "rip-off" and prefer the concept of a share purchase, interest on which is tied to the consumer price index, which will in time (and supposing that we wish to sell) give us a fair return on our investment. Naturally, realtors are opposed to large-scale co-op housing as it denies them the large percentage gain which they have come to consider their right each time a dwelling changes hands.

I do not mean to suggest that co-operators are all dewy-eyed idealists. There are many reasons for going co-operative and one of the prime ones is financial. Obviously, it is not the answer for every family. However, if the two aldermen concerned would devote their energy to considering ways and means to provide and promote public housing as a dignified alternative to home ownership, it would be time better spent than in criticising a scheme which is a genuine attempt to alleviate the housing problem in their city.

I have conveyed my feelings to Aldermen Bawlf and Savage in a similar letter.—(Mrs.) F. McWilliams, 2494 Central Ave.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 29, 1914

LONDON — Partial mobilization of the Russian troops in the southern and southwestern districts was ordered by the Russian war office last night according to dispatches received here. It is argued in official circles this action dangerously diminishes the chances of maintaining European peace. It does not necessarily imply a rupture of relations between Austro-Hungary and Russia. The hope is still expressed that some European power may succeed in bringing about an understanding between these two states. While Austro-Hungary was preparing today to strike at Servia, against whom she yesterday declared war, the rest of the European nations, although still hoping that the conflict would be localized, were getting ready for the greater war that must ensue in case Russia should intervene on behalf of the small Slav nation.

In Defence Of Growth

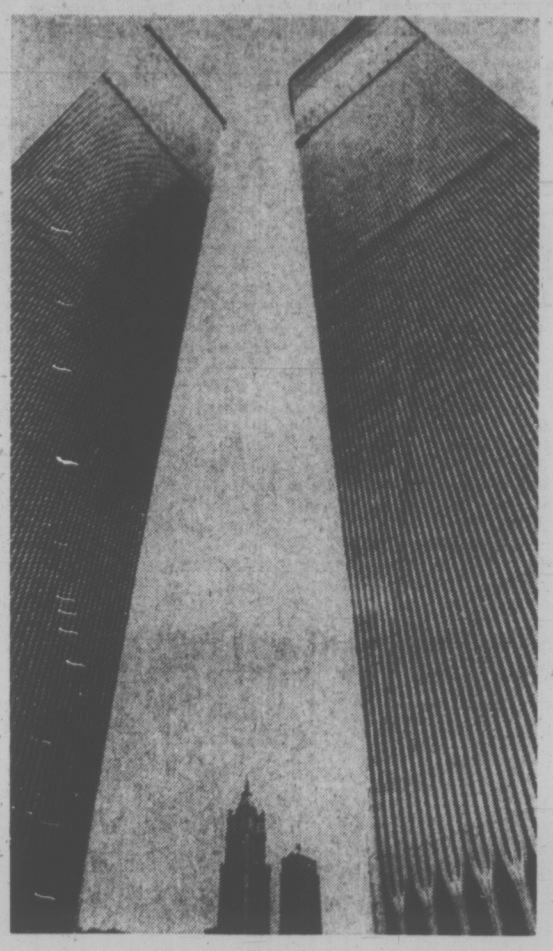
By BERNARD NOSSITER



We have resources to keep going, says U.K. economist

LONDON — The ecology doomsayers who were predicting disaster in a world bereft of copper, tin, oil and other supposedly exhaustable resources have lost their centre-stage position.

Fashions in crisis change. People worried about maintaining last year's living standards in inflation-ridden societies are not very receptive to prescriptions for planned slowdown in economic development.

But if the Club of Rome and other ecodoomsters renew their campaign, the worried can derive some genuine solace from a thoughtful study just published here, Wilfred Beckerman's In Defence of Economic Growth.

The plain and unexciting fact, Beckerman reports, is that used-up resources are not likely to trouble anyone for 100 million years or so, if then. "Resources are not really finite in any meaningful sense," he says.

Poor Standing

Beckerman is a distinguished economist at the University of London (he holds the chair once occupied by Stanley Jevons, the founder of marginal utility). Given his craft's devotion to economic growth, Beckerman will no doubt be accused of special pleading.

Economists, moreover, are not in very good standing these days. They are unable to decide whether the industrialized world needs to reflate against a threatened depression or deflate to pull down prices.

But economists do have one advantage. They have heard doom-laden forecasts before and watched them explode under the impact of technology. Most importantly, economists, unlike doomsters, know about the dynamic quality of reported reserves of any material.

Beckerman recalls a study made in 1944 that predicted the United States would run out of tin, nickel, zinc, lead and manganese by last year. It didn't happen.

In 1945, known copper reserves were 100 million tons. Since then, 93 million have been used, which should have left the world down to its last 7 million tons. In fact, copper reserves are currently put at 300 million tons.

The ecodoomsters' trick is to take the reported level of current reserves, predict they will grow by limited amounts (the Club of Rome's famous computer study allowed no more than a five-fold expansion), observe that total output grows at a geometric rate and simply find the point where the lines cross. For the Rome club, disaster strikes in a century.

The good Dr. Malthus did the same thing 176 years ago with food (supplies will increase arithmetically) and population (it will grow geometrically) to conclude that only famine, pestilence or war would preserve the balance.

In fact, as incomes rose under the impact of the industrial revolution, populations eventually levelled off because advanced nations were no longer peopled largely by impoverished peasants depending on children to preserve them in old age.

And food supplies, thanks to a technology that permitted both more intensive cultivation and reclaimed formerly waste land, grew far more rapidly than the Malthusian equations allowed.

The point is made even more dramatically with mineral resources. The reported reserves of any element or metal at any given time are not, as Beckerman observes, the true reserves.

Companies in copper, oil and lead will look only for amounts worth finding, given their estimates of price and demand over the next few decades. It is their proven finds that are solemnly taken as the foreseeable limits.

Neither industry nor its supporting government agencies want to hear about studies like those cited by Prof. Beckerman.

One based on some samplings of the earth's crust concludes that within one mile of the surface there is about one million times the known reserves of every industrial element. Since the Club of Rome concludes that physical bankruptcy of known reserves will strike in about a century, Beckerman reasons that the "distaster" point is nearer to 100 million years away.

The crisis, of course, is one of price, not exhaustion. Producer countries have formed a cartel to match that of the refining and distributing companies, and the two cartels have quadrupled the price.

Solar Research

This, as any economist would have predicted, has stimulated the search for new oil supplies, new technologies and substitute sources of energy. It has revived interest in oil from shale and tar sands, promises a bonanza for the makers of nuclear reactors, turned attention to coal and aroused research in energy from the sun, the fusion of hydrogen and other previously exotic sources.

It has also led to some revised estimates of oil reserves. All during the '60s, the oil companies, with what they thought was a secure stake in cheap Arab oil, encouraged the British government to believe that the North Sea was a costly adventure with limited prospects.

Now, a less naive government, propelled by the facts of costly imported oil and a healthy suspicion of the companies' interest, will soon be able to announce that Britain can become an exporter of oil in the next decade. There is more than enough on Britain's coastal shelf alone to supply the nation's demand at the old prices, a fact that had hitherto appeared only in unofficial reports.

The ecodoomsters, as Beckerman observes, take a largely static view of both resources and technology. Their equations would not have foreseen that aluminum would change from a luxury metal to throwaway uses because of the discovery of abundant bauxite.

Indeed, some of the shrewder mining companies are already discussing the threatened fall in their prices when new technology enables them to extract hundreds of billions of tons of metals in the nodules on the bed of the sea.

If a Papal court had set up a Club of Rome 10 centuries ago, it would have issued alarming cries about a world of homeless men. Timber was disappearing, stone was hard to work easily and reforestation was not on the medieval horizon. For that matter, neither were concrete or plastic.

Which leads Prof. Beckerman to discuss pollution, the other alleged constraint on economic growth.

Here too, Beckerman notes, recent history has been unkind to the doomsters. Thanks in part to the pressure from environmentalists, advanced nations have discovered they can clean up air and water at a relatively limited cost.

The Club of Rome assumed, under its most "optimistic" forecast, that the ratio of pollution to output would fall by only 25 per cent in the next century. But in 15 years, London has cut its pollution by 85 per cent, doubled the hours of winter sunshine and counted 55 species of fish in a Thames that had none. Over this period, moreover, incomes and output have risen steadily.

The only serious question is how much any society wants to spend on de-polluting its environment, a nice exercise in cost-benefit analysis. Indeed, it may turn out that cleaner air and water can increase total output — expanding productivity with healthier workers, reducing transportation costs by eliminating smog-caused traffic jams and the like.

'No Substance'

Beckerman concludes:

"There is no substance at all in the main fears of the ecodoomsters. . . . The fear that rising pollution and declining supplies of raw materials will bring economic growth to an end in a sudden, and hence catastrophic manner, within a relevant time-period, unless . . . measures are taken to bring economic growth to a halt now. . . . The assumptions underlying these fearful predictions bear no relation to actual trends in pollution control or policies, to the continual development of raw materials and technologies, to the increases in the food supplies and to the reduction in birth-rates . . . that have taken place in the past, that are still taking place, and that can be clearly anticipated for the foreseeable future."

Marketing Board System Must Be Part of Food Price Review

THE SUN
An Editorial

The "full investigation" into food pricing in British Columbia promised by provincial Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich offers little hope of any major repair to a producer-controlled marketing system that has been called an "unadulterated disaster."

It is discouraging enough that Mr. Stupich has so little sense of purpose or urgency that he has not determined what form the investigation will take or when it will start, only that "there will be an investigation." Worse is the apparent intention of the minister, if and when he does make up his mind, to go harring after food companies and supermarkets, perhaps on the principle of any old straw man in a storm.

If Mr. Stupich doesn't believe the relatively clean bill of health given these way points in the food marketing chain by the federal Food Prices Review Board, that is his prerogative. For him to make no mention of any study of the producer's contribution to food inflation — indeed, to choose this time to re-emphasize his support of B.C.'s embattled marketing board system — mocks the very idea of a "full investigation" into food pricing before it begins.

Like Eugene Whelan, his opposite number in the federal government, Dave Stupich is the last man who should be allowed within a country mile of a study of the cost of food. Mr. Whelan receives most of the notoriety for his almost manic reiteration that Canadian food prices aren't high enough. But Mr. Stupich is equally insensitive to obligations beyond his narrow portfolio.

A case in point was his response to the recent survey which showed that Vancouver food prices not only were the highest in Canada but second only to Honolulu in the United States; we were the Canadian leader, moreover, for the third year in a row.

The survey told only half the story, said Mr. Stupich. It failed to recognize higher food production costs in B.C. and also did not relate food prices to wage levels, a riposte that neatly put places such as Montreal and Chicago among the have-nots of the world.

The contributing factor that the agriculture minister failed to mention, either because he honestly doesn't believe it or simply refuses to recognize it, is the cozy cartel system that governs both the quantity and the price of so much food that British Columbians consume.

This is an odd failure, because the marketing board scandal was very much to the fore during the past sitting of the legislature. Because matters clearly are getting worse instead of better, it is bound to return to haunt his government next time around. And next time, the side issue of whether Premier Dave Barrett has been improperly coercing the B.C. Egg Marketing Board may not provide the diversion from the main event so quickly recognized, and deplored, by the B.C. branch of the Consumer Association of Canada.

The problems with marketing boards that should have been receiving the legislature's attention, said the association, are that "prices are maintained at a high level and production is restricted by the quota systems, causing shortages of supply."

Why this happens was put succinctly by Charles May, an independent Maple Ridge tomato grower. The most obvious reason that marketing boards in B.C. are an "unadulterated disaster," said Mr. May, "is the conflict of interest in the directors' control of the sale of their own produce and the produce of their indentured members."

STUPICH
. . . urgency lacking

And Mr. May produced figures, which neither Dave Stupich nor the boards appear to have attempted to refute, that food production has decreased sharply in recent years because of farmers quitting "in frustration and disgust."

"Today we have over two million people," wrote Mr. May, "and we produce fewer tons of common vegetables (carrots, cabbage, onions, potatoes) than we did in 1933, and we import 14 times as many tons of these common vegetables as we did in 1933."

For those farmers within the marketing board cliques, or within their echelons of power, anyway, Mr. Stupich's expressed contentment with the "orderly marketing" of the producer monopoly system deserves to be widely shared. With Canadian farm earnings expected to top $4 billion this year—an increase of 186 per cent in the money going into farmers' pockets since 1970 — one can accept the opinion of the Financial Times that "farmers have done well from fast-rising world food prices." Total labor income over that same period rose, as the Financial Times says, "a more modest 37 per cent."

If B.C.'s record market basket prices don't show conclusively that our farmers are sharing in the bonanza, Statistics Canada does. During the first five months of this year, it reports, cash farm income in B.C. reached $125 million up from $90 million in the corresponding period in 1973, or an increase of approximately 40 per cent.

It should be safe to hazard a guess, then, that those B.C. marketing board members who call the shot on who produces how much to be sold at what price aren't doing all that badly. On the other hand, no guessing is needed to say that there are farmers on the fringes or the outside of the powerful cartels who resent missing the gravy train; the fruit growers' revolution, if not the internecine egg and broiler strife, confirms that.

As for the B.C. consumer, what guessing is left after the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board comes right out and charges that we are being "ripped off" by our own marketing agency?

It must be distressing for many New Democratic Party supporters to see the supine way that their socialist government is bedding down with a system that its members found so unpleasant when in opposition. Yet the inescapable fact is that the Social Credit government was promising to root out at least some of the undemocratic travesties of these boards when it was defeated. Not only is the NDP government keeping in business the system that offended its predecessor and the Socreds, it will be remembered, were mighty slow themselves to take offence—but it has taken up the "chicken and egg" war as its very own.

Why else would Agriculture Minister Stupich, when urged by the B.C. Broiler Marketing Board not sign a national chicken marketing scheme when Canada's agricultural ministers met the other day in Winnipeg, say, yes, that's probably what he was not going to do.

The right thing for Mr. Stupich's government would be to listen to the Consumer Association — putting on an investigative commission sideshow if that made it feel better — just as a change of pace from the usual supplicants with vested interests.

The association isn't asking for anything so horrendous and hostile to doctrinaire socialist thinking as a free market — heaven forbid. It wants immediate consumer representation on marketing boards and hearings before increases. It doesn't think there should be so much power vested in board members who have a financial interest at stake. That's not so frightening, is it?

WHELAN

In view of its past disdain for consensus, our government is not likely to do this thing just because it's right. Premier Barrett's embarrassing involvement in egg marketing board affairs — wasn't "persuasion" what Mr. Stupich called it?—suggests it is more apt to retain the boards, but make them captive. Whatever, the government just might find that inflicting the autocratic ways of a minority on a majority ultimately must prove expensive to it as well.

From the Valleys to the Peaks

By COLMAN McCARTHY

Those who watch the changing fortunes of language, and take courage when it is used well or take to the hills when it is not, have had their comforts in 1973 and 1974. It has been a time dominated by a metaphor: Watergate.

When the scandals of Watergate are mentioned, no one means that the plumbing or heating systems of the actual Watergate buildings are falling apart; the Watergate metaphor is about other firm structures falling apart, from Richard Nixon's defences to Richard Nixon's "plumbers", the last being a metaphorical turn of its own.

Citizens who care about metaphors have no national lobbying office to receive donations for the protection of their endangered species — whales and porpoises are guarded by laws but metaphors must sink or swim on their own — so they are grateful for even the dishonorable mention of the Watergate metaphor.

But the deep delight of their passion is when a metaphor is used skillfully; when a writer sticks up a lightning rod of words and takes the electric energy of imagery to express vividly what others express dully.

A metaphor is the imagination doing its work in public. It is an escape hatch from which the literal slips out and the original Greek meaning—metaphora for "transfer of sense" — slips on.

The dictionary calls it "the use of a word or phrase literally denoting one kind of object or idea in place of another by way of suggesting a likeness or anology between them."

Readers are attracted to metaphors for both the precision and wizardry by which lightning is stolen from the gods but also in appreciation for the writer's extra exertion to do magically what he could have done merely. It was Samuel Johnson — it usually is — who said: "What is written without effort is read without pleasure."

Ortega y Gasset believed that the metaphor is the most fertile power man has, because only the metaphor takes up beyond reality. Aristotle called the metaphor "the mark of genius."

NIXON
. . . dark nights, dead words

Aristotle also said that the metaphor "is the one thing that cannot be learned from others," and perhaps the least likely scene for modern self-education is among the politicians.

Aside from his contribution of the Watergate metaphor, Nixon's other metaphors are anything but historical firsts, but instead are reliances on what he disdains most, "the easy thing."

The other day he said: "You don't need to worry about my getting sick or jumping ship," That, to the Seafarers Union.

Discussing his health last December, he said: "It is important to live like a Spartan." Nixon, no mixer of metaphors, prefers instead to link them together in sausage eloquence.

"My fellow Americans," he told his fellow Republicans at the 1968 convention, "the dark night of America is about to end. The time has come for us to leave the valley of despair and climb the mountains so that we may see the glory of the dawn."

When candidate Nixon wasn't resurrecting the dead metaphors in the speech, he did get off one prophetic line "America is in trouble today not because the people have failed but because her leaders have failed."

Most politicians have their pet metaphors, faithfully leashed. "We must close loopholes," cry the liberals. The conservatives demand "We must stop beating around the bush," and those in the middle-of-the-road — where the goriest accidents occur — say "we must get new ideas into the hopper" because we have seen only "the tip of the iceberg" regardless of the "trial balloons."

Occasionally a politician will try to carry a metaphor a yard or two further into originality, either to drop or trip over it in mid-sentence.

Rep. Clarence J. Brown (R-Ohio) was quoted recently in the Wall Street Journal on Watergate: "the responsible elected official keeps his powder dry and waits to see what develops, what's provable." How does powder develop or become probable?

The most embarrassing metaphor is one that is farfetched but travels on and on to become farther and farther fetched. Helen Reilly in The Line-Up writes: "Casey has a good deal on his shoulders. He had to beat off the rotten politicians snuffling for plums as a hog roots to truffles, on the one hand, and on the other endure the highminded and utterly ridiculous suggestions of a citizenry determined to tear down the walls at one clean sweep and wreck one of the most efficient police machines in history in order to feed the populace bountiful on the cake of reform."

Other authors, hating the poverty of low-paid metaphors, try for a contrived richness. In A Walk Through Europe, John Hillaby writes: "If the Netherlands can be vulgarly likened to a cow, her udder is the rich province that hangs down under her belly, that is, between the legs of Belgium and Western Germany."

Small wonder, or no wonder at all, that as long ago as 1893 Atlantic Monthly ran an article on the American deficiency in creating worthy metaphors.

Yet, masters are found, symbolists timing cymbals of words to crash at exactly the right moment of the symphony, not to dominate but to liven it up. One metaphorist of known style is John Leonard, a novelist and critic who is now editor of The New York Times Book Review.

A Leonard metaphor shows not only his imagination publicly at work but, even more for our money, shows he finds the work enjoyable; he turns in his copy smiling. Even his knee-jerk metaphors are originals, as in a writer who "sat at the feet of R. Buckminster Fuller, tapping the great man's knee with a rubber-headed hammer and getting kicked in the preconceptions."

About a Gore Vidal novel, Leonard said: "Aspiring to a souffle, he achieves a pancake, at which the reader saws without much appetite.'

Once he punned on metaphors themselves: "One's metamorphic retch exceeds one's metaphoric gap." Leonard's word play might seem to be horseplay, but to those who believe the ease of a unique metaphor is easily created, let them try one. Let them write one that isn't hackneyed or weak-kneed.

In the end, no discipline of the mind is more satisfying than coupling words with images. Millions of possibilities exist, both short and long shots. The worst bore is one who has mastered plain talk, as if that is the only way to express the plain truth.

It is not. The plainness of truth is often best served by the complexity of an exact metaphor, the highest work of the imagination because the truth is usually the last part of reality we ever actually do imagine.

Japan's Slide Crucial To B.C. Industries

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

British Columbia industrialists are watching the economic slide of Japan with mixed emotions.

While Japan is B.C.'s main competitor for Pacific Rim trade, it is also our main overseas customer for raw materials.

Also at stake is millions of dollars of investment capital which Japan has been pumping into the B.C. economy.

Japan has been forced to re-evaluate its expansion program because of rapidly changing market conditions.

Its latest disaster is the shipbuilding industry, which as recently as two months ago was its economic mainstay.

Now, even that is changing.

The market for ships under 100,000 tons has been lost to other countries.

The yard of Ishikawajima-Harima Heavy Industries Ltd. was startled to be outbid in a contract for oil tankers for the Arab states. Crowning blow was the placing of an order by a Japanese firm for three 12,500-ton containerships in Germany.

European bids for this type of vessel currently are bout 10 per cent below the Japanese yards.

Japan is holding grimly to its monopoly in the field of very large ships but there is trouble brewing for Japan there, too.

A heavy backlog of orders is causing a delay in deliveries, which means trouble with costs rising at the rate of 30 per cent a year.

Elsewhere, Japan's industrial growth rate has slowed to less than 2 per cent a year from 11 per cent in 1973.

Inflation is among the worst in the northern hemisphere.

Main factors in the inflation for the heavily-industrialized nation are a 300 per cent increase in the price of petroleum, a 30 per cent increase in steel costs and new wage contracts awarding a 32 per cent increase in a one-year contract.

Electricity rates are also soaring in Japan and are about four times as high as those in B.C., before the new rates go into effect for industrial users here.

Low electricity rates in B.C. encouraged Japan to pump $100 million into a deal with Alcan for 25 per cent of its Kitimat aluminum production, starting in 1977.

The power rate increase by B.C. Hydro will not affect the Alcan deal because the company produces its own power at Kemano and sells some of its surplus to B.C. Hydro.

The Kemano power rates have not changed because the plant has been in operation for many years and no major new investment is needed to keep it operating.

Japan fill buy 100,000 tons of aluminum per year for 25 years at a saving of $200 per ton.

Japan is unable to compute long-term costs for other B.C. industrial ventures, however, because they probably would involve B.C. Hydro where future industrial power costs are uncertain. The provincial government has indicated the rates will be fairly high in comparison with past pricing practices.

$250M Bond Issue Offered

OTTAWA (CP) — A new issue of $250 million in 9.25 per cent government bonds offered to investors today was priced at face value, giving investors 9.25 per cent a year for two years and 5½ months when they mature Feb. 1, 1977.

The new bonds are non-callable, and will be exchangeable at the option of the holder on or before Nov. 1, 1976, into 9.25 per cent bonds due Feb. 1, 1982.

As announced by the finance department Friday, the Bank of Canada has agreed to take up $125 million of the new issue. There already is $350 million of 9.25 per cent bonds due Feb. 1, 1977, in investors' hands. They were issued June 15, 1974.

The finance department said borrowings on the new issue will be used for general purposes of the treasury.

No Inflation Relief in Sight

OTTAWA — There is virtually no hope for relief from continued inflation in the Bank of Canada's report for July.

The central bank based its outlook this week on a review of economic conditions and trends stretching back to last winter and said that although there is a possibility of relaxed commodity-price pressure, this may be offset by other inflationary forces.

Financial policies were, on balance, tightened earlier this year as mounting concern over inflation was compounded by major uncertainties as to the impact of oil payments on countries' international financial positions," the bank said.

"In the light of these developments, it is questionable whether the recovery of demand will be very strong in the near term in either the United States or in overseas countries."

It said such an outcome would imply a slower growth in export-related income in Canada after the sharp gains of the past.

This also offered the prospect of "a more pronounced easing of commodity price pressures," but there was a risk that any resultant relief for domestic price levels would be "counter-balanced by the intensified upward pressures on the underlying structure of costs and prices in Canada."

The bank, which increased its prime lending rate by one half of a percentage point to a record 9¾ per cent Tuesday in its continuing attempt to choke off rising credit, said intensification of inflation in Canada reflected global conditions.

However, despite pronounced economic slowdowns in many industrialized nations, Canada's economy has remained generally bouyant.

But while real domestic demand in Canada has been much more bouyant than in the United States, its largest trading partner, exports in recent months have been falling behind.

"The volume of Canadian merchandise exports has not shown any clear tendency to rise since early 1973 and, indeed, in the first quarter of this year it was slightly lower than a year earlier," the bank said in its nearly 200-page review, which is published monthly.

It said that in the first quarter of 1974, total exports of goods and services were down 8-10 of one per cent from the final quarter of 1973 and 3.1 per cent from the first quarter of 1973. On the import side of the record, total goods and services in the first quarter were up by 11.2 per cent over the final quarter of last year and 8.4 per cent over the first quarter.

Among the bank's selected economic indicators, residential construction showed the strongest surge — up 23.8 per cent from the corresponding quarter of 1973 — and the bank took special note of this.

"Stimulus has also come from the strong upward momentum of spending by business for investment purposes. In the first quarter of 1974, outlays on machinery and equipment and non-residential construction . . . were 16 per cent higher than a year earlier . . ."

It is said the strong start to 1974 — coupled with information on the subsequent months obtained from business surveys as well as such indicators as building permits — points clearly "to a profile of sustained expansion" for the rest of the year.

"The surge of investment represents a major addition to capital stock that should help to ease the pressures on capacity that have been experienced for the past year or more."

As well as the strength in the private sector, the bank said, direct government purchases of goods and services have been expanding at an approximate annual rate of 15 per cent.

This, however, was a sore point with the Opposition in the last Parliament and during the campaign for the July 8 election. Critics repeatedly called for reduced government spending, saying it was fanning the fires of inflation.

The bank, in summary, said recent economic developments in Canada and elsewhere indicate that economic forces have been changing in two respects.

First, the strong rebound in output during the winter from the strike-depressed levels of last summer had brought major sectors of the economy back to peak operating levels. Second, there was markedly less bouyancy in external factors because of the slowing of the economy in Canada's trading partners.

"In these circumstances, there is little scope for an above-trend growth in output in the period immediately ahead.

"Certainly, the partial information available in early July pointed to a considerably slower advance in economic activity in the second quarter than in the preceding six months."

Sask. Gov't Seeks Share

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — Mining companies in Saskatchewan will have to offer 50 per cent of their mineral claims acquired after Sept. 1 to the provincial government if proposals in a white paper by the department of mineral resources become government policy.

The white paper, being circulated to mining exploration firms, states that companies "will be required to offer the government participation which costs more than $10,000 annually or $2.50 an acre.

Firma spending less than this amount on exploration or land claims will be invited to apply for government participation up to 50 per cent, the paper said.

The government will inform a firm of its intention to enter a joint venture agreement within 30 days of the compulsory application for government participation.

Great Time for 800 Youngsters, But Hazardous for Fish

More entrants than fish

Youngsters were too busy fishing to read all the signs

First prize for Kevin Wong, 6

It was a hazardous afternoon for the fish around Ogden Point breakwater Saturday but a great one for the kids as 800 children took part in a fishing derby for those 18 and under.

The Victoria Playgrounds Junior Fishing Derby, an annual event sponsored this year by Eaton's, the city playgrounds program and radio station C-FAX, saw 135 fish hauled from the water.

And for Ralph Wherry, 13, of 2673 Foul Bay Road, success paid off twice.

He caught 11 fish, which was more than anyone else, and had his name drawn twice from the barrel of entries, one entry for each fish caught.

He won the major prize, a 10-speed bicycle, as well as a carton of soft drinks.

Biggest fish in the derby, a 2-pound 15-ounce ratfish, was caught by Kevin Wong, 6, of 1030 North Park, and he was rewarded with a transistor radio and a trophy.

Youngest competitor was Sean Booth, 2, of 4459 Torquay Drive.

Medical Biochemist Would End DDT Ban

CHICAGO (AP) — The Journal of the American Medical Association published today a plea to end the ban on use of the insecticide DDT. Ecologists were quick to criticize the request.

The article by Dr. Thomas Jukes, a medical biochemist at the University of California at Richmond, says the decision by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) in 1972 to ban the use of DDT in the United States was "political rather than scientific."

"Let us hope that DDT will find its place again as a public health measure for uses that are essential in the control of noxious insects," Dr. Jukes wrote.

There are reports that the EPA is reassessing its DDT ban and may soon recommend a more liberal policy for its use.

DDT is banned by some provinces in Canada.

Dr. Barry Commoner, an ecologist from Washington University at St. Louis, said in an interview that Dr. Jukes overlooked scientific evidence about the harmful effect of DDT on humans.

"It seems to be that the AMA is irresponsible if it chooses to inform the large segment of the public represented by the patients of its members by means of grossly oversimplified opinion rather than the facts regarding the DDT problem," Dr. Commoner said.

In the article, Dr. Jukes acknowledged that DDT is toxic to crustaceans, fish and sometimes birds.

Dr. Jukes cited an AMA study that found handlers of DDT suffered no ill effects despite long exposure.

Dr. Jukes said that in the last three years gypsy moths have denuded East Coast forests and tussock moths have destroyed forests in the West. But the EPA refuses to allow the use of DDT to fight the moths, he said.

Other scientists report, however, that natural predators—birds, other insects and mammals—helped in halting the infestation by damaging the moth eggs.

HUNGER STRIKERS SAY MORALE REMAINS HIGH

WINNIPEG (CP) — Six local Ukrainian Canadians today entered the 13th day of their hunger strike on the Manitoba legislative grounds to protest the Soviet imprisonment of historian Valentin Moroz.

A similar hunger strike is in its 15th day in Ottawa.

A statement from the Winnipeg hunger strikers said morale remains high although latest medical reports show their health is gradually deteriorating.

The group also said their Ottawa sources informed them that Premier Ed Schreyer has sent a telegram to the federal government requesting an investigation of the Moroz case. The premier said Friday, however, he does not feel it proper for a provincial leader to advise the prime minister on foreign policy matters and that he didn't intend to ask the federal government to intervene in the matter.

Cross-Bred Hen From Maine Lays a World-Beater

PITTSFIELD, Maine (UPI) — The title of world's largest hen egg was awarded to a local favorite this weekend after two huge foreign imports were disqualified, one because its ancestry was questionable and the other because it came scrambled.

The top honors went instead to an egg, all in one piece, laid by a cross-bred hen at the farm of Dick Jose at Stockton Springs, Maine.

The Polish egg was laid on the farm of Zdzislaw Frnkowski, near Warsaw. Its contents, however, were blown out according to rules mailed months ago by officials of the Central Maine Egg Festival. Only the shell was mailed to the contest by the Polish ministry of agriculture.

Three Dozen Rockets Rain On Da Nang

DA NANG, South Vietnam (UPI) — Communist troops driving on Da Nang fired nearly three dozen rockets at the bustling port today in a new threat to South Vietnam's second largest city.

A government spokesman said the Communist gunners fired 34 Soviet-made, 122 mm rockets at dawn, killing seven persons and wounding 21. He said the shells caused only minor military damage.

In Cambodia, government troops reported killing 87 insurgents in a pair of weekend battles north of Phnom Penh. Government losses were listed as four dead and 13 wounded.

The Da Nang rocket barrage appeared aimed at the city's sprawling air base, 370 miles north of Saigon, and an army division headquarters three miles to the north.

It was the second shelling since the Communists began a drive from the south against the port city a week and a half ago. Since then, Viet Cong forces have pushed to within 13 miles of the city.

Only five of the rockets hit the air base, one of the most important in South Vietnam. Military spokesmen reported no damage and said warplanes were using the field a half-hour after the attack.

At Trung Nghia, a hamlet near the base, a rocket crashed into a shanty, killing a mother, father and four sleeping children. Four other persons were wounded.

At nearby Freedom Hill, the former U.S. marine headquarters, a rocket hit three homes, wounding four civilians. Another rocket crashed into an ammunition dump, destroying flares and shells.

Military sources said the rockets were fired from a sparsely inhabited area known as "Rocket Ridge", five miles southeast of Da Nang. U.S troops nicknamed Da Nang "Rocket City" because of the many attacks against the port.

DOES ANYBODY OUT THERE GIVE A DAMN IF THE MINING INDUSTRY IS TAXED TO DEATH?

Nearly all of us are paying more taxes these days.
Nobody likes to pay more taxes.
Neither do we.

It makes it tougher to meet payrolls, answer to shareholders, replace equipment, expand our operations and remain competitive in world markets.

But we're not opposed to paying more taxes or operating under new regulations, providing the tax rates and the new rules are reasonable and don't put us out of business.

The Risks and Realities of Mining

Tax rates and royalties are especially important to us because mining operations are basically quite different from other types of industry.

For example, mining companies must produce minerals where they are found and more and more this is in remote regions of the country where costs of establishing a mine are much higher. Ore bodies, of course, are eventually mined out and the difficulties and uncertainties of finding new deposits involve heavy financial risks. Even after a mine is found, unforeseen problems of extraction and processing can frequently arise. Furthermore, mineral prices are determined in international markets and vary over a wide range, making forecasting extremely difficult, especially since a new mine can be 5-7 years getting into production.

Supertax and the Supersqueeze

Right now, we're caught in a tax squeeze between the federal government and certain provinces, all of whom want to increase their direct tax and royalty revenues from the mining industry.

Unfortunately, both levels of government are trying to maximize their respective taxing powers of the industry without consulting each other or coordinating their policies.

The result has been a host of hastily-devised tax and royalty measures which threaten the jobs of thousands of employees and the benefits to all Canadians from the widespread economic activity which mining generates in all parts of Canada.

During the past several months, the governments of British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario and Saskatchewan have either introduced or given notice of new legislation which, coupled with new federal taxes, as proposed in the May, 1974, budget, would mean the total tax burden would range up to 70 per cent or even higher for many mining companies. In certain cases, profits would be taxed at ridiculous rates approaching 100 per cent.

Not only are the combined tax and royalty rates oppressively high, but stringent new controls in certain provinces both implemented or proposed, would effectively result in government management of the mining industry.

In Manitoba, for example, the government intends to re-introduce a bill which will effectively control production levels as well as substantially increase tax revenues.

In British Columbia, the government has imposed a base royalty plus a "super royalty" based, in effect, on sales values or prices, rather than on profits, taking no account of the inevitable increase in operating costs.

Ontario has introduced new, steeply graduated tax rates, Saskatchewan is considering heavy new taxes and other provinces are also reviewing existing tax legislation.

In the absence of consultation and coordination, this federal-provincial tax squeeze not only threatens to cripple the future of the mining industry, but will do lasting harm to the Canadian economy.

And that's where you get caught, too.

The Supersqueeze Will Hurt Everybody

You depend upon the mining industry in a host of different ways.

Just think about it. Nearly everything we use in our daily life is made of metals and minerals. Without them we would be reduced to the most primitive state imaginable.

Consider these facts:

- Canada is the third largest mineral producing nation in the world and its mining industry provides direct employment for more than 150,000 Canadians.
- Directly and indirectly, mining provides employment for an estimated 11 per cent of the total employed labour force in Canada. Next to construction, it pays the highest wages and salaries of all Canadian industries.
- Mining and mineral-based products account for 26 per cent of Canada's commodity exports. They are one of the mainstays in our effort to pay our way in the world.
- The industry spends about two billion dollars annually for equipment, supplies and services and accounts for 40 per cent of all the tonnage carried by rail and water.
- Perhaps its most important contribution is the development of new communities throughout the less favoured regions of Canada.

Let's Get Profits Into Perspective

Still, some people believe the mining industry should be taxed and controlled more than it is now. And when headlines in the press proclaim seemingly large gains in profits by mining companies, people tend to think the industry can easily afford to pay much higher taxes.

But too often, profits are reported in terms of year-to-year, or quarter-to-quarter percentage gains. This can be misleading and can give the impression of excessive profits. Business generally operates in cycles and this is especially true of the mining industry.

Most investors would agree a more realistic way to look at profits is on the basis of the rate of return on capital invested, taking into account the degree of risk, over a period of several years.

Here's how the mining industry compared with manufacturing and industry generally over the past five years:

RATE OF RETURN ON CAPITAL EMPLOYED

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Total Manufacturing | 6.9% | 5.0% | 6.4% | 7.5% | 10.0% | 7.1% |
| Total All Industries | 6.4 | 5.5 | 6.1 | 6.8 | 9.0 | 6.8 |
| Total Mining* | 8.9 | 9.6 | 5.8 | 3.6 | 10.2 | 7.6 |

*excludes coal, oil and gas
Source: Statistics Canada—Industrial Corporations Financial Statistics.

Clearly, considering the special risks involved, the mining industry's return on capital invested in the past five years is not significantly higher than manufacturing and industry generally and is less than many major industries including food and beverages, chemical, electrical, rubber, printing and publishing and others.

Of course, the mining industry is a profit-making enterprise. Surely that's good, isn't it?

Profits provide the motivation for every business decision from product innovation to the high risk-taking of mineral exploration. They also provide governments with a large measure of their income.

There's nothing immoral about profits. Without profits, business and industry could not exist, let alone develop or expand their operations.

It's time to talk sense about profits and get them into perspective.

It's Time To End The Squabble

And it's time for governments — federal and provincial — to end their squabble over tax revenues from the mining industry and reverse the trend towards increasing interference and management of this vital industry.

Already, exploration and development activities are being drastically curtailed in certain provinces and mining companies are being forced to accelerate their exploration efforts outside Canada since they must maintain supplies for their customers.

That's a basic fact of business life.

Eventually, it will mean only the very high-grade mines will be developed in Canada and the industry will inevitably decline. Jobs will be lost and mining communities as well as the secondary and manufacturing industries which depend upon mining will suffer severely.

The hard fact is Canada has already become a much less attractive place for the large amounts of risk capital required for mining.

Mining, you see, is your business, too.

Let's not destroy it.

It's an industry which, for the future well-being of every Canadian, should be permitted to live and to grow under reasonable tax rates and reasonable regulations.

Nichols Enjoys Tip From Cowan

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Nichols shrugged off the field with three successive birdies on the back nine Sunday en route to a four-stroke victory in the $200,000 Canadian Open golf championship.

The 38-year-old veteran won $40,000, and the Peter Jackson Trophy, bringing his winnings this year to $111,660, by carding a 68—two under par—on the wind-blown 6,788-yard course at the Mississaugua Golf Club.

And he credited a putting lesson from Canadian amateur Gary Cowan with correcting a part of his play that enabled him to turn a so-so round into a sub-par effort.

His 72-hole score of 270 was 10 under par for the tournament and, despite a temporary stall in his game at the 10th and 11th and an earlier charge by veterans Ray Floyd and Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez, there was rarely any doubt that he'd hold the lead he earned with another 68 Saturday.

"I don't usually like to mention other people's names," said the new champion, "but Gary did help me out when we played a practice round on Tuesday."

He said he was getting a little flip in his putting motion tion and that Cowan, a former United States and Canadian amateur champion, helped him straighten it out.

Larry Ziegler, who had a 69 Sunday, and John Schlee, with a 70, were tied for second and earned $18,500 each in prize money.

Jack Nicklaus, who made a bid for the lead before running up against an old foe—the 12th hole—finished with a 70 and was grouped at 277 with Arnold Palmer, 1972 Open champion Gay Brewer, Don Bies and Jim Ferriell.

They were one stroke back of a foursome at 276—Gary Sanders, Steve Melnyk, Ben Crenshaw and Lionel Hebert.

The only two remaining Canadians of 17 who started the tournament on Thursday were well back in the field. Ben Kern of London, Ont., had a 69 and won $305 while Winnipeg's Wilf Homenuik finished with a 77 and placed out of the money.

"I wasn't too worried after I made the turn (in 34) and saw on the scoreboard that I had a three-stroke lead," Nichols said. "But when I went bogey, bogey and walked off the 11th to see I had only a one-stroke lead, then I did get concerned."

On the next three holes he had birdie putts of three, 18 and eight feet.

The 533-yard, par-5 12th hole that has baffled more than its share of par-breakers over the years, turned back the clock for Nicklaus.

In 1965, when the Canadian Open was last played here, he drove his second shot into the river that fronts on the green and wound up with a bogey, losing the championship by one stroke to Gene Littler.

He was in position to challenge for the lead again Sunday, playing several groups ahead of Nichols, when his one-iron shot with a trailing wind plunged into the river bank just below the green.

It took Nicklaus three strokes to get to the fringe of the green and he finished the hole with a double bogey.

Nicklaus said he played the hole the same way Saturday when he parred the hole, and it was just another example of the way he has been playing this year when he's been getting a few hot holes then "frittered away opportunities."

Nichols figured after seeing how hard the No. 1 green was after two days of no rain or watering that a 10-under score would probably be good enough to win, "but I was surprised that I won by four strokes."

"The course sure toughened up the last couple of days," he said, reacting to suggestions from many of the players that the course played too easy for a national championship both Thursday and Friday.

Kern and Homenuik won berths on Canada's World Cup team as the top Canadians in the tournament. Kern also won an $800 charm bracelet for his wife, Nancy, as low Canadian.

Total attendance for the last two days was 66,068, 21,112 on Sunday. The record is an estimated 80,000, set last year at the Richelieu Club in Montreal.

Ticket revenue was a record $320,000, topping the previous high of $222,000, set in 1972 at Cherry Hill in Fort Erie, Ont.

GLEE MEASURES $620 PER FOOT

TORONTO (UPI) — John Schlee, the 35-year-old Carrollton, Texas, pro who finished in a second-place tie with Larry Ziegler in the Canadian Open Sunday, will not soon forget a 16-foot birdie putt he made on the last hole of the tournament.

It was a $9,934 putt, or $620 and change per foot.

The birdie gave Schlee a par 70 for the final round and total of 274. He and Ziegler each collected $18,500.

Winner Bobby Nichols carried away the top prize of $40,000.

Had Schlee not made the putt, he would have had to settle for $8,566.

Americans Top Sailing Meet

VANCOUVER (CP) — Carl Buchan of Seattle easily sailed off with the Canadian laser championship here Sunday.

Buchan had a total of 17 points on the low-point scoring system. He finished with three firsts, two seconds, a seventh and an eighth. The win gave him an automatic berth to the world laser sailing championships to be held in Bermuda in the fall.

Don Trask of San Francisco was second with 38.1 points and Chris Boome of San Francisco was third with 48.7.

Top Canadian finishers were Rob Butler, fourth with 55 points, and Jamie Kidd, fifth with 74.7 points. Both are from Toronto and qualified for the world championship.

Eleven Islanders Named to Team

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

Burning sun softened the track at Centennial Stadium Sunday but it didn't stop Victoria athletes from turning in some excellent performances before the two-day B.C. Junior Olympic track and field meet ended.

Because of the heat, times were a little slower than officials had expected considering the high-class fields in most events. No Canadian junior records were broken on the track and only one national midget mark fell.

But competition was fierce, with berths on the B.C. junior team to compete in the Canadian Junior Olympics in Edmonton Aug. 6 to 12 at stake.

Double winners Tim Page of the Victoria Track Club and Tom Griffin of Victoria Mercuries were the stars of the weekend and headed a list of 11 Vancouver Island athletes — seven boys and four girls — named to the 41-strong B.C. team.

The other Islanders chosen were Tom Michell (Mercuries), Brian Blamey (Mercuries,, Phil Olson (Nanaimo), Steve Champion (Victoria Track Club), Don Tilley (VTC), Cheryl Blevins (Mercuries), Joanne Calverley (Nanaimo), Kathy Welch (Mercuries) and Bev Cox (Vancouver Olympic Club).

Page raced to victory in the 100 metres Saturday in 10.6 seconds and completed the sprint double by winning the 200 metres in 21.7 Sunday.

Griffin took the junior men's 1,500 metres Saturday in three minutes, 53.5 seconds and added the 800 metres in 1:54.6 Sunday.

Michell was twice nipped at the tape and finished a close second in both the 200 and 400 metres.

Miss Cox, a Victoria girl who runs for the Vancouver Olympic Club, was edged by Pam Medland of Vancouver Norwesters in the 400-metre final on the first day but came back strongly the second day to nip her rival in the 800 metres in 2:08.9. Miss Medland was second and her time of 2:09.3 is a new Canadian midget record.

Miss Calverley of Nanaimo's Olympic Track Club was second to Simon Fraser University's Mandy Klepic in the shot put but won the discus Sunday with a throw of 38.46 metres.

One of the highlights of the meet was a toss of 58.28 metres (191 feet, 2 inches) in the junior men's hammer throw. Officials are submitting it as a new Canadian junior record as a throw of 194 feet by Victoria Track Club's Murray Keating hasn't been recognized.

Keating, making a comeback after a back injury which kept him out of Canada's team at the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, New Zealand, threw the hammer 62.14 metres (203 feet, 10 inches) in winning the senior men's event Sunday.

The event was one of several senior men's and women's and bantam boys' and girls' events included to fill out the junior program.

Results are on page 15.

Hayles Holds Boxing Crown

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuter) — Percy Hayles of Jamaica retained his Commonwealth lightweight boxing crown Saturday night when he outpointed New Zealand's Manoel Santos in 15 rounds.

Hayles, making the fourth defence of the title he won from Love Allotey of Ghana in July, 1968, took the verdict by a unanimous decision.

CITY GIRL COMES OUT OF HOSPITAL TO WIN

Special to the Times

SEATTLE—Diana Rose, 15-year-old high jumper with Victoria Track Club, survived a trip to the hospital on the weekend to win the international high jump at the Hi-Yu Summer Games track and field meet at West Seattle Stadium.

Diana picked up a sliver in her leg while sitting on a bench in the stadium and had to be taken to hospital, where the leg was frozen and the sliver removed. With an extra day to recover, Miss Rose came back Sunday to win her event with a jump of 5 feet, 5 inches.

She was second in her age class high jump.

Other Victoria Track Club athletes fared well in the meet, which attracted competitors from the Pacific Northwest along with a touring age-class team from Braunschweig, Germany.

Dale Baptiste of VTC won the international men's 100 metres in 11.3 seconds and was third in the boys' 15-16 100 and 200 metres. Peter Bryant, 12, won the 100 metres in 11.9 seconds, a personal best, and was second over 200 metres. Dusan Wilson, 14, took the shot put while Vince Cullen was first in the 13-year-old shot put and Brian Alexander was second.

Harold Willers won the 15-year-old 100 metres.

Nick Bennett, 13, took a first in the long jump and was third in the high jump while Adrienne Mason, 11, was second in the shot. Brent Fougner also took a second in the senior triple jump.

Laurie Sawyer, 9, was a double winner, taking the high jump at 3 feet, 10 inches and the long jump at 3.45 metres. Don Barber, 9, was second over 100 and 200 metres and fourth in the long jump while Stan Hurton, 8, was third in the 200 and fifth in the long jump. It was the first meet for young Barber and Hurton.

Kevin Kendall of Victoria Mercuries won the 800 metres for 14-15-year-olds in 2:05, was second in the 1,500 metres and third in the international 800. Clubmate Blair Boland was third in the 14-15 800 metres.

Paul Veerkamp of Mercuries was third in the 200 metres.

Victoria Flying "Y" got a first when Jonathan Smith won the 1,500 metres for boys 12 and 13 in 4:14.7. Louise Herlinveau of Flying "Y" was third in the 12-13 girls' high jump at 4 feet, 11 inches.

Other Flying "Y" placings in age class events went to Brian Youell, second in the 10-11 200 metres in 29.0; Neil Antolin, second in the 10-11 high jump at 4 feet, 2 inches; Judy Tobacco, second in the 12-13 400 metres in 51.3, and Colleen Martin, third in the 12-13 100 metres in 13.1.

In international events Sunday, Sharon Laturnus of Flying "Y" took the women's 800 metres in 2:31.4 while Smith was fourth in the 1,500 metres in 4:16.0.

Barrow Takes Trans-National

EUGENE, Ore. — Barbara Barrow of Chula Vista, Calif., defeated Janet Engesser of New Jersey to win the 44th annual women's Trans-National golf championship here Saturday.

New Referee Steps Into Football Feud

By The Associated Press

There's a new referee in the 29-day-old National Football League Players Association (NFLPA) strike.

In the first step toward renewing collective bargaining Tuesday, W. J. Usery, top labor mediator in the United States, asked the NFLPA to meet him at 4 p.m. EDT today at his office in Washington.

He requested a session with Theodore Kheel, chief counsel for the 26 team owners, Tuesday morning and then across-the-table bargaining between negotiators for the NFLPA and the NFL Management Council Tuesday afternoon.

If Usery's efforts are successful, it will be the first meeting of the warring parties since talks collapsed last Monday after owners walked out the day before.

Contract negotiations began March 16 when veteran players submitted 90 demands, later condensed to 63. After 10 fruitless sessions, talks broke off and the 1,200-member NFLPA struck July 1, picketing training camps as they opened for rookies and free agents.

And only three veterans were available for the Hall of Fame game in Canton, Ohio, Saturday between Buffalo Bills and St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cardinals won 21-13 before a crwod of 17,286 in muggy, 87-degree heat.

The NFL Management Council said that as of Sunday night 209 veterans—57 of whom were starters last year—had reported to their teams, leaving about 1,000 members of the NFLPA still on strike.

The most notable crossovers Sunday were quarterback Craig Morton and wide receiver Golden Richards of Dallas Cowboys; quarterback Ken Anderson and receivers Chip Myers and Bruce Coslet of Cincinnati Bengals; quarterback Pat Sullivan of Atlanta Falcons, and linebacker Bill Bergey of Philadelphia Eagles.

LIONS LOSE HEAD COACH

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Don McCafferty, head coach of Detroit Lions, died Sunday after suffering a heart attack while working in his yard.

McCafferty, 53, in his second year as head coach in Detroit, collapsed outside his home in nearby West Bloomfield Hills. Dr. Joseph Kessler, a neighbor, gave him cardiac massage in an effort to revive him.

A spokesman for the National Football League team said McCafferty has been in apparent good health since taking over as head coach at Detroit in January, 1973.

The 6-foot-5 250-pound former Ohio State fullback also had served as head coach of Baltimore Colts. He joined the Colts in 1959 as an assistant to head coach Weeb Ewbank, and succeeded Don Shula at the Baltimore helm in 1970.

In Baltimore, McCafferty led the Colts to a Super Bowl victory over Dallas Cowboys in the 1970 season. In 1972, he balked at orders from the front office to bench quarterback Johnny Unitas and was fired after five games, with the Colts' mark at 1-4.

In his first season as coach in Detroit, the team ended out of the playoff money with a 6-7-1 record.

His death came one day after the Lions' first intersquad scrimmage, conducted Saturday with rookies only, as most veterans continued to observe the players' Association strike.

McCafferty's record in his first two seasons with Baltimore was 21-6-1.

He was the 12th head coach in the history of the Lions, and his appointment marked the first time since 1948 that the club had selected a head coach from outside its own ranks.

Boston's Park Spells Trouble for New York

By The Associated Press

New York Yankees lost to Boston Red Sox Sunday for the 10th straight time in Boston's Fenway Park and also the 19th time in their last 20 American League baseball meetings.

This time, a gallant pitching performance by Bill Lee provided the Red Sox with an 8-3 victory. After some early trouble, Lee set down the last 13 Yankee hitters in order.

The Yankees came into Boston just one game behind the Red Sox in the American League East race and now find themselves three games down.

In Sunday's other American League games, Milwaukee Brewers blanked Baltimore Orioles 4-0, Minnesota Twins beat California Angels 5-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second 12-9, Detroit Tigers trimmed Cleveland Indians 6-3, Oakland A's took two games from Chicago White Sox, 7-2 and 3-2 and Texas Rangers topped Kansas City Royals 6-4.

In Saturday's games, Cleveland edged Detroit 3-2, Minnesota downed Oakland 6-1, Chicago dropped Texas 9-5, Milwaukee beat Baltimore 5-3, Boston shaded New York 5-4 and Kansas City tripped California 6-3.

In the National League Sunday, New York Mets beat Montreal Expos 4-1, Pittsburgh Pirates downed Philadelphia Phillies 4-3, St. Louis Cardinals shaded Chicago Cubs 5-4, Cincinnati Reds bombed San Diego Padres 14-1 and, in a pair of 10-inning games, Atlanta Braves edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 and Houston Astros tripped San Francisco Giants 3-2.

Saturday, St. Louis edged Chicago 3-2, Philadelphia swept Pittsburgh 6-5 and 7-4, Cincinnati dropped San diego 5-2, Atlanta humbled Los Angeles 10-0, New York defeated Montreal 8-5 and Houston drubbed San Francisco 11-3.

The Red Sox broke a 3-3 tie with two runs in the sixth inning one on a bases-loaded walk to Bernie Carbo and the other on Cecil Cooper's single.

Rick Miller opened Boston's winning rally with a walk and went to third on a single by Rico Petrocelli. The Red Sox filled the bases on Yastrzemski's fielder's choice ground ball.

Los Angeles relief ace Mike Marshall lost his second straight game with a wild throw to second base that gave the Braves their winning run and cut the Dodgers' shrinking West Division lead to just 3½ games over the charging Reds.

Joe Morgan hit a home run in the third inning and opened an error-aided five-run fifth with the first of four consecutive walks for a run in the Reds' rout of the Padres.

Montreal's Ernie McAnally opened the eighth by walking John Milner. Rusty Staub forced Milner, then Ed Kranepool singled and Boswell doubled down the left field line.

John Montague replaced McAnally and walked Don Hahn to load the bases before Martinez bounced a single over a drawn-in infield for a pair of insurance runs.

The Expos got a run in the second on Mike Jorgensen's double and Bob Bailey's single, but the Mets tied it in the bottom of the inning when Kranepool walked and Boswell and Martinez singled.

Foli grabbed Jerry Grote's liner and threw to Ron Fairly (left). Seventh-inning double play failed to aid Expos, who dropped a 4-1 National League decision Sunday. (AP Wirephoto).

Canucks Buy Left Winger

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks have purchased Bob Hurlburt from San Diego Gulls of the now-defunct Western Hockey League. Hurlburt, five-foot-eleven and 185 pounds, is a left winger who played junior hockey with Kitchener Rangers of the Ontario Hockey Association. He was picked up as a free agent by Philadelphia in 1970 and played in Quebec and Richmond before moving to San Diego.

Too Much Bull

Pitcher Mike Bull hurled a one-hitter and drove in two runs to lead Esquimalt-Victoria West to a 9-0 win over Lake Hill Sunday in the final of the Greater Victoria Little League district baseball championship at Allenby Park.

The two-run homer by Mike Bitten capped a five-run spree in the third inning.

Lake Hill battled to the final through the losers' bracket by blanking Gordon Head 3-0 behind Charlie Burnham's no-hitter Saturday night.

Esquimalt-Vic West went through the six-team, double-loss elemination tournament undefeated and now goes on to the B.C. Little League championship, which starts Saturday at Lambrick Park.

REVENGE HURTS HOSTS

Vancouver Capilanos found their revenge when it hurt Victoria Carnarvon the most.

Beaten 10-3 by Carnarvon and pitcher Dave More on Friday and shunted into the losers' bracket, Capilano bounced back at the weekend to take top honors in an invitational Pony League "rookie" baseball tournament at Carnarvon Park.

Caps started their comeback by beating Burien of Washington 7-1 and then stopping previously unbeaten Carnarvon 13-1 Saturday.

Capilano tagged More with the loss in the 4-3 victory over the Victoria squad in Sunday's showdown game.

Gorge Leaves It to Mabee

Bob Mabee came up with a solid two-way performance Sunday to lead Gorge Hotel to a two-game sweep over Greaves Movers at Lambrick Park.

In the first game of the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League doubleheader, Mabee struck out six batters and walked two on his way to a four hitter. Then he won his own ball game when he singled to left field to bat in the winning run in the seventh inning as Gorge snatched a 1-0 decision.

Rick Cook, who struck out eight in his three-hitter, was the winning pitcher in the nightcap but Mabee again stole the spotlight when he cracked two doubles as Gorge won 2-1.

Firefighters' Foes Are Seeing Double

Everything went "two by two" for Victoria Firefighters as the host team marched into the winners' bracket final at the British Columbia Senior (16-18) Babe Ruth baseball championship Sunday.

It started with Terry Painter's pitching. He fired a two-hitter to help defeat Selkirk Selects 2-1.

Back-to-back doubles by rightfielder George Lomas and first baseman Doug Irving produced Victoria's first run in the first inning.

Another double by catcher Danny Rogers set up the run that beat Selkirk. Rogers rode home with the winner on Lomas' sixth-inning single.

Kamloops which had received a first-round bye, relied on Randy Weins' arm and Mark Bregoliss' bat to make it into the winner's final. Weins scattered four hits to blank North Vancouver 2-0.

Bregoliss banged out a triple in the second inning to score both Kamloops' runs and set up tonight's crucial meeting with Victoria. The teams meet in the winners' final starting at 8:30.

Two of the seven starters in the double-knockout tournament fell by the wayside Sunday.

The first to go was Vancouver's Victoria Drive. Beaten 3-0 by Firefighters and the one-hit pitching of Wayne Krimmer, Victoria Drive suffered its second straight loss when blanked 4-0 by Nanaimo's Bruce Wilgress Sunday evening.

Mid-Island All-Stars, composed of players from Duncan, Ladysmith and Cowichan areas, also were eliminated Sunday. Mid-Island bowed 2-1 to Selkirk despite a two-hit pitching performance by Doug Lafleur.

Last Two B.C. Berths Settled

Current City champion Ted Davies and former champ Roger Skillings will get the only two berths reserved for Vancouver Island players in the 64-player main draw for the men's singles event in the B.C. Open tennis tournament.

Davies and Skillings emerged as the two top players after an eight-player round-robin tournament played on the weekend on Dr. Bob Houston's private tennis court.

Davies of Oak Bay Tennis Club beat clubmates John Nichol 6-1, 7-5, Marty Taylor 6-1, 7-5 and Bob Hutton 6-3, 6-3 to win Group 1. Nichol, who beat Taylor 6-0, 6-3 and got past Hutton 6-1, 6-4, was the group runner-up. Hutton won by default over Taylor.

Skillings, who is unattached, had a tougher time winning Group 2. He was beaten 6-0 in the first set by Oak Bay's Tony Simnet but recovered for a 7-5, 6-3 victory. Skillings then beat Neil Coutts of Courtenay 6-2, 6-1 and Geoff Harris of Courtenay 6-1, 6-1.

Group 2 runner-up was Simnett, who downed Coutts 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 and Harris 6-2, 3-6, 7-6. Coutts beat Harris 6-0, 1-6, 6-4.

The B.C. Open, now one of seven tournaments on the Western Satellite Circuit, runs Aug. 5 to 10 at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

Heat Trims Westwood Race Field

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — Ken Copeland of Trail and co-driver Bob Beauchemin of Kamloops won a $5,000 four-hour pro endurance road race Sunday at Westwood Circuit in a smooth-running Chevron B 8.

The winning pair crossed the finish line after 175 laps on the 1.8-mile circuit about 350 miles. Temperatures in the mid-90s played havoc with the 24 starters and only 13 cars completed the race.

Second place went to Bob Brown of North Vancouver and co-driver Gerry Gordon of Vancouver in a Datsun 240-Z, three laps behind the winning car.

Gary Worobec of North Vancouver and Ray Robinson of Vancouver came third in a Lotus 47GT. Andy Barcheck of Bremerton, and Syd Olsen of Portland were forth, also in a Datsun 240 Z.

Aussie Girls Take Trophy

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Vancouver Green and Louie and the Australian nationals split a women's softball doubleheader Sunday as the Australian team was awarded the Trans-Pacific trophy, a new award the countries will compete for annually.

Triumphant Bates Held All Answers

YAKIMA — Victoria Bates manager Joe Patterson had a ready-made answer for customs when he explained why his senior men's softball team was bringing a six-foot trophy into Canada.

"The team's just starting to round into peak form," was Patterson's explanation for holding "the biggest trophy I've ever seen."

Bates also had the other answers to hitting, pitching and fielding at the weekend in posting four straight victories to win the annual Apple Valley Festival tournament. They proved to be as hot as the weather that pushed the mercury to 105 degrees on Sunday.

Bates opened with a 6-3 victory over Spokane and then downed Yakima Oles 6-0 Saturday. Dave Ruthowsk's two-hit, 9-0 victory over Longview Boondox carried Bates into the tournament final and Victoria wrapped it up with an embarrassing 13-1 romp over Seattle Petchel on Sunday.

It was Bates' third tournament victory, including one here in May. In the process, Victoria committed only two errors in the four games, banged out 42 hits (including four homers), scored 34 runs and held opposition to 20 hits and four runs.

Stan Kern tossed two of the victories to earn the tournament's top pitcher award while outfielder Reg Underwood was named the most valuable player. Underwood also won MVP honors in the Apple Classic in May.

Patterson's particular delight at the weekend was Victoria's convincing victory over Longview, a rival in the Pacific Northwest International Fastball League.

Ruthowsky held the hard-hitting Longview team to two hits while a two-run homer by Holness and a grand-slam shot by Harvey Stevenson put Bates' offense into high gear.

Champs Trounce Vicettes

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Green and Louie, the defending Canadian champions, have claimed the British Columbia senior women's softball championship for a second straight year.

The powerful Vancouver team walloped Victoria CJVI Vicettes 17-5 Saturday to top the three-team, double-knockout provincial "A" tournament at South Hill Park. Green and Louie will defend their national title in Edmonton next month.

Vicettes, who dropped a 2-0 verdict to Green and Louie on Friday, bounced back Saturday to defeat Vancouver totem Mercury 4-0 behind Rosemary Fuller's two-hit pitching to earn a second chance at the champions.

Donna Blackstock topped the hitters in the tournament with four hits in eight trips to the plate.

Tie Ends Tour

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — British Lions drew 13-13 with South Africa in the fourth and last rugby union test here Saturday. The Lions led 10-6 at half-time.

The Lions won the first three tests.

Win Posted By Hunters

Rick Sylvester scored three goals to lead Saanich Hunter Construction to an 11-7 victory over Vancouver Junior Burrards in the B.C. Junior "B" lacrosse game Sunday at Pearkes Arena.

Kerry Lewis and Jim McCreesh each added two goals for the winners.

Jam Ahead of Sooke Requires Extra Days

Sooke Merchants are fourth and in the final playoff position but "who's first?" is the question that Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League teams will have to answer in their "catchup week."

A busy seven-game weekend sealed fourth place for Sooke despite a double loss to Port Angeles Telecable Saturday, 4-2 and 3-2. Sooke's position was firmed when fifth-place Mike's Sport Shop bowed 5-3 to Century Inn and eliminated a dealock possibility.

But Sunday's five results left first place up in the air with Seaboard Construction, Century Inn and Port Angeles in a virtual deadlock.

The schedule ran out Sunday but four unsettled games, all involving Century Inn, will be played in order to decide the first three positions. Century's unfinished commitments in a 30-game schedule include two tie games and two postponements. All are to be made up this week, starting with a game against Royal Oak at Central Park tonight.

Despite a 7-2 loss to Seaboard, Century holds first place on a percentage basis. However, Seaboard, which also defeated Labatts 9-2, and Port Angeles are a half game ahead of Century Inn.

Port Angeles added to the confusion by scoring a 9-7 and 13-0 sweep over Royal Oak. Port Angeles wound up its schedule by winning 10 of its last 11 games.

Baker Plays With Injury And Boosts Macs to Win

Burly Norm Baker was supposed to have been out of action "for some considerable time" after badly splitting a finger in a lacrosse game.

But Norm couldn't stay away.

With his hand bound and wearing a special glove, Baker was back on the floor at Esquimalt Sports Centre Sunday night helping Victoria McDonalds nip Richmond Roadrunners 11-10.

Baker, who scored two goals, played a great game. McDonalds' general manager Bob Reid said he doubted if the Bakers could have won without him.

It was a vital win, too, lifting McDonalds out of a second-place tiee with the Roadrunners in the Pacific Junior "A" Lacrosse League.

Richmond had pulled into the tie Saturday night, coming from behind for a 14-13 victory over Surrey Salmonbellies.

More than 1,100 fans were treated to a fine display at Esquimalt as the Bakers played their best game of the season. They led 5-4 after the first period and 9-8 after two periods. It wasn't until 4:54 of the third period, when they made it 10-8, that McDonalds had a two-goal lead.

Kevin Alexander, the league-leading scorer, got three goals and the other Victoria scorers were Bob Cool, Gord Neilson, Ken King, Bill Marechek, Rick Sage and Dan Ranger.

Rico Bellucci made it his second three-goal night in a row for the Roadrunners while Brian Tasker and Ray Durante scored two goals each. The other Richmond scorers were Tom Penway, Arnie Bye and Ron Pinder.

The Bakers got some tremendous goalkeeping from Esquimalt Teamsters Junior "B" player Alan Radley, who made 47 saves, including one on a rare penalty shot by Durante, considered one of the sharpest shooters in the league. John Lewis made 45 stops for Richmond.

BUTLERS GAIN FINALS

Esquimalt Butler Lafarge wrapped up a berth in the British Columbia bantam lacrosse championships in Coquitlam Aug. 9-10 by defeating Royal Oak Sporting Goods 11-8 at Carnarvon Park on Saturday.

Brent Denat, Bill Barber, Ron Westwood, Max Extrum and Russ Kennedy each scored twice for Esquimalt.

The Esquimalt bantams also are scheduled to play in Edmonton's Klondike Days tournament Aug. 31-Sept. 10.

Wilfong Wielding Hot Stick

By The Canadian Press

As far as Rochester Griffins are concerned, Dave Wilfong's scoring streak came at the right time.

The Griffins, battling for first place with Philadelphia Wings in the National Lacrosse League, took the lead Saturday night with a 16-11 win over Montreal Quebecois before 2,325 fans.

Wilfong scored five goals, giving him 14 in his last three games, as the Griffins won their 17th contest of the season compared with eight defeats and a tie. They now have 35 points, one more than Philadelphia.

In another game, Maryland Arrows tightened their hold on fourth place with a 21-16 triumph over Toronto Tomahawks, who have lost seven in a row. That game attracted 5,212 fans in Landover, Md.

Montreal remained third with 38 points, two more than Maryland and six ahead of Toronto. Syracuse Stingers are last with 21 points.

Cruickshank Dubious About Pro Box la Here

Western Lacrosse Association commissioner Colin Cruickshank has returned from a trip to Toronto impressed with the new pro National Lacrosse League but convinced the WLA can carry on here.

President Chris Randall of the Victoria Shamrocks voiced alarm at a press conference last Tuesday at the rate key players were leaving the west to play pro lacrosse in the east and said the club doubted that the WLA would be able to continue, unless its clubs went pro.

Cruickshank, however, felt there was only a slight chance of a professional league starting up next season on the Pacific Coast.

The commissioner said he believed the WLA would be able to continue next season but warned that the calibre of play would not be as high because of the loss of players to the pro league. He estimated that more than 30 WLA and coastal junior players would accept NLL offers next season.

"Interest is high (in pro lacrosse). I was impressed with the professional way they ran their operation and I think they can succeed," Cruickshank said.

Cruickshank's main purpose was to meet with NLL president Spencer Lyons and directors Jim Bishop and Morley Kells and discuss compensation to WLA clubs for players taken. Agreement was reached and, although no figure was announced, the clubs expect to get about $500 per player.

Cruickshank also ironed out the difficulties over the staging of this year's Mann Cup when he met with Canadian Lacrosse Association officials.

Randall announced last Tuesday that the WLA would not compete in this year's national final if the CLA insisted on a sudden-death meeting between the top WLA club and an Ontario Lacrosse Association all-star team at Vancouver's Pacific Coliseum.

The CLA has agreed to shift the one-game final, which is set for Sept. 5, to either Queen's Park Arena in New Westminster, if a mainland club represents the WLA, or Memorial Arena if the Shamrocks make the playoffs and go the whole way.

Money Mark In Jeopardy

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. — Jockey Laffit Pincay Jr. appears to be on his way to smashing the record of $4,093,492 in earnings he set last year, according to six-month statistics released by the Thoroughbred Racing Association.

The Panamanian rode mounts that earned $2,482,849 in the first half of this year and was far ahead of runnerup Angel Cordero, Jr., whose mounts brought in $1,937,155. Jorge Velasquez was third with $1,557,496.

SUSPENDED LINEMAN ISN'T 'JUST NIGGLING'

MONTREAL (CP) — Marv Levy, head coach and general manager of Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League, said Sunday suspended all-star offensive lineman Ed George will definitely not play in the team's next game here Wednesday against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Levy, who announced the suspension Friday after George skipped practice, said a meeting Sunday with lawyer Bob Leclerc, George's agent, failed to resolve the dispute.

"Most of the discussion centred on money," Levy said of the meeting, "but Ed wasn't there and nothing could be resolved until Mr. Leclerc gets back to him."

At a news conference following the Alouettes' practice, owner Sam Berger said he was first informed "about three weeks ago" by Leclerc that George wanted his contract renegotiated to include payment for two games added to the CFL Eastern Conference schedule.

Berger said Leclerc called him again a week ago, pressing the issue.

Berger said that when George signed a seven-year contract May 28, 1973, to play for the Alouettes it was common knowledge that the two games would be added to the Alouettes' schedule.

"I happen to know," Berger added, "that his salary was as high as any lineman on the North American continent.

"He told us he was happy here, that he wanted to live here and play the rest of his career here," Berger said.

"I thought when we signed the contract we gave him everything he wanted. There was no talk then of the 16-game schedule."

Berger said George's demands are not "just niggling, only a few dollars" and indicated his unwillingness to give in to the demands.

"If I was to settle with him, I'd have to do the same for everyone else on the team as well," Berger said. "On top of that, I'd be letting the whole league down too."

George, 27, has been with the Alouettes since 1970 when he helped the club to the Grey Cup.

The six-foot-five-inch, 265-pound George was runner-up to linebacker Ray Nettles of British Columbia Lions in voting for last year's lineman-of-the-year award in the CFL.

Kellar Lights Fire

HONOLULU (AP) — Mark Kellar ran for three touchdowns and caught passes from quarterback Virgil Carter for two others Sunday night, carrying Chicago Fire to a 53-29 World Football League triumph over the Hawaiians.

The rookie running back ran for scores of two, one and 14 yards, and hauled in passes of 15 and five yards for his other touchdowns before 12,608 fans.

The Fire, 4-0, scored on a four-play, 69-yard drive, capped by Kellar's two-yard burst with 13:15 left in the first quarter.

Kellar got two more touchdowns and then the Fire's wide receiver, Jack Dolbin, took a Carter pass for a 33-yard touchdown.

Defensive back Joe Womack intercepted two passes by Hawaiians' quarterback Norris Weese to set up Chicago touchdowns.

His one-handed theft at the Chicago seven-yard line set up the Fire's second touchdown. Womack stole another Weese pass in the third quarter at the Chicago 24 and returned it 50 yards.

Bob Wyatt capped a short drive with a four-yard run to put Chicago ahead 45-7.

The Hawaiians, 1-3, got two quick touchdowns late in the third quarter, including Grady Richardson's 10-yard run after recovering a blocked punt.

ROWERS TAKE 14th IN ROW

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Defending champion St. Catharines Rowing Club picked up five victories Sunday on the way to a 14th consecutive Royal Canadian Henley Regatta points title.

However, entries from the United States won the premier events on the closing program of the 92nd annual regatta.

A high-stroking group of heavyweight oarsmen from the U.S. national training camp in Dartmouth College at Hanover, N.H., took the championship eight by a length over the Ridley Graduate Boat Club of St. Catharines.

Sean Drea, who earlier this month won the diamond sculls at the English Henley, picked up the championship single for the Undine Boat Club of Philadelphia.

The American eight, expected to represent the U.S. at the September world rowing championships in Switzerland, led throughout the 2,000-metre event. But they had to be strong in the final stages to hold off Ridley.

The winning time was five minutes, 52.7 seconds, with Ridley 7.1 seconds off the pace and a deck in front of Philadelphia Vespers, rowing as a second U.S. national camp boat. Hamilton Leanders, junior winners Saturday, were open water back in fourth.

St. Catharines' five firsts which sewed up the Maple Leaf Trophy all came in senior lightweight events.

The host club took the senior 145-pound double, the senior 145-pound four and eight and the senior 155-pound four and eight.

St. Catharines' 329 points gave the defending champs a 190-point cushion over second-place Wyandotte, Mich., Boat Club which took the senior 135-pound eight Sunday. Then came New York with 127 points, 15 more than winless Charles River Rowing Club of Boston.

Drea, native of Ireland who will scull for that country in the world competition, knocked off defending champion Jim Dietz of the New York Athletic Club in winning the single.

However, Dietz combined with Larry Klecatsky, 34-year-old New York physician, to take the senior double, while Klecatsky added the senior 145 and 155-pound singles. Saturday, the two scullers split two 500-metre dash events and the day before were in New York's winning quadruple sculls entry.

Bisley Final Close

BISLEY, England (CP) — Canada finished well down the list Saturday at the Bisley rifle meeting, which featured a close contest in the Queen's Prize final.

The top Canadian, Ron Kay of Burlington, Ont., totalled 279 points, four behind the winner, but he wound up 31st in the order of merit.

Five Canadians qualified at the short ranges for places in the final, shot at 900 and 1,000 yards. At the end, there was a tie between four English competitors who scored 283 out of a possible 300.

The winner-after a double-tie shoot, the first time this has happened in about 50 years — was Frank Harriss of Britain.

Other Canadians in the final and their scores were : Jack Cramer of Port Coquitlam, 277; Joe Gibault of Victoria, 277; Gerry Ouellette of Windsor, Ont., 277; and Capt. E. J. Gaudet of Pembroke, Ont., 271.

'Caps Going Out Fighting

Times News Services

Vancouver Whitecaps, virtually eliminated from the North American Soccer League playoff race, proved Sunday they're not going out without a fight.

Whitecaps defeated Los Angeles Aztecs 3-1 before 8,024 fans at Vancouver's Empire Stadium and showed they can handle the game with their feet and fists.

Billy Stevenson of Whitecaps and Aztecs' Uri Banhoffer exchanged shoves and punches late in the game with Stevenson hurling Banhoffer to the ground in midfield.

It was Vancouver's Brian Budd, however, who was ejected from the game.

Budd, the statistical hero of the game with two goals and an assist, came storming to Stevenson's rescue when several of the Aztecs jumped him after his tussle with Banhoffer.

"He (Banhoffer) too a kick at Willy (Stevenson) and Willy turned around in a fit of temper," said Budd. "They (Aztecs) were doing things like that all through the game.

"They'd tramp across your toes with their cleats and then say 'excuse me.' The guy that was checking me would spit on my legs as I was running down the field."

The win avenged an earlier season 3-1 loss to the Western division-leading Aztecs. The victory, worth a maximum nine points for Whitecaps, still left them in last place with 67 points.

The Aztecs finally beat Greg Weber, making his first start in goal this season, just seconds after Budd's goal. Billy MacMillan scored it on a header into an open net.

In other Sunday games, San Jose downed St. Louis 2-0 and New York edged Toronto 3-2 while on Saturday Washington dumped Baltimore 6-0 and Dallas blanked Denver 4-0.

Victoria Cyclist Second

VANCOUVER (CP) — A veteran Toronto cyclist was named over-all individual and track champion Sunday at the conclusion of the Canadian Cycling Championships.

Jocelyn Lovell took three races in the three-day event at the China Creek banked Velodrome.

He posted a five-minute, 11.02 second time in the men's 4,000-metre individual pursuit, while Roy Fondse of Winnipeg placed second and Brian Keast of Vancouver third.

In the 1,000-metre springs, Lovell covered the last 200 metres in 12.37 seconds, the only distance timed in the event. Ed McRae of Vancouver cycled to a second-place finish and Andre Simark of Quebec City was third.

Lovell finished the senior 1,000-metre men's time trials in 1:11.01, followed by Jeff Reid of Winnipeg, and Frank Ludtke of Vancouver.

Fondse completed the 10-mile scratch in 21:21.31, followed by Tom Morris of Victoria and Chris Hollingshead of Toronto.

In the women's 1,000-metre spring, Cindy Voight of Toronto was the winner in 14.02 over the last 200 metres, the only distance timed in the event. Judy Dietiker of Ottawa came second and Margaret Hanson, also of Ottawa third.

In the 1,000-metre time trials, the top two positions were reversed as Dietiker finished first in 1:22.07 and Voight was second. Handon placed third. Dietiker was also declared winner in the 3,000-metre individual pursuit for women after a minor accident in the last 1,000 metres.

In the 4,000-metre team pursuit, the British Columbia team of Paul Enoch, John Allbright and Doug Forsayeth, all of Vancouver, and Bill Wild of Port Moody placed first in 4:57.02. Quebec was second and Ontario third.

A meet official said Sunday Canadian Cycling Association officials will pick the members of the National Team which will compete in the world championships next month in Montreal from the results of this meet.

Aussie Came to Play And Ended Up on Top

Nineteen-year-old Australian Alan Lowe had only been in Canada two weeks — but he felt like a game of cricket.

So Thursday night Alan phoned Victoria and District Cricket Association president Fred Maurice, who introduced him to Oak Bay Club officials. And Maurice suggested the young Aussie might like to "try his hand" in the annual single-wicket competition at Cowichan Sunday.

Alan accepted the challenge and went right through the field of 32 cricketers to the final where he was beaten by Dave Shaw of Castaways.

In the final, Shaw scored a brisk 33 runs and then had Lowe caught by Ray Telford of Nanaimo in the first over after making four runs.

Shaw batted five times and made 111 runs on his way to the title while Martin, who made 91 in four rounds, was the next highest scorer.

In the single-wicket event, each player bowls three overs against an opponent and then they swap roles.

On Saturday, Castaways, Oak Bay and Nanaimo scored victories in the first round of the annual Knockout Cup competition.

Castaways beat Cowichan by seven wickets, Oak Bay downed Incogs by five wickets and Nanaimo defeated Alcos by 27 runs.

The semi-finals are set for Aug. 25 when Nanaimo plays Oak Bay and Castaways take on defending-champion Albion, which had a first-round bye.

CASTAWAYS, 100 for three (Alan Rees 41 not out and three for 40, Dave Shaw 27, David Auld 20 and two for 11) defeated COWICHAN, 99 for eight (Howard Martin 35, Tim Lord two for 32) by seven wickets.

OAK BAY, 70 for five (Eric Richards 22, Ken Aziz 21, Kortwright Richards four for 32) defeated INCOGS, 69 all out (Ken Taylor 26) by five wickets.

NANAIMO, 118 for eight (Ray Telford 53, Ian Smith five for 48) defeated ALCOS, 91 all out (John Moss 35, Bob McKay three for 42) by 27 runs.

WORLD RECORD CRICKET STAND

LONDON — West Indians Rohan Kanhai and John Jameson set a world record second-wicket stand Saturday of 465 runs playing for Warwickshire against Gloucestershire in the English County cricket championship.

The previous record of 455 was set by Indians K. V. Bhandarkar and B. B. Nimbalkar at Poona in the 1948-49 season.

The Warwickshire innings closed at 465 for one with Kanhai unbeaten on 213 and James not out 240. They were together for five hours and 12 minutes.

England's batsmen, meanwhile, have a formidable task in chasing the 282 they need for victory against Pakistan in the first test of the current series.

Saturday at Headingley, England closed the third day's play with 38 for two wickets — it was Sarfraz Nawaz who snapped up the wickets of David Lloyd and Dennis Amiss in the 75 minutes that England batted before the close.

With two days left, England's batsmen, who crumbled in the first innings, appeared to have little chance in getting the 282.

Pakistan closed its second innings with a score of 179.

Close-of-play scores in Sunday's league matches:

Lancashire beat Gloucestershire by 70 runs. Lancashire 176 for seven; Gloucestershire 106 for seven.

Warwickshire beat Worcestershire by four wickets. Worcestershire 160; Warwickshire 162 for six.

Hampshire beat Nottinghamshire by five wickets. Nottinghamshire 158 for seven; Hampshire 159 for five.

Kent beat Derbyshire by seven runs. Kent 202 for seven; Derbyshire 195 for nine.

Ruffian Finishes in Flurry

Times News Services

Jockey Jacinto Vasquez said Ruffian was "a little nervous going to the gate" prior to the start of Saturday's $104,480 Sorority Stakes at Monmouth Park in Oceanport, N.J.

In fact, the two-year-old filly broke more slowly than her three rivals. But she quickly moved alongside of Hot 'n Nasty and eventually won by 2¼ lengths in the six-furlong race.

Living up to her billing as one of the best two-year-old fillies in the United States, Ruffian set a stakes record of one minute and nine seconds on a fast track.

"I knew she wouldn't break too alertly," Vasquez said. "She was just the best horse."

The win added $62,688 to Ruffian's previous earnings of $38,325. She returned $2.60 in the win-only wagering.

Hot 'n Nasty was second, followed by Scream Across and Wee Bit of Irish.

At Aqueduct Park in New York, Canadian Ron Turcotte guided Jack Sprat to victory in one of two divisions of the $93,150 Lexington handicap for three year olds.

Hasty Tudor, a 32-to-1 outsider, won the other division. He ran 1 3-16 miles on the main grass course in 1:56 4-5 for a 2½-length win over R. Tom Can in the $46,450 race.

Jack Sprat had a time of 1:56 2-5 and came from next-to-last place to beat Kim Run by two lengths in the $46,700 first division.

The longshot players in a crowd of 37,636 who bet on Hasty Tudor had to sweat out a claim of foul by R. Tom Can's jockey before the result became official.

Filly First Two-Time Winner

ASCOT (Reuter) — Nelson Bunker Hunt's filly Dahlia became the first horse to win the rich King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Stakes twice when she cruised to an easy victory Saturday.

Taking the lead early in the 12-furlong race, the French-trained horse smoothly raced to a two-and-one-half-length win to repeat her victory of last year for her American owner.

The four-year-old's triumph, which earned a purse of £81,240 ($194,980), highlighted a great day for her jockey, English maestro Lester Piggott. It was the third leg of a Piggott treble which raised his total of winners in Britain to 3001, making him only the third jockey to top the 3000 mark.

Rugby Tour Erupts In Brawls

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — Jim Challoner, coach of the touring British Rugby League team, was quoted today as saying he thought an inquiry should be held into the refereeing of Saturday's brawling first rugby test against New Zealand.

"We will accept no more games during the tour with (John) Percival as referee," he told the New Zealand Herald.

At one stage of the game five British players threatened to walk off the field to protest the refereeing of Percival, who is from New Zealand.

The match, in which the British team was defeated 13-5, was the topic of conversation among administrators, newspapers and the public.

The Sunday News described the game as "a bloody match," saying brawls between the two forward packs put previous fisticuff incidents in the novice class.

The paper said that although the British were far from innocent they gave the crowd what it came to see — professional football under atrocious conditions.

New Zealand coach Geordie Menzies said: "I gave instructions that we were not to start fighting but if hit they were to biff back hard. That's what we did."

Percival, in a statement to the Herald, described the match as "the most disgraceful international I have ever controlled."

Smith Blows Engine, Wade Wins It All

Al Smith blew an engine and a chance for his fifth straight stock car main event win Saturday night at Western Speedway, but Al Wade won just about everything in sight.

Wade began the evening by logging the fastest time trial, followed it with a victory in the fast heat, then capped the night by winning the 60-lap Roy White Memorial Race.

A crowd of 2,120 attended.

He fought off a challenge by Ray Vatcher in the feature, winning by a length after starting from the middle of the 20-car field and taking the lead from Dean Cramb on lap 11. Wade and Vatcher lapped the entire field at least once.

The victory, worth double points boosted Wade to third place from fifth in the driver points standings.

Dixie 500 Cakewalk

MOTORCYCLIST KILLED IN BAJA

ENSENADA, Mexico (AP) — "In all my years of racing I've never known anything like this," said Parnelli Jones.

The former Indianapolis 500 winner spoke slowly as he talked about the collision that took the life of a vacationing motorcycle rider during the Baja International 400-mile off-road race through Baja, California.

A couple of hours after the field of 350 racers began leaving the starting line, Jones was driving his Ford Bronco about 80 miles an hour on a narrow road about 40 miles east of Ensenada, where the event started and ended.

As he roared over a blind hill he collided head-on with a motorcyclist travelling against traffic on the race course.

Andretti Climbs

Times News Services

Mario Andretti Sunday won the Formula 5,000 road race on the four-mile Road America course at Elkhart Lake, Wis.

Andretti finished eight-tenths of a second in front of Englishman Brian Redman in the 25-lap, 100-mile feature race, and the points put him into a tie with Redman in the Formula 5,000 standings. Both have 50 points.

Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla., driving his Porsche the full 200 miles without a pit stop, edged Warren Agor's Camaro by less than a second Saturday to win the Trans-American road race crown at Elkhart Lake.

Tom Klausler of Palatine, Ill., meanwhile, led all the way Sunday through the streets of St. John's, Nfld., to win the sixth race in the Player's Challenge series.

Driving his Lola T-360, he jumped into the lead at the start over Craig Hill of Mississauga, Ont. and was never challenged. He eventually lapped everyone in the 77-mile race.

Gesture Draws Boos

SASKATOON (CP) — Jean Caujolle of France regained his composure in the third set Sunday to capture a 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 victory over countryman Eric Deblicker in the men's singles final of the Prairie Open Tennis Championships, marred by a rude gesture in the men's doubles final.

Caujolle whipped Dale Power of Toronto 6-2, 6-3 Saturday in one semi-final while Deblicker outlasted Tony Bardsley of Vancouver 4-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Bardsley combined with Don McCormick, also of Vancouver, to defeat Dave Johnston of Vancouver and Chris Burr of Toronto 6-1, 7-6, in the doubles final.

Many in a crowd of about 700 booed the antics of McCormick and Bardsley, who made a rude gesture with one finger.

Stone broke through late in the third set for a 6-7, 6-1, 7-5 singles final victory Sunday over Jane O'Hara of Toronto after sharing a 6-1, 6-4 victory over Jarmella Horsky of Calgary and Barb Brankovska of Toronto Saturday.

Tennis Final Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harold Solomon, a Davis Cup player from Silver Spring, Md., and Argentina's Guillermo Vilas won semi-final matches Sunday and will meet today for the title in the $100,000, Washington Star-News international tennis tournament.

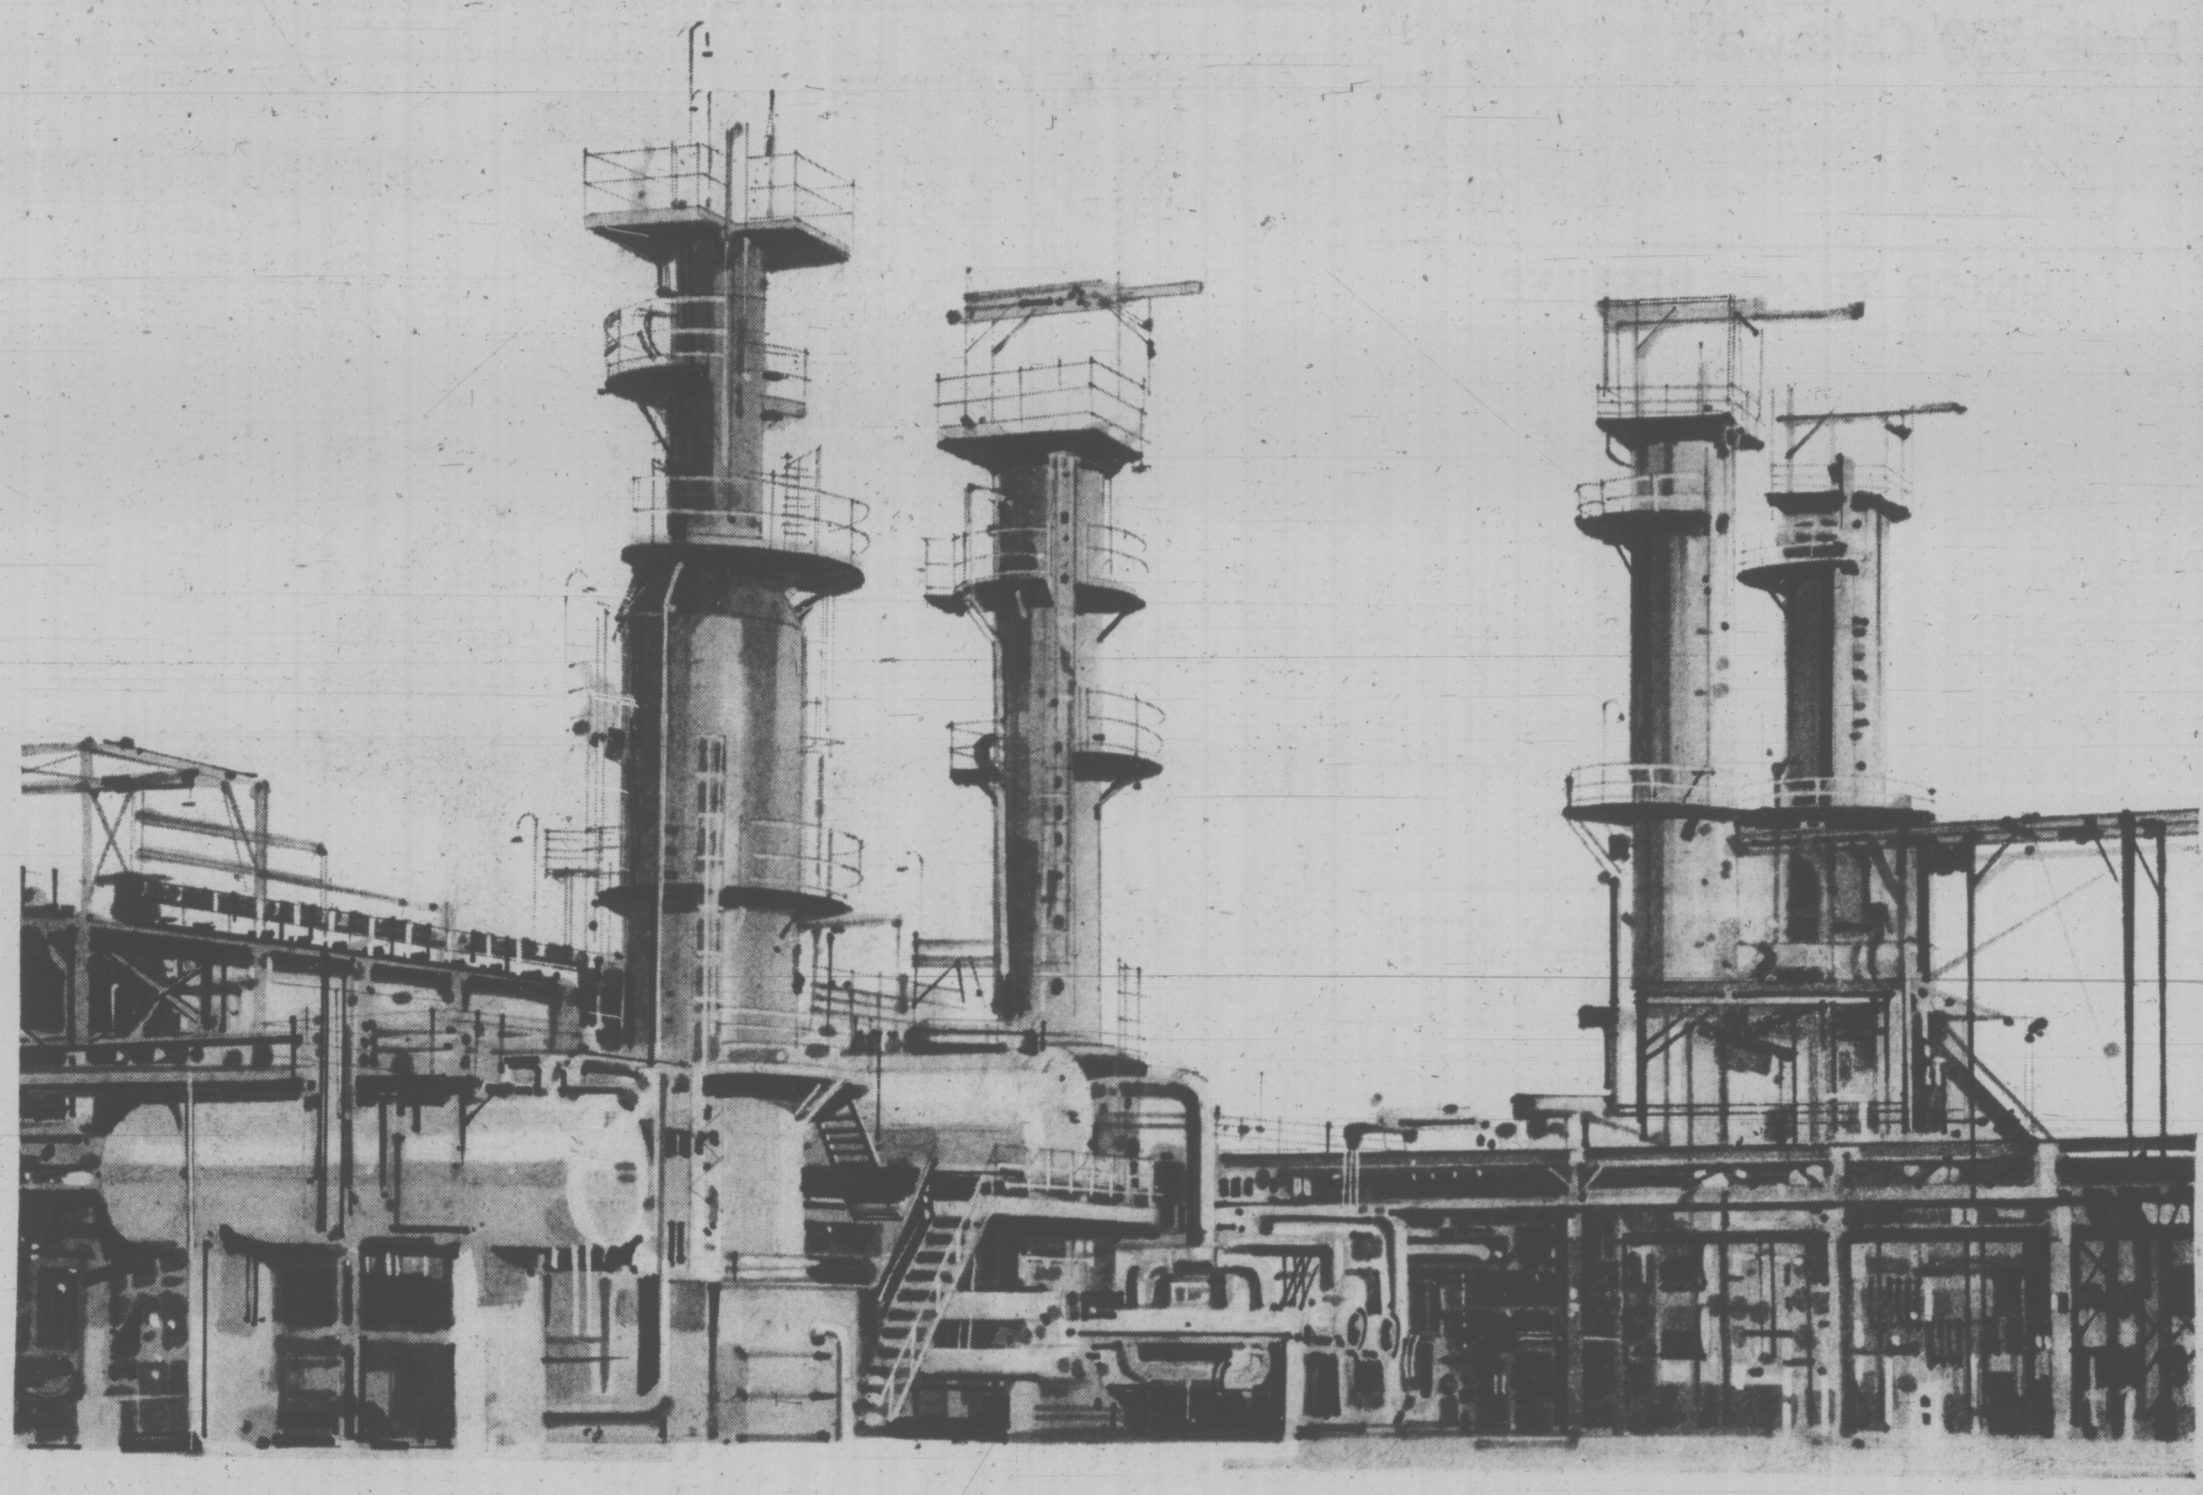
What has Canada's oil industry done for you?



How soon everyone forgets. Not many people remember that Canada was not a major oil producer until late in the 1940's. Before then, Canada produced some crude oil, but 90% of its needs were imported.

It took a search lasting more than 20 years—and well over 100 "dry holes"—before the discovery in Alberta of a new and important oil field in 1947.

That was 27 years ago. Since then the oil industry has grown by leaps and bounds. More than 70,000 wells have been drilled in Western Canada alone. 24,000 have produced crude oil. To process this, 40 modern refineries were built, over 18,000 miles of pipe lines laid, and hundreds of millions of dollars spent for the storage terminals, tankers, trucks, rail cars and service stations needed to create a fully effective oil industry.

To serve you.

Canadians enjoy today a very significant benefit from these industry accomplishments. You are in an enviable situation with regard to crude oil production. The quantity produced in Canada equals your total needs! Canada is the only Western industrialized country so fortunate.

There are other benefits. The oil industry is a good employer. 275,000 men and women get their pay directly from the oil industry. Also, it is a good customer of other Canadian businesses—and the vast amounts spent annually on exploration and drilling equipment, ships, trucks, refining equipment and supplies of all kinds, make an important additional contribution to employment in Canada. The 35,000 service stations the industry has provided to serve you, all across Canada, is one of the best gasoline distribution systems in the world.

This amazing growth could not have been accomplished under any other system than that which we now have—private enterprise. Competition has made each member of the oil industry operate in the most efficient manner. Each company constantly improves its products and services. No other system, or form of governmental control, could have resulted in Canada achieving the enviable position of being self-sufficient.

And Tomorrow?

Yes, we must and do think and plan for the tomorrows to come. The oil industry has the will and desire and, above all, the experience to meet Canada's future petroleum energy requirements better than anyone else.

To do this requires some understanding on your part. Some sources would have you believe that "big oil" is bad—that we are "price gougers" and "rip-off" artists and that our profits are "too high".

Harsh words for responsible companies to swallow because they are simply not true. We wouldn't be in business long if we acted badly or treated you unfairly. We also wouldn't be in business long if we didn't make a profit. Clear-thinking people know that all industries, ours included, must have profit incentives sufficient to provide an adequate return on investments in order to finance developments to provide for your future needs.

Matrimony's Great Test: Too Much Togetherness

Due to what is, I trust, a temporary case of the vapors I have been doing most of these little pieces for the paper from home, limiting my office visits to a ceremonial weekly pilgrimage, and at least two of my editors are of the opinion that it bodes ill for my marriage.

The notion that excessive marital togetherness may be a fast route to the divorce court is, of course, not without some basis. I daresay that a daily eight-hours at his desk is a good thing for a husband and perhaps even gooder for a wife. I know, myself, that there's no conversation more rewarding than when a man arrives home after a day in his chains and can entertain his lady with a complete character assassination of his office buddies.

My thoughts on this subject might be filed and forgotten under the heading of purely personal trivia, but it occurs to me now that they may have some value to couples nearing retirement and facing the hideous prospect of being together all the time.

I bring some raw experience to it, since I spent some 18 years writing from home when I was doing columns for the Vancouver Sun. The difference then was that for at least three months of every year I was on some foreign assignment. This away-ness, or the prospect of it, kept my wife from going completely out of her mind.

Lousy though it may be I get awful moody doing my little chore at the typewriter, but in the moments of crisis when I was clearly unbearable there would always be a rescuing phone call to send me to some far-off corner of the earth and so we survived.

That salvation is a thing of the past now and, what's more, our children have left the nest so that we're entirely alone, under each other's feet all day and night, as bound together as Siamese Twins, and God only knows why we're not at each other's throats.

Yet I have come to the curious conclusion — and this is the Significant Observation for couples nearing retirement — that the real peril in a husband and wife being too close or having too constant a geographical proximity is not the danger of abrasiveness; but the risk of becoming over-compatible! (We are allowed two exclamation marks a year and that's my first.)

A study was made years ago on the incredible affinity developed by oxen who'd worked together for years, harnessed to the same heavy yoke. These animals developed such a subconscious, intuitive sensitivity to each other that they would walk exactly in step, turn or stop or back up together without any apparent communication and perform exactly alike even when un-yoked! (Well, there goes the second.)

Early signs of hostility, apparently not at all uncommon in oxen, as in humans, disappeared entirely, it was demonstrated, with the knowledge that it was less work for each beast if he toiled in perfect tandem. They adjusted to each other, in other words, for purely selfish motives.

It would be a dreadful, bovine marriage of convenience, you'll agree, that answered this description. Yet most couples who have been under the matrimonial yoke for a number of years may discover that they've developed responses and reactions that are all but mystically anticipative.

I have found, myself, that my wife and I may develop a frightening one-ness. Only last week I came down from my attic "office" to look at the mail. My wife was reading across the room. I brooded over the bills for a minute or two, looked at my wife and said, "Any time you say," and my wife said, "Would you like a little lunch?" Like those oxen, we'd just got so completely compatible that we were on the same wavelength. Communication, itself, had become unnecessary.

The problem, you see, is in adapting so much, in working out an arrangement that will provide the maximum comfort and serenity, that it might, in the end, degenerate into complete passiveness. That, of course, is fatal to the zest of any marriage since any sacrifice of individuality in any situation is a crime against humanity.

Having said this I don't know that I would apply it to older people in retirement and won't be altogether sure, I suppose, until that happens to us.

We've several older friends now in those circumstances. One couple in particular live almost entirely to themselves much of the time with every outward sign of complete happiness. The funny thing is, as they're the first to admit, that they'd a turbulent, uncertain marriage for the 40-odd years of his working career, but have come as close as possible now to blissful wedlock, without being downright nauseating, by total togetherness.

I guess it only proves that life and marriage are what you make them, as one oxen said to the other.

Expect Worst If on Unhappy Rollcall

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

You can expect the worst if your name appears on the RCMP Tourist Alert — a death in the family, a serious accident or illness at least.

Only compassionate cases qualify for this unhappy rollcall.

An uncle dies in Victoria. Next-of-kin are holidaying in the Fort St. John area. How are they contacted?

In the course of a summer day, there might be many such requests, and, consequently, there was little chance police, beset with other duties, would locate the person.

But it's different this summer since the RCMP started Tourist Alert.

Now, travellers sought by relatives — "compassionates to locate" in the police jargon — only have to listen to the radio or read the newspaper to learn they are needed back home.

"We've turned the ball around . . . instead of us looking for them, they're looking for us," says Cpl. Don MacIver, acting police community relations NCO in Victoria.

To date, more than 180 names have gone on the Tourist Alert list distributed daily by RCMP. Responses or "hits" have totalled more than 50.

The program, offered "strictly" as a public service with most provincial daily newspapers, including the Victoria Times, participating, got off to an auspicious start July 1.

The first "hit" was a man vacationing in Princeton who was astonished to hear his name over the local radio station at 9:05 a.m. Two minutes later he burst into the RCMP office.

"What did you guys want me for?" he cried.

The officer telexed the RCMP Crime Index Section in Vancouver which controls and co-ordinates the program throughout the province.

A death in the family.

"Gosh, thanks for letting me know," the man said and ran out.

The list is limited to eight names. The figure was arbitrarily set by a group of media people meeting in Prince George June 6.

When demand is high, names only run once.

The list goes to 117 locations, including radio stations, weeklies and bi-weeklies, tourist and visitor bureaus, park sites, the Bennett dam, B.C. ferry boats, as well as the Port Angeles and Anacortes ferries.

The idea of Tourist Alert originated in Saskatchewan last year. This spring a circular was sent out inquiring if police in the other western provinces would like to set up a program. A logo and general guidelines were prepared by the RCMP Research Division in Regina.

"We'll review the situation in October to see if any changes should be made for 1975," he says. The program ends Labor Day.

The results of this summer's program could have a more far-reaching impact.

"If it proves a success it could be the model for a national system," he says.

Clack Report May Prompt Second Look

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The Rod Clack report on the Inner Harbor is "not without some good suggestions", offers ideas that may prompt city council to reconsider certain plans but also gives the city grounds for grave concern.

Those were the initial reactions today of zoning committee chairman and acting mayor-for-the-day, Ald. Mike Young, in commenting on the waterfront planning report prepared by former Victoria planner Rod Clack.

The report was released last Friday by Resources Minister Bob Williams.

Young, who stressed he had not had an opportunity to read the report thoroughly said Clack's suggestions for making Wharf Street a pedestrian precinct and his obvious dislike of a total mall concept for Government Street "bear consideration" by council.

Even though the city administration was not committed to making Government a full mall, he said, the idea of malling the street at all would have to be questioned if a traffic ban on Wharf was to be considered.

"It's a fair question," Young said. "We opted for a mall on Government simply to avoid breaking up the inner core of the city with a heavily-used traffic route, and because a pedestrian walk around the periphery of the core is not as valuable as one through it.

"But I don't think it's practical to suggest closure of Wharf unless we're prepared to replace the laneage (traffic capacity) elsewhere . . . . in other words leave Government Street as it is."

Young said it was unfortunate that Clack, is assembling his report, had not considered it necessary to contact anyone at City Hall to acquaint himself with the background to the city's thinking on both general and specific aspects of waterfront planning.

He also voiced concern about the "political implications" of the document and its call for some kind of "broader authority" to oversee the development of the Inner Harbor.

"Will it be used as the justification (for the NDP government) to control the entire harbor and not just the frozen (Wharf Street) area?" he said.

"Does this mean some type of commission to cover the entire waterfront?"

Ald. Sam Bawlf, responsible for central-area planning, said the general planning principles enshrined in the Clack report have "all been said before" in numerous city planning studies, and endorsed as policy by city council.

"The province obviously thinks it has something new here but if it had taken the trouble to study various policies and proposals advanced by the city it would jealize that most of this was old hat," he said.

Bawlf admitted, however, that the report was "an excellent summary" of such points and from that point of view it would serve a useful purpose.

He disputed Clack's assertion that leaving Wharf as a traffic artery would tend to alienate the waterfront from its immediate hinterland.

Bawlf said the entire waterfront area could be made a vehicle-free precinct, but unless there were attractions and interest there to draw pedestrians it would be underused.

"Eaton's is the biggest people-place in town and pedestrians cross six lanes of traffic on Douglas to get to it," he added.

NEWSPRINT TO DARKEN

British Columbia newspapers will soon look a little darker because of a shortage of sulphur dioxide, the brightening agent for newsprint, a MacMillan Bloedel spokesman said today.

A strike at Cominco's plant has cut off the major source of sulphur dioxide for all newsprint producers.

MacMillan Bloedel has just started manufacturing the slightly-darker paper and all other firms are expected to do the same. At its worst, the newsprint would look no darker than that used in newspapers in 1954, the company said.

The Victoria Times will not be using the new, darker newsprint before September.

MacMillan Bloedel said the average reader would not notice much difference unless the Cominco strike lasted beyond September. If the strike is prolonged, a further drop in brightness might be needed. Pulp is the color of wood before sulphur dioxide is added. Some sulphur dioxide is available from U.S. sources.

Hospital Staffs Accept Pact

About 175 staff members at two former Victoria private hospitals have voted unanimous acceptance of a new contract which gives them "substantial" wage increases and longer vacations.

Bill Muir, Victoria representative for the Hospital Employees Union, said today the settlement will give members working at Glengarry and Mount Tolmie Hospitals wage increases ranging from $117 to $257 a month in two stages over the 18-month term of the contract. Both hospitals were bought by the provincial government.

Licensed practical nurses will be receiving $855 a month after a year's service, as part of what Muir termed a standard agreement in effect at more than 90 hospitals where the HEU represents employees.

Members will receive four weeks vacation after 12 months of service, an increase of one week.

Employees at Glengarry and Mount Tolmie earlier voted 87 per cent to be represented by the HEU rather than the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the HEU has been accused of raiding CUPE memberships.

But Muir said the employees came to the HEU seeking the change.

The HEU was able to reopen the CUPE contract covering the two hospitals, which did not expire until the end of this year. The new contract runs from July 1 to the end of 1975 and the wage hikes are effective July 1 and next Jan. 1.

The new contract, includes a cost-of-living clause and adjustments will be made this September and in March and September of next year.

Fernwood Pub Plan Opposed

A group calling itself the Fernwood Neighborhood Association, opposed to the idea of a neighborhood pub in the area, has called a public meeting for Tuesday evening to discuss the issue.

An association spokesman said today the meeting will be held at the Orange Hall, Fernwood and Balmoral, at 7:30 p.m. and the objective of the organization is to "defeat the proposed establishment of a pub in the Fernwood-Gladstone area."

Another community organization, the Fernwood Community Association, is spearheading a drive to open a neighborhood pub in the old Weston Bakeries building and launched an information campaign among local residents last week.

The opposition group spokesman said her group wants to "maintain the freedom of the area from liquor-drinking places."

Good Times Inc. Taps Eager Teens

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

"Will there be a store on Sidney Island? . . . an A & W maybe?"

"I brought two tents. But I think I forgot the thread. Think I'll need it?"

"Where is this place anyway?"

Those were a few of the queries from teenaged gung-ho campers gathered at the Government Wharf, the designated meeting place for a three-day camping trip to Sidney Island.

Seventeen-year-old Glen Marks has lived in Sidney "for years," but he'd never before been to the island — a quick 10-minute trip from the wharf by motorboat.

But the others were early too.

Sponsored by a teen group new to Sidney, called Good Times Inc., the eager entourage included three counsellors, program co-ordinator David Pettigrew, one chaperone and . . . only nine teens.

"We could have handled more than twice this number," said a concerned Pettigrew while scrutinizing parental permission slips for each of the youths.

"Kids just don't know what's going on," said Pettigrew.

"As long as I can remember, people have been crying that there's nothing organized for teens' recreation during the summer," said the 23-year-old York University student who's vacationing at home with his parents in Sidney.

So this summer Good Times opened Parklands school gymnasium and auditorium for teens' recreation Monday through Friday; the group has planned coffee house entertainment Friday evenings, and biking trips to the Gulf Islands, but no more than 25 have registered.

Department of human resources social worker Mona Herring got the project off the ground earlier this summer and activities started last week.

She says there's about 1,200 eligible teens in North Saanich, Sidney and Central Saanich who could be taking part.

Goal is to get youths from the 13 to 18 age group involved — "those that don't have cars.

David, Mona, and five project workers — all hired on a summer student employment program — have tacked up posters all over the peninsula advertising upcoming activities. They've even advertised in local newspapers and still . . . "I guess the only way to get kids out is to wait until word of mouth spreads.

"Kids sure don't read posters."

However, organizers are gaining on the publicity problem daily as numbers slowly increase.

And with the enthusiasm that registered on the faces of the campers as they piled into two motorboats for ferrying to an Island unknown, Good Times Inc. will have gained at least nine town criers, to stir up participants for this week's schedule of events.

Thief Gets Jewels, Cash In Oak Bay

About $8,000 in cash and jewelry was reported stolen from a house in Oak Bay overnight and one of its occupants saw a young person leaving the premises shortly after 5 a.m.

Mrs. Pearl Mui of 2081 Allenby St., said she had returned from work when a cousin told her she had just seen what appeared to be a young person leave by a patio door.

Among jewelry taken was a pendant and diamond rings. Mrs. Mui said she had insurance covering the house but did not know how much of the stolen goods would be covered.

Saanich Bans Open Burning

Saanich fire chief Harold Gains said today he is imposing an immediate prohibition on any open burning apart from properly screened incinerators where a permit has been issued.

Gains said rapidly drying conditions have sharply increased the fire hazard with outdoor burning and the department has already had to cope with two or three minor grass fires.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. C. ALVAREZ

In these days when television commercials tell us that we will not be popular if we have bad breath, I often receive letters from troubled persons who are convinced that their troubles are due to having bad breath.

All people occasionally have a temporary bad breath, if they have eaten some aromatic food such as garlic, onions or radishes. I have noticed a bad breath on some men who were smoking a mixture of strong Turkish tobacco. Decaying teeth can also cause unpleasant mouth odors, as can the taking of certain drugs. All these are temporary and can be corrected fairly easily.

A tip that I have always passed on to persons who worry about whether or not they have a bad breath is that they can find out by licking the back of their hand and then smelling the moist area.

The first thing I can say to the thousands of persons who think that they have a bad breath is that the chances are great that their breath is all right.

Curiously, the half dozen women who years ago came to me because they were sure they had a very bad breath did not have it. Neither I nor my secretaries, nurses, or laboratory workers could smell anything. As I talked with them, I found that their problem was not a bad breath — it was an overly-reactive nervous system and a tendency to get mistaken ideas about many things.

One time I was able to smell a very bad breath, but curiously, the patient did not consult me about that; she came to me for relief from what she called a paralyzed leg, but which I immediately saw was a hysterically cramped leg. She was in an agony of fear of me, and fear of what I would diagnose.

When I asked her whom she was punishing with her supposedly bad leg, she said she was very angry with her home doctor, who had greatly offended her. When I assured her that she could use her leg normally, she got up and walked comfortably; but her breath was so foul from her powerful emotion that for an hour after she left, my room reeked with the intensely unpleasant odor, and I could not use it until it had been well aired. What was remarkable was that the next day when, in a happy, friendly mood the woman came in to say goodbye, her breath was perfectly sweet.

In my many years of practice, I have found that the commonest cause of a really severe bad breath is a painful or strong emotion. The foul odor goes away as soon as the powerful emotion passes. I remember a woman who developed a foul breath when she was accidentally bitten by her healthy dog. The foul breath lasted until she found that she was not going to get rabies.

Another woman with normally sweet breath got a bad one whenever she was anxiously preparing dinner for guests. Years ago, I heard of a lovely woman whose great misfortune was that if a beau started to make love to her, she would promptly get a very bad breath.

Many a time when I have gone up to the podium to congratulate a brother physician on the fine address he had just given, I found that his breath, usually sweet, was foul — due to his emotional strain while talking.

I learned of the great influence of painful emotion in producing bad breath when I was a boy and went with my mother to the funeral of one of her close friends. There I noticed that the three principal mourners had a very bad breath. Later, when one day I went with my father to a court trial, I noticed an odor on the breath of the defending lawyer who had lost his temper over a ruling of the judge.

Air Pollution Ups Cancer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Skin cancer cases will increase dramatically if atmospheric pollution is allowed to continue, an American medical researcher has warned.

Dr. Frederick Urbach, director of the skin and cancer hospital at Temple University in Philadelphia, said emissions from high-flying aircraft will gradually destroy the ozone layer of the atmosphere, which helps protect the earth from the sun's ultraviolet rays.

Overexposure to ultraviolet rays is a major cause of skin cancer, said Urbach.

"As the ultraviolet level goes up, the incidence of skin cancer goes up."

Urbach, at the University of British Columbia here for the annual general meeting of the American Society for Photobiology, said research on the increase in ultraviolet rays is "extremely preliminary."

"We know that there is a potential problem, but we don't know the magnitude," he said.

Crisp St. Andrews Biscuits

By MARY MOORE

Marianne's English neighbor, Jane Levett, invited me for tea and served St. Andrews Biscuits.

These were a new little treat to me but when I returned home my English cousin Dee said "Oh yes St. Andrews Biscuits are delicious."

These are crisp biscuits that may remind you of the popular Dad's cookies or old fashioned Ragged Robins. They remain crisp after a week in the cookie box.

So we have Jane to thank for bringing them to my attention. This recipe makes forty-eight 2½" diameter cookies. These cookies are eggless and will be welcomed by the mothers who have children who are allergic to eggs. Makes 48 cookies.

ST. ANDREWS BISCUITS

½ c. margarine (4 oz.)
½ c. shortening (4 oz.)
⅞ c. white sugar (6 oz.)
3 tbsp. hot water
1 tbsp. honey or corn syrup
1 tsp. almond OR vanilla extract
1¼ c. rolled oats (4 oz.)
1 two-thirds c. all-purpose flour (8 oz.)
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt.

These are a cinch to make for you put the margarine, shortening, sugar, water, honey and extract into beater bowl and turn it on to medium speed. Then as you measure the remaining ingredients dump them directly into the bowl. By the time you are finished measuring the dough is mixed.

Spoon heaping teaspoon on to teflon or buttered cookie sheets (4). Flatten roughly with floured fork. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 10 minutes but be sure to watch them. Jane says they keep well if the family did not see you baking them. Forty-eight delicious all-purpose cookies.

FREE FOR THE ASKING

By HARRIET HART

What better use for a cool cupboard or a small boxroom which is protected from extreme temperatures, than turn it into a miniature wine cellar.

Although there are no strict rules regarding which type of wine should accompany any one dish, some wines complement the flavour of certain foods better than others.

The small illustrated 20-page booklet "The Art of Choosing Good Wines" tells you that light dishes require light wines and that dishes like stews or casseroles call for stronger ones.

The booklet suggests you serve a claret with roasts and grilled meat and a red flavourful wine with red meat (mutton, beef). For poultry it recommends a light red Bordeaux.

When it comes to cheese, soft cheeses (Brie, Camembert) should be accompanied by a robust red wine, whereas blue-vein cheeses are best with a light-bodied red wine. Semi-hard cheese (Gruyere, Edam) need either a dry white or a full-bodied red wine. Goat's milk cheese calls for a white, rose or red wine or any of the local wines produced in the same area as the cheese.

There is also a list of the best years for French wines. For example, 1968 was not particularly good for any of them, whereas 1969 was a banner year for all, except champagne.

Single copies can be obtained from: Foods from France, Box 177, Place Bonaventure, Montreal, Quebec H5H 1A7. Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

• the leisure craftsman

by Phyllis Fiarotta

Q. No one seems to have instructions for a project I'd like to try. The craft that I refer to calls for pressing sheets of wax paper and clear plastic wrap together with a hot iron, embedding small pressed flowers, etc., between them. It is also possible to use a sheet of paper with flowers to make attractive stationery. Do you have any information on the techniques of this craft?

Mrs. I. S. Knight

A. Clear plastic sheets will iron together if placed between two sheets of sturdy paper, such as typewriter paper. Use a medium hot iron. Anything placed between the two layers should be fairly flat. If it is flowers you wish to press, pound them flat between paper and then place on the plastic sheets.

the two layers should be fairiron. Anything placed between ly flat. If it is flowers you wish to press, pound them flat between paper and then place on the plascit sheets.

Wax paper is another story. Unless there is a very heavy coating of wax on the paper, it will have little if any sticking power when ironed with a hot iron. The trick is to add sufficient wax to bind the two sheets. Place the pounded flowers on a sheet of wax paper. Shave a bar of paraffin (canning wax) with a knife over the flower collage covering the entire surface with a light, even coating of wax. Place the second sheet over the first and place both between two sheets of paper. Iron with a hot iron.

To make stationery, replace the under sheet of wax paper with white paper and proceed above. For a more dramatic look, shave coloured crayons over the flowers in either of the above methods.

Complaints of Aged

DEAR ABBY: To "Had it with Mom," who visited her elderly mother only occasionally because Mom talked of nothing but illness, death and hardships — present and past.

Too bad we can't just consign all the contrary old folks to a gas chamber, so we won't have to bother with them!

Old people complain of "illness" because they are at that stage of their lives when their bodies (and minds) have begun to deteriorate.

Probably the most exciting thing that happened to Mom was her visit to the doctor's last week.

Old folks talk about "death" because they live at death's door. Their friends are dropping like flies, and death seems so near to them.

They speak of "hardships — present and past" because they are proud to have overcome the hardships of the past, and are trying to endure present hardships.

My own mother suffers from all the above. You see, I have memories of Mamma from when I was a child. Of the love, care, time and tenderness she gave me. What she taught me was more valuable than what I learned in college. There is not one single day that passes that I don't use some of the knowledge that Mamma imparted.

Someday I will be visiting Mamma's grave, as I do Daddy's now. I will then wish I could hear a few complaints or hard luck stories from her past.

If we are lucky, we, too, will grow old. Then we will pray that some living friend or relatives will come to visit us and patiently listen as we talk about the aches and pains of our minds, bodies and hearts. — Dianne

DEAR DIANNE: You're beautiful.

DEAR ABBY: I rarely miss your column and was highly amused by your advice to some misguided soul which states: "Relax, a sexagenarian is a person between 60 and 69 years of age. It inspired me to write the following:

A SEXagenarian I'm.
Though I'm told by my friends I don't show it.
As I've never committed that crime,
Why confess it? Then no one will know it.
God grant I be no "agenarian."
Though life then would be less complex.
"Agenarian?" He's no barbarian.
He's a sixty-year-old without sex. C.V.B.

DEAR ABBY: What can be done about a neighbor who comes over every day as soon as I come home from work at 3:45 p.m.? Her husband travels, so she stays for hours. I have no time for myself and absolutely no privacy. Sometimes I've had a hard day at the office and would like to lie down for an hour before I start preparing dinner, but I can't because she's here.

She brings her two preschool children along, which makes matters worse because she doesn't discipline them, and they run wild.

Otherwise she is a good neighbor and does a lot of little favors for me. I haven't wanted to say anything that might hurt her feelings, yet these poorly timed visits are getting to me. Any suggestions? — Weary.

DEAR WEARY: Yes. Tell her you sometimes like to lie down after work so please telephone before coming over. I don't know what "little favors" she does for you, but you're paying a big price for them. Is it worth your privacy? Think about it.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tues., July 30

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Travel and education are spotlighted. Your intellectual curiosity is stimulated. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. Write, advertise and publish. Refuse to be limited or painted into corner. Your potential is evident and you must recognize it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money, family, securities — these are emphasized. You deal with another Taurus — and a Libran. Concern with the occult, the hidden and obscured is shown. Dig deep. Reject the superficial. You can strike pay dirt if persistent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis is on how you face opposition. Means avoid panic, rush, juggling of figures. Be aware of public reactions, relations. Build bridges of goodwill. Mate, partner is very much in picture. Give logic equal time with emotions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Practicality is key. Means leave flights of fancy for another time. Improvement shown in security or financial picture. Another Cancer and a Capricorn could play significant roles. Relationship is intensified.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good lunar aspect coincides now with creative accomplishment, love, completion of important project. Personal magnetism is heightened. You win, sell, achieve. Be confident, dynamic. Find better way to advertise and distribute.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are rewarded for past efforts. You are more secure. What you planned — comes into being. What was an idea — materializes into viable concept. Accept responsibility in positive manner. Inconvenience is but temporary — you intensify a relationship which is beneficial.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Short trip, important message — these may be on agenda. Follow through on "inner feelings." Someone is trying to tell you something. If receptive, you learn. Aquarius, Leo persons could figure prominently.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may be persuaded to forget basic resolutions. Maintain sense of humor, but don't do anything to hurt yourself. Message will become increasingly clear. Forces tend to be scattered. Social activity accelerates. If you forget diet, you may be bothered by guilt feelings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You become more formidable in eyes of those who mean much to you. Means you are dealing from stronger position than in recent past. Know it and be confident. Emphasize personality, personal appearance. Imprint your own style.

CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You find ways of getting story behind the story. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. Be analytical. Refuse superficial explanations. You have right to truth in depth. If you persist, you get what you need. Go to it!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent is on desire, a need to be wanted — your feelings are reciprocated. Know it and be stronger within. Family situation will become more harmonious. Taurus, Libra persons are in picture. You receive meaningful compliment from one who means much to you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your ESP works overtime. You sense what is about to occur. Professional superior is impressed with your intuitive diagnosis. Have faith in your ability to climb, to make room for yourself at more elevated position. Prestige rises and you are rewarded.

Sour Cherry Cooks Well

By HILDA BEASTALL

Sour cherries are not a favorite with everyone, yet many homemakers find a treeful in a property recently acquired and do not know if they are an edible fruit or not.

Your sour cherry tree may be the variety Morello, which will remain a small, spreading tree desirable for shade and fruit in a small garden. The fruit is light pink with some yellow showing.

It is still sour, and never becomes sweet yet has uses in making wonderful cherry pie and cherry cake.

You must first deal with removing the pits. It can be done with a knife and a set of agile fingers but I know I would now invest in a cherry pitter for sour cherries. Sweet varieties are easier to pit by hand, but the pitter helps speed the job. It will help to have someone pitting while you prepare, measure and mix the other ingredients.

SOUR CHERRY CAKE

1 cup soft margarine
¾ cup (loose) demerara sugar
2 small eggs
¾ cup unbleached flour
¼ cup wholewheat flour
¼ cup wheat germ
2 tsp brewer's yeast powder
2 tsp (scant) baking powder
¼ tsp baking soda
½ tsp salt
Few gratings whole nutmeg
¼ cup skim milk powder
½ cup water
2 cups pitted sour cherries

In bowl, mix margarine and sugar; add eggs and beat with wooden spoon until creamy.

Measure all dry ingredients into sifter or another bowl. Add them alternately with water to the butter mixture. Stir until smooth, then add cherries, distributing them throughout the mixture.

Pour into a greased shallow cake pan about 6 by 12 inches. Bake at 350 degs. for 30 to 35 minutes or until a clean knife comes out clean from the centre of the cake.

This cake has a unique flavor with the demerara sugar and brewer's yeast both adding to the cherry flavor.

Sour Cherry Pie will bake at the same time as the cake, by giving the pie the highest heat spot in the oven.

SOUR CHERRY PIE

Pastry for 2-crusts:
2 cups unbleached flour
½ tsp salt
2 tbsp wheat germ
2 tsp Brewer's yeast powder
½ cup soft margarine
1 slightly beaten small egg
2 tbsp lemon juice and pulp
¼ cup cold water (approx.)

Mix dry ingredients; add soft margarine, egg and lemon, mixing and blending with wooden spoon or fork. Add water gradually, just enough to bind dough.

Divide into two. Roll pastry thin and line an 8-inch pie plate. Bake at 350 degs for 15 minutes. Cool to lukewarm.

CHERRY FILLING

½ cup sour cherries, pitted
½ cup demerara sugar
Juice and pulp of one lemon
4 tbsp unbleached flour.

Mix all together and fill the cooled pie crust. Roll out remainder of dough to fit over top of cherries. Seal edges and crimp with fork. Brush top with a little milk or soft margarine.

BUSY DABBING some protective oil on a newly-made wooden wheel built by wheelwright Norm Rose is three-year-old Scott Bennett of Scarborough, visiting Black Creek Pioneer Village in northwest Ontario.

Baby Born By Phone

TORONTO (CP) — A 24-year-old father delivered his premature daughter while the doctor gave step-by-step instructions over the telephone.

Bob Craig, supervisor in a Toronto plant, said he was wakened at 4:30 a.m. by his wife, Cathy, who complained of pains. He telephoned the doctor but the five-week premature baby was not waiting for a trip to the hospital.

MOTHER WAS A MAN

By E. T. McCLANAHAN

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI) — The "Mother of woman's Suffrage" was a man, says a university of Wyoming historian (male).

He calls "essentially a myth" the 1920 booklet by another historian (female) that credits Esther Hobart Morris as inspiring the first Suffrage Act in America, passed by Wyoming's first territorial legislature in 1869.

"The idea that a man could to this kind of thing didn't seem sensible to her, so she looked around to find out who did it," said professor T. A. Larson. "If you had to find somebody to pin the credit on, it would have to be Mrs. Morris. She was the only woman who had any public record."

Mrs. Morris was Wyoming's first female justice of the peace, serving in South Pass City. Larson gives her credit for courage for accepting the appointment, but said she served only eight and a half months and handled only 26 minor cases.

Not only does Larson dispute Mrs. Morris's reputation for promoting the first legislation giving woman the right to vote, but he says statues honoring her deliberately were carved to be flattering.

"When the bill was passed, she was over 50, weighed 180 pounds and had a rough face," he said. "They hired a sculptor in Utah who wanted to make her look pretty so he streamlined her."

Larson says former-Virginian William H. Bright is the "central neglected figure" in the story of woman's suffrage. Bright was the legislator who introduced the measure.

"A letter I've uncovered here says Mrs. Morris didn't even meet William Bright until after the bill was passed," said Larson in an interview. "She probably had nothing to do with it, judging by this letter. I do say she's a fine woman, but it's just a little unfortunate that she's given credit for things she never did."

Peace Restored to Meals

elizabeth forbes

Going through my files recently I came across some notes scribed almost 15 years ago and used as a short piece in one of my columns.

Looking at them again in the light of our present day rush, scurry and ulcer-forming lives, they appear to me to be worth a repeat.

They record a neat idea for the dinner hour, guaranteed to eliminate the habit of eating and running with a few grunts and grumbles as conversation pieces.

It's based on a true story centred — at the time I scribbled the notes — around a Victoria family, husband, wife and son.

Husband had been coming home dog-tired from his day's work; son was turning up frustrated in trying to keep his scholastic and his social life running smoothly.

Result — the wife, also more than a little fed up with her day, still had to smile and make bright conversation to keep even the grunts and grumbles from bogging down into stony silence.

I imagine it is the sort of thing that is happening right now in many families. But I wonder how many take time to look at the problem objectively — as that family did — and to come up with a solution.

They talked it over — mother, father and son — and faced squarely up to the fact that the dinner hour, instead of being a relaxed interlude, was merely a climax to all the frustrations and disappointments of the day.

Finally they hit on the idea that changed the picture completely.

It would be the duty of each one, in turn, to plan a dinner hour program; think of an interesting subject of conversation, completely devoid of frustrations, and to keep the ball rolling throughout the meal.

First week, it was quite a struggle, but all three had a good sense of humor and by the end of the sixth day, it began to take on the outlines of an interesting game.

At one sitting father told of a couple of visitors he had met in the course of his business day. At another son described a chemistry lesson where he had learned to make a strange liquid. And at still another mother spoke of a lecture she had attended on French Canada.

In each instance the subject was titilating enough to carry over the dinner hour.

At the end of a two-week trial, the menfork in that family couldn't get to the dinner table fast enough. And all three were beginning to look forward to the table talk as the most satisfying part of their day.

So satisfying they planned to keep the idea going around the calendar.

Today, of course, that son is a grown man and he could easily have a dinner table of his own.

Mother and father will perhaps have more leisure time to spend over a meal. They may even have forgotten that once they played a game that brought them much satisfaction and a wealth of good talk at the dinner hour.

Nevertheless, the idea did serve a purpose. It led this family to getting out reference books in order to decide a point in question. And, what's even more surprising, they were certain their food tasted better when they had something interesting to talk about during the meal.

So much better, my scribbled notes record, the husband even took time out from keen arguments with his son, to tell his wife she certainly was a good cook.

Is yours one of the homes where the evening meal has deteriorated into long silences, punctuated with grunts, grumbles and quick exodus from the table?

Fashion Dictators Return To 1950 Movie Themes

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — Women this fall should look like Lana Turner in those 1950 movies, says Paris. Back to the loose shift, the sack and the mannish tailored suit.

Twenty-two high fashion houses presented their fall-winter designs in a week of shows for international buyers and reporters.

The first shock is that the body has all but disappeared. Everything is fuller and longer with the female covered in billowing fabric from chin to midcalf to wrist.

Yves Saint Laurent brought back the dress in an explosion of mid chemises that could double as maternity outfits. They billow like curtains in the wind. Pierre Balmain's and Lanvin's swirling tent coats take enough fabric for two chilly people.

Voluminous capes abound. Newest are coocoon capes at the Pierre Cardin and Christian Dior salons, rounded like a 1920 barrel cape by designer Paul Poiret.

Paris apparently has no worries about higher prices of wool, according to the tent coats over cartwheel skirts and long belted jackets at the Jean Louis Scherrer show.

The wool-eating styles prompted France's new Secretary of State for Women's Affairs, Francoise Giroud, to call for women to boycott the long fashions because of the worldwide wool shortage and economic problems.

As a counterfoil to the "big droop" look of flowing skirts and blousy jackets, some designers tried the hard look of mannish suits with narrow, flat skirts.

Not since Rita Hayworth graced the silver screen have so many widened shoulders and wide lapels paraded in high fashion salons. Saint Laurent's winner was his black velvet tailored suit with a white scoop-necked blouse and white gardenia on the lapel.

And probably being knocked off for copies in Hong Kong is Dior's mannish suits with lingerie blouses of lace-edged ruffles to soften the tailored hardness. Nina Ricci's pin striped zooty jacket was right for George Raft to flip coins in.

One male fashion writer observed that the trouble with the new sacks and mannish suits is that the bodies filling them belong to toothpick-shaped mannequins instead of film queens with hourglass figures.

Not all the shifts in the collections were as wide as saint Laurent. Cardin's fell gently full from under the bust on down, and brought Cardin back as a designer of elegant, dramatic clothes after his space age years.

Ungaro's skinny shifts came in diagonal stripe and flower prints like Victorian wallpaper. Givenchy's chiffon sacks ended just below the knee for women who shudder at the thought of changing to midis. Andre courreges' classic white dress now is softened by tucks and short puffed sleeves and remains at the knee.

"The dress this is firmly back in power after years of exile. But trousers still share the throne, established at all houses as part of the wardrobe as is the coat. Pants just no longer replace dresses, you have to buy both.

Saint Laurent abandoned his sportswear look of trousers (or skirts) teamed with cardigan sweaters and instead showed pants with luxurious foxtrimmed long jackets. Ungaro gave up his usual sweater vests and Courreges abandoned his skinny white coats in favor of fur-lined short trench coats.

Evening pajamas were aplenty, including extra wide ones at Scherrer in splashy floral printed satins with wide Joan Crawford shoulders.

The 1974-75 winter look:

BUST: hidden by blousy tops.

WAIST: usually unbelted and loose.

HIPS: gone underneath full skirts.

HEMLINES: anything just so it covers the knee. Below the knee to the end of the calf for daytime, ankle to floor for evening with some below knee evening dresses. Only Courreges showed mid knee hemlines.

COATS: tents or belged fullness.

Saskatchewan Author Imparts His Wisdom

REGINA (CP) — An artist must see things with a once-in-a-lifetime freshness and draw on memory for his creations, says author W. O. Mitchell.

The author of Jake and the Kid told the Saskatchewan Reading Council an artist must continue "prospecting himself" throughout his life so he retains the memory and imparts it to his work.

A writer spends much of his time writing down observations, Mr. Mitchell said, describing it as "lifting off the top of his consciousness and putting it on paper."

When it comes to writing a story or novel, the writer digs out the sights and sounds and smells he has absorbed over the years, he added.

"These things lodge, and the trick of the writer is to lever out these bits of people, sensuous recollections, separate them from life and make them work for him."

As for the notes that writers scrawl before they tackle their stories or novels, they are sometimes published posthumously and this bothers Mr. Mitchell.

"I know they're fakes. I know they've been cooked and added to."

When writers' notebooks are published posthumously, they're too neatly packaged to be authentic, he said. A real writer's notebook, with its run-on sentences, bad punctuation and sometimes slipshod grammar, is "something that would have driven Miss Coldtart in Grade 6 composition class right up the wall. . . ."

Gonorrhea Near Wartime High

OTTAWA (CP) — Gonorrhea infections climbed close to an all-time high in Canada last year, the federal health department reported.

The infection rate during 1973 was 205.2 cases for every 100,000 persons, up substantially from 189.9 the previous year. The rate was 209.3 for every 100,000 in 1945, the last year of the Second World War and a time when veneral disease was considered to be rampant.

The department's annual report on veneral disease also reported a significant increase in syphilis, the disease which maims and kills in its late stages. The number of cases reported rose to 17 in every 100,000 persons from 14 the previous year.

"Unfortunately, the true incidence is probably much greater as both diseases remain vastly under-reported," said the report.

It noted that surveys conducted in the United States indicate that the number of persons treated for veneral disease actually is three to four times higher than the number reported.

The report says there were 45,330 reported cases of gonorrhea during 1973, about 4,000 more than in 1972. The total number of reported syphilis cases was 3,771 compared with 3,065 the previous year.

Syphilis had been thought to be under reasonable control but the report said the last two years show a decided increase in the number of cases. It found this discouraging "since treatment is both simple and effective."

However syphilis deaths were down to 41 in 1972, compared with more than 400 a year in the early 1940s.

The gonorrhea rate, however, has been climbing steadily since the late 1950s. The number of cases reported last year is double those reported six years ago.

John W. Davies, director of the department's epidemiology bureau, said in an interview that the only way to stop the increase in veneral disease is to avoid promiscuous sexual activity.

"I don't think we are going to see a tremendous change in these rates until there is more stability in life styles and approaches to sex."

The report says a vast upswing in holiday and business travel, a more permissive attitude toward sex and new contraceptives such as the birth-control pill and intrauterine devices are reasons for the increase in veneral disease.

Pills and devices used by females offer no protection against disease and may promote promiscuity by permitting more sexual contact, said the report.

KUWAIT REJECTS APPEAL

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Kuwait, one of the wealthiest oil-producing countries, has declined to contribute to a United Nations-sponsored emergency aid program for countries hard hit by swollen fuel prices.

"Kuwait, being dependent on a depletable source of income, has to endeavor to achieve development and growth ... Accordingly, Kuwait finds herself in a position that does not allow her to contribute to the special fund," declared a Kuwaiti note to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim released during the weekend.

It was the bluntest rejection so far made public of Waldheim's May 9 appeal in behalf of the emergency programs set up by a special session of the General Assembly.

The United States and several other countries have said they are studying the exact amount and nature of the contributions they expect to make.

More than $1 billion has been pledged so far, with most potential donors declaring the actual amount of their contributions would depend on how much the rest of the world gives through UN channels.

The largest pledges so far to the UN special fund or to UN assistance agencies are from Iran, the nine European Economic Community countries, The United Arab Emirates, Canada, Japan and Venezuela.

The latest announced contribution is from an Arab oil- and gas-producing country, Algeria, which took the initiative in calling the special Genaral Assembly session.

Algeria pledged $20 million, half of which it earmarked for the drought-stricken sub-Sahara countries near its own southern borders.

Mozambique Blacks Cheer Portugal's Freedom Vow

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — Black freedom fighters waving Russian AK-47 rifles climbed aboard trucks driven by white settlers and left their jungle hideouts to join weekend celebrations all over Mozambique's northern battle zones, press reports from the north said today.

The celebrations followed Portuguese President Antonio de Spinola's promise of freedom for the East Anglican colony after an 11-year guerrilla war.

At Tete, the northeastern Mozambique army headquarters long besieged by Mozambique Liberation Front (Frelimo) guerrillas, multiracial crowds lined a welcoming route into town for rebels.

In town, they ate and made merry, lectured on peace until nightfall and then drove back into the bush. Beira newspapers said Portuguese military officers joined the rebels at meals.

Spinola's Saturday broadcast promising full independence drew a sour response from some sections of the 200,000-member white minority. "They've sold us out," said a white taxi driver belonging to a militant white organization named Fico, meaning "I stay" in Portuguese.

The black majority celebrated quietly, with few street demonstrations.

Meanshile in Lisbob, Spinola's government began working out the details today of an historic plan to end five centuries of Portuguese rule in Africa.

"We are ready from now on to initiate the process of the transfer of power to the populations of Portugal's overseas territories," Spinola said in a major turnabout in Portugal's colonial policies.

Police Kill Armed Man

TORONTO (CP) — A 26-year-old man was shot and killed by police early Sunday after allegedly holding hostages and threatening a policeman with a gun.

Police said they received a call late Saturday night to a house where, they were told a man had fired a .45-calibre pistol and had left the house armed.

Police received a second call to another address where an armed man was said to be holding hostages. As police arrived, some of the hostages escaped through the back door.

Constable Douglas Diplock met a man armed with a .45-calibre pistol at the front door and the man pointed the gun at the officer's chest.

Police said the man's gun was loaded and cocked to fire.

One Driver In 12 Legally Impaired

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department says a cross-country survey taken this spring showed a large number of persons drinking and driving.

In releasing the preliminary results of the roadside traffic survey, Transport Minister Jean Marchand expressed concern about the drinking-driving problem in Canada.

The survey taken in eight provinces showed that about one-quarter of the 7,013 drivers interviewed had been drinking.

"Approximately one-third of these drivers had blood alcohol concentrations at or above the legal limit of .08 per cent," the statement said.

"This means that, in this night-time survey, about one in 12 drivers were legally impaired."

The interviews were conducted between 10 p.m. and 3 a.m. Wednesday through Saturday in nine weeks between April 17 and June 15.

Sixteen interviewers visited 500 urban and rural sites across the country to make the survey.

Ninety-three per cent of drivers interviewed agreed to answer a questionnaire and provide a breath sample. All information was collected anonymously and breath samples were taken to a central location for later analysis.

The investigators also found that few drivers were using seat belts.

DUST BOWL DAYS RETURN TO U.S.

By United Press International

Ranchers and farmers in the U.S. drought-parched midlands are praying for rain, though it's probably already too late to save billions of dollars in crops and livestock.

If their prayers aren't answered with lots of rain soon, the situation can only worsen, according to officials.

The drought of 1974 probably will mean climbing prices at the nation's supermarkets.

Administration hopes that bumper crops could drive down prices while keeping farmers happy are fast fading beneath the heat-cracked earth of the nation's richest farm and ranch country.

Conditions are approaching the critical stage as far east as Ohio.

Anthrax, a disease which accompanies drought, has been killing cattle from Texas to the Dakotas and crop-killing insect infestations have been reported through the same area.

"Without relief and an incentive for the farmers and ranchers to stay in business and keep that supply and demand partially balanced, we have yet to see what higher prices are really all about," warned E. L. Short, a rancher and representative in the Texas legislature.

Texas reported $2 billion in crop damage and Kansas $1 billion, with damage also severe in other sections of the drought area.

Firefly Lights Diagnostic Way

VANCOUVER (CP) — Scientists with the American space program say they have come up with a way to diagnose certain diseases more quickly.

The technique uses an enzyme extracted from firefly tails to detect bacteria in urine or spinal fluids. With it, bacteria can be detected and treated within 30 minutes. It now can take up to two or three days.

Emmett Chappelle and Dr. Grace Picciolo of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration detailed the process at the annual meeting of the American Society for Photobiology at the University of B.C., last week.

The technique was discovered as scientists worked on life-detection methods for NASA, which wanted some way of finding life on other planets.

Bacteria is detected by registering the amount of light emitted from the reaction between adenosine triphosphate, ATP, and luciferase, an enzyme derived from firefly tails.

ATP is used to store energy in all forms of life.

The process does not identify the bacteria — that has to be done the old-fashioned way — but it does identify the antibiotic that will best deal with it.

Bob Zimmerman, program manager for Biomerical applications at NASA, said the technique will help in the early detection of kidney disease and with such spine-related diseases as meningitis and encephalities.

"In the long term, we hope to be able to use it for any kind of infection that might be present in the body," he said. "One day we hope to be able to tell a patient which is the most effective antibiotic for his sore throat."

It will be about a year before the technique sees regular use in hospitals, said Zimmerman.

"It already being used on a research basis to get a clinical evaluation," he said.

Charges Stayed

HOPE (CP) — The Crown entered a stay of proceedings in provincial court Friday against three persons accused of helping two men escape from jail here July 16.

Randy Marshall, 24, Eva Sharpe, 23, and Valerie Seevers, 18, appeared in court Friday to hear the Crown's decision.

Prosecutor D. M. Vamplew of Chilliwack said later the charges were stayed because "as a result of an investigation we decided not to prosecute."

The trio and Ivan James Srebot, 24, were charged jointly with aiding Cecil Logan, 27, and Gordon Campbell, 29, to escape from the Hope RCMP lockup for the second time in 30 hours early July 16.

PRINTERS SIGN 11-YEAR PACT

NEW YORK (AP) — The printers union has approved an extraordinary 11-year contract with the New York Times and The Daily News, allowing the two newspapers to move ahead unimpeded toward automated typesetting.

The printers, members of Typographical Union No. 6 of the International Typographical Union voted 1,009 to 41 Sunday to accept the agreement reached late in May after more than a year of negotiations.

The new contract, which expires March 30, 1984, gives 1,400 regular printers and 385 full-time substitutes virtual life-time job security with bonuses and other incentives should they choose to retire or work elsewhere.

The contract provides for a three-per cent wage increase each March 31 and cost-of-living protection based on metropolitan-area statistics.

In return, publishers of the two newspapers will have no restrictions in introducing automated "cold type" and in determining the number of employees needed to operate it.

READY MIX WORKERS SIGN PACT

Twenty employees of Columbia Ready Mix, 860 Attree, returned to work today after agreeing to a new two-year contract providing a raise of $2.50 an hour on the previous wage rate of $5.61.

A spokesman for Teamsters Union Local 213 said the employees also gained an employer-paid dental plan, a $4 meal allowance after 10 hours work in a day and three weeks vacation after three years work instead of after four years.

The employees went on strike Tuesday and ratified the new agreement Friday night.

Grass Fire Bridge Threat

A grass fire near Esquimalt and Harbor Roads spread to a railway trestle Sunday afternoon but did not do enough damage to put the bridge out of service.

City deputy fire chief R. J. (Carl) Coates said today firemen took about two hours to extinguish the blaze.

Spectrum Bid Date Extended

The Greater Victoria School Board has extended to Aug. 9 at 4 p.m. the final date of tenders for Spectrum Community High school to allow more time for those submitting bids. Former deadline was 11 a.m. July 31.

Hooker Convention Not 'Just Academic'

SEATTLE — "I thought it was strictly an academic undertaking," said James Gordon as he turned away a hookers' convention from the Russian Centre.

But Margo St. James, founder of the Prostitutes' Union COYOTE, said Sunday another location has been found for the Northwest Regional Loose Women's Conference.

The convention's purpose was to inform the public about the treatment of prostitutes by police, she said.

About 500 persons were in and out of the hall during the evening, including some who appeared to be looking for the bingo game usually played in the building.

OSAKA, Japan — Lone yachtsman Hiroshi Aoki, 25 arrived here Sunday after a three-year, around-the-world voyage in a home-made 20-foot ketch.

FREELTON, Ont. — Judy Walden, a 20-year-old blonde from Laguna Beach, Calif., won the Miss Nude World contest Sunday in this community 20 miles northwest of Hamilton. Prizes include trips to Acapulco and Florida as well as gifts for runners-up.

MONTREAL — Funeral services will be held early this week for Ruben Francois, 29, a Montreal poet who set himself on fire July 4 at a downtown intersection. Francois, a native of Haiti, died Friday following third degree burns on 80 per cent of his body, a spokesman at Montreal General Hospital said Sunday night.

HAYWARD, Wis. — Ron Hartill of Sooke was declared all-round lumberjack Sunday at the conclusion of Hayward's international lumberjack tournament. The only record in the two-day event came Saturday, when Marvin Trudea of Squamish went up and down a 100-foot pole in 31.3 seconds.

GLASGOW, Scotland—A 19-year-old unmarried mother traded her baby boy for a used motorbike for her boyfriend, a child welfare official said today. James Gilligan said he made her give back the bike and take the baby home.

NAIROBI — Robert Kennedy Jr., 20, said today he was injured slightly when he slipped on some rocks while trying to sneak past a rogue elephant on the slopes of Mount Kenya. Kennedy damaged his knee during the incident. He was taken to a local doctor for treatment and hobbled around on crutches for part of the weekend.

WINNIPEG — Manitoba liberal leader Izzy Asper may be near political retirement after nearly four years of trying to replenish the provincial party's dwindling fortunes.

"I don't like politics and I make no bones about it . . . Politics is a con, a game, and I have to figure out whether I want to play it," he told a reporter.

RALEIGH, Miss. — Being eight inches off target cost Don Snyder his crown as the world's best tobacco spitter. Snyder lost the title to John Rullos of Raleigh, the one fellow in town who doesn't take the annual tobacco-spitting contest seriously. Tullos modestly claimed he won by virtue of "a lot of luck."

LOS ANGELES — "I've never been locked up, I've never taken a drink, I never hurt anyone, and I gave all my money away. So how come—I got this bum reputation?" George Raft was speaking about the knocks he has taken in the press and from the law during his career as a movie tough guy. Still dapper at 78 but slowed down by emphysema, he wonders why his screen reputation has been transferred to his private life.

WASHINGTON — Actress Gloria Swanson says the Internal Revenue service wrongly assessed her more than $14,400 in back taxes by disallowing business deductions and following a policy she says discriminates against unmarried taxpayers. In a petition filed last week in United States tax court, the 75-year-old film and stage star requested a jury trial on the tax case.

KUALA LUMPUR — British actor David Niven believes shock realism in films is just a fad and will vanish because "it's so awful." Niven, 64, in Malaysia on location for the film Paper Tiger, says the fad is a sign that the world is in the throes of nervous breakdown.

"It worries me to see what's going on all over the world. The phony politicians, why, they're the biggest hams in the world," he said.

BARD'S HANGUPS STILL PROBED

LONDON (Reuter) — William Shakespeare was not a homosexual.

But Martin Seymour-Smith, writing in the British Journal of Sexual Medicine, says Shakespeare was a heterosexual who "suddenly and to his own shock and surprise, found himself the victim of a homosexual passion."

Not only was Shakespeare prey to a homosexual passion but, says Seymour-Smith, judging from references in Sonnets 34 to 36, he actually succumbed to it.

"It is not possible to explain these sonnets except in the hypothesis that Shakespeare did on at least one and probably only one occasion, have some kind of physical relationship with his friend," he said.

"We can only guess at the nature of it."

The first edition of Shakespeare's love sonnets, issued in 1609, was dedicated by the publisher Thomas Thorpe, "to the onlie begetter of these insuing sonnets, Mr. W. H."

In 1964 Dr. Leslie Hotson, a Yale University Scholar noted for solving literary puzzles, declared that the mysterious "Mr. W. H." was William Hatcliffe, a handsome young man from a noted Lincolnshire farming family.

Two British Shakespeare authorities, Profs. A. L. Rowse and John Dover Wilson, have brought out books stating, respectively, that the inspiration for the sonnets was the young Earl of Southampton, and the young Earl of Pembroke.

NEW GRAIN POLICY SET

OTTAWA (FP) — The Canadian government's new feed grains policy will be implemented on schedule for the crop year starting August 1, 1974, Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Wheat Board and Agriculture Minister Gene Whelan announced jointly today.

They said, "we are extremely pleased with the steps that have been taken by the main operating agencies new policy into effect on schedule."

"The implementation of the new policy Aug. 1 represents a significant step toward developing a strong Canadian livestock and feed grain industry in Canada," said the ministers.

They said they were confident it would work in the interests of Canadian producers and consumers and lead to a "steady and balanced expansion of this essential sector across Canada."

The new policy outlined May 22 provides a national market for feed grains, assurance of supplies for the domestic market and prices established by the full interplay of supply and demand, they said.

It also provides a price guarantee to feed grain producers for commercial sales to the non-board market, coordination of transportation and stocks to meet domestic and export requirements and a special reserve stock of feed grains to be held at Thunder Bay.

There will be allocation of space in the primary elevator system to ensure orderly domestic and export movement with provision for the implementation of a delivery quota system by the Wheat Board if necessary. It will also provide a comprehensive information system for the domestic feed grain market, said the ministers.

Together... After 30 Years

A separation of more than 30 years ended in Edmonton when Nancy Stefiuk stepped off a CP Air flight from Toronto and was reunited with her husband, Alex.

Mrs. Stefiuk had been allowed to leave the Southern Ukraine with a 90-day tourist visa. Within hours of her arrival, she had made up her mind to remain in Canada.

"I do not want to die a serf," said the 54-year-old woman who had worked on a collective farm since her husband was captured by German forces in the second world war.

Married in 1935, the couple farmed near the Romanian border and had two daughters before Stefiuk was conscripted into the Soviet army, captured and put to work in German factories.

With the armistice, he emigrated to Canada, arriving in Alberta in 1949.

Big Cash Pinch In Impeachment

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — If President Nixon is removed from office, he may suffer acute financial embarrassment.

He would lose his salary of $200,000 a year, his $50,000 annual tax-free allowance, and would be ineligible for a $60,000-a-year pension for former presidents.

United States federal regulations provide that a former president is entitled to a $60,000 pension. But a footnote makes an exception in the case of a president whose service ends by removal from office through the impeachment process.

Government sources were unable to say immediately whether Nixon would have to give up the pension he earned as a naval officer, a congressman, and for eight years as vice-president.

Nixon, who has personal wealth estimated at about $1 million, is heavily in debt because of an adverse tax ruling. Moreover, he would have to pay personally for his defence in a Senate trial.

He agreed in April to pay $432,787 in back taxes assessed by the Internal Revenue Service. The agency disallowed a $576,000 tax deduction for a gift to the country of his vice-presidential papers in 1969, partly because the donation did not meet a legal deadline for such gifts.

Evidence before the House of Representatives judiciary committee, which has recommended his impeachment, disclosed that as of last month the president had left unpaid more than $148,000 in these back taxes.

He also has to pay a five-per-cent neglicence penalty amounting to $13,557 for the years 1970, 1971 and 1972.

The president also has sizable mortages outstanding on his properties in Key Biscayne, Fla., and San Clemente, Calif.

Meanwhile, U.S. District Court Chief Judge George Hart ha dismissed a lawsuit by two members of Congress, charging that President Nixon illegally and unconstitutionally used up to $3 million to improve his estates at Key Biscayne and San Clemente.

EXTORTIONIST'S $50,000 BLUFF

TORONTO (CP) — Police are discussing corporate security measures with large firms, hoping to avoid repetition of a successful extortion attempt Friday in which a man got $50,000 from a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Police said they are worried about more possible extortion attempts patterned after the incident in which a gunman bluffed a bank executive into thinking his wife and children, out of town on vacation, would be harmed if he did not turn over the money.

The gunman originally demanded $1 million. The executive, who has not been named by police, convinced the extortionist that $50,000 was as much as he could get without arousing suspicion.

The executive's family was never in danger, police said.

Police are also investigating links between Friday's extortion and a similar, unsolved incident in 1972, in which a Royal Bank manager in Waterloo, Ont., turned over $1 million in bank drafts to a man who held the bank official's wife and three-year-old daughter hostage.

Rocky Island Terrain Supports Yucca Plants

Yucca plants and their flowers in summer are useful as accents on large properties but have no place in the single lot city garden.

Regarded as a tropical by newcomers from colder parts of Canada, the yucca is also sometimes erroneously called a cactus.

In fact, yuccas belong to the huge Lily Family, Liliaceae, along with more than 200 other genera, including such unlikelies as ornamental and vegetable asparagus, hosta, the aspidistra, tulips; as well as the more likely genus Lilium which gives us the true lilies.

You will notice that some of these plants have a bulbous rootstock (lilies and tulips), others have fleshy roots (asparagus) and still others are thick and rhizomatous like the aspidistra and yucca.

Yuccas are not tropical plants but native to desert areas. They require gravelly, sandy soil but with a rich clay below. Desert areas have this, and frequently have underground springs and rivers from which the deeply penetrating roots bring up nutrients.

Native chiefly to Mexico and the southwest United States, a few yuccas are found in southeast U.S.A. and one or two are native to the West Indies.

That any will grow here on Vancouver Island is due to rocky terrain giving good drainage, and the generally mild winters. In our gardens we must give the plants an open sunny location with good drainage.

Never must manure or fertilizer be given to the soil nor must the soil be constantly soaked at the surface during summer.

The stiff, long sharply-pointed leaves must be kept in a "hard" condition to withstand the frosts of our northern climate, which they do very well. Only occasionally are yuccas killed by severe winter weather.

Old plants seldom succumb, though they do become a bit unsightly with age. Bare trunklike stems develop, needing annual clean-up of dead leaves which have the unfortunate habit of remaining attached.

It is the evergreen nature of the dagger-like leaves and the incredible spikes of fragrant waxy flowers which make yuccas so attractive to us in the north.

The thick, bud-crowded flower stems appear as early as April, if you know the signs. In a warm May and June, the stems grow rapidly, soon reaching a height of seven or eight feet above ground.

By early July, the exquisite flowers begin to open. Not everyone is aware of their beauty, for the most commonly grown yucca has hanging bells which need to be opened for inspection. Their fragrance is only noticeable in late evening and at night. It has a citrus-like quality.

The second most usually grown yucca here has blooms borne on side branching stems from the main flowers stem, and are wide open and held upward. This makes a more attractive plant.

In their native desert homes, yuccas have been used as a source of food and soap; the leaf fibres for basket making and shelter making by weaving palm leaves together with the fibres.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When one fails to fulfill a vulnerable slam contract he is most unhappy. And he is even more unhappy when the post-mortem analysis reveals that his defeat was strictly his own fault. The latter was the case in today's deal, which came up in a rubber-bridge game. Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

Opening lead: Queen of ♡.

After dummy's ace of hearts had won the opening lead, declarer led the boards's three of spades. When East put up the queen, South took the trick with his king. The ace of trumps followed, East discarding a heart. A heart was ruffed in dummy, after which declarer returned to his own hand via the diamond nine. South's remaining heart was next ruffed with dummy's last trump.

A low club was next led, South finessing his jack. West captured this trick with the king. He returned a heart, which South ruffed with his nine spot. In time, West's ten of trumps took the setting trick.

Declarer was too impulsive in his play. Perhaps "unthinking" would be more apropos. When East played the trump queen on the initial trump lead, declarer should have realized that the queen was, in all probability, a singleton; and, hence, that West's ten of trumps was a sure winner.

To retain control of the hand, declarer should have allowed the queen to capture the trick. East would have returned a club, which south would have won with his ace. A heart would then have been ruffed, after which South would have come back to his own via the trump jack. His remaining heart would next have been ruffed with the board's last trump.

A diamond would now be led to south's nine, after which he would cash the ace and king of trumps, picking up West's two remaining pieces. All of dummy's diamonds would then be cashed, South discarding his two remaining clubs on dummy's fourth and fifth diamonds.

TOT KILLS MAN

ADAIRVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Police said a three-year-old girl shot a man to death Saturday at the urging of a local cafe owner.

Police said Charlie Spaulding, 60, was in the cafe when the owner entered with the girl. Police said the cafe owner allegedly drew a pistol, handed it to the child and told her to shoot Spaulding.

Police said she shot once, killing Spaulding instantly. No motive for the shooting was immediately established.

Accidents Kill 8 In B.C.

Esquimalt police said the driver of the Land Rover, Paul Foster Nelson, 37, of 1821 Belmont, was uninjured.

And Blair Arthur Goulding, 24, of Duncan, died Saturday after the trail bike he was riding ran into a chain blocking a private logging road about seven miles north of Duncan.

Three Port Moody men were killed in Burnaby early Saturday in a two-car, head-on collision. They were identified as Samuel Hans Golz, 20, Andrew Brown, 18, and Gary Boyle, 21.

Dominico Antonio Papalia, 21, of Vancouver, was killed Saturday after his sports car struck a power pole in Vancouver.

A Surrey boy, Kenneth Smith, aged 5, was missing and presumed drowned Sunday after he fell off a pleasure craft in the south arm of the Fraser River off Richmond.

A Richmond man, Dennis George Gunsten, 24, was killed Friday evening when struck by a train as he walked along the Burlington Northern Railway tracks near White Rock.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Judge Edmond St. Jorre ordered Alan Devine, 23, of 1201 Lockley to pay the fine forthwith.

Prosecutor Bruce McConnan said drug officers entered a residence at 2916 Fifth Street at 3:15 a.m. Saturday and found one marijuana plant growing in a side window and 11 others in a greenhouse flourishing between two rows of raspberries.

Devine told police the plants were his.

In another drug matter, Henry John Krok, 32, was fined $75 after pleading guilty to possessing a small amount of marijuana when police searched him in the 700 block Market Friday night.

Krok, an American citizen from Denver, Col., asked St. Jorre not to deport him.

"That's up to immigration officials, not me," the judge replied.

Patricia Lim, 24, of 515 Linden, was fined $100 after pleading guilty to shoplifting a bottle of eye-glass cleaning solution from a downtown drug store Friday.

Arms Located

TEL AVIV (AFP) — Israeli police have uncovered about $400,000 worth of military equipment and arms since the middle East War last October. Informed sources said the arms were kept by individuals. Two days ago police arrested a number of young people alleged to be wearing uniform without authorization, the sources said.

Truant Taku Sighted Near City

Taku, the truant killer whale that gave federal fisheries researchers the slip almost a year ago, was sighted Saturday alive and well of Trial Island.

The bull whale was released at Pedder Bay last October but evaded his trackers when bleeps from a telemetric device fitted on his dorsal fin were blocked out by rock formations.

Named for the windy conditions that prevailed when he was released Taku had taken off on a fling for freedom and led researchers on a merry chase until they ran out of bleeps.

Dr. Michael Biggs of the department's biological station at Nanaimo said today the department had received no information about the bull whale until Saturday when he was sighted among a pod of 30 to 40 whales off the Island.

"We're one hundred per cent certain the bull sighted near Trial is Taku," he said, explaining positive identification had been made by nicks on Taku's dorsal fin and other markings.

Biggs said pictures taken of the whale Saturday showed no sign of the transmitter, designed to record movement of the whale for one month when it was supposed to drop off.

"We had hoped to be able to pick up the animal's whereabouts during that month, but lost him after only a half-day of tracking and we were curious to know what had happened."

Biggs described the experiment as a success. "We are happy the transmitter did come off and there were no negative effects to the animal, which was playing with a female and calf and otherwise behaving normally.

It also means the animal has stayed in the area."

Fisheries researchers "will be keeping an eye out" for the evasive Taku. Biggs said, although there are no plans to capture him for a transmitter re-test.

REACTION TO CLACK

In discussing the Rod Clack report on the future of Victoria's Inner Harbor, Victoria's two aldermen primarily concerned with planning today expressed both criticism of the report and some qualified approval.

Ald. Mike Young said Clack, the Ottawa planner, has some suggestions on malls that could lead city council to reconsider its Government Street mall project. And Ald Sam Bawlf said the report although "old hat" is also an "excellent summary" of city-endorsed principles on waterfront planning (see story Page 17.)

Land Sales Law Alters

All purchasers of land in B.C. will have to register their nationality with the land registry office, beginning Thursday when amendments to the land registry act come into effect.

The amendments will give the government an opportunity to find out how extensive is foreign ownership of B.C. land.

10% BONUS FOR ICBC

An interim 10 per cent cost-of-living bonus for the 1,500 government insurance corporation employees was on pay cheques for the first time last week.

The move, granted Insurance Corp. of B.C. staff retroactive to June 1 by the Labor Relations Board, quelled unrest stemming from the fact that some employees had been with ICBC more than a year without a raise while living costs jumped by about 16 per cent.

Employees were reported to have been ready to strike in support of a wage hike, but the move would have been illegal.

Insurance corporation employees have no union representation or contract with the government, although the LRB has ruled in favor of the corporation's position that a single union should represent all employees.

LRB Registrar R. F. Bone said in Vancouver today a second board decision forthcoming within a matter of days would determine which of two vying union organizations will be granted certification of ICBC staff.

They are the Office and Technical Employees Union and a joint group of B.C. Government Employees' Union and Canadian Union of Public Employees, which presented a bid under the name of the Association of ICBC Employees.

Connally Indicted

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Former United States treasury secretary John Connally was indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of bribery, perjury and obstructing justice.

He was charged with accepting $10,000 in bribes to influence the setting of support prices paid by the government to dairy products.

A Watergate grand jury also indicted Jake Jacobsen, a long-time Texas colleague of Connally's, on one count of making an illegal payment to a public official.

Connally thus became the fourth former member of President Nixon's cabinet to be indicted in connection with Watergate scandals and related investigations.

Connally has repeatedly denied as "rumors and lies" reports that he took money for his role in helping milk producers to change the administration's mind on supports. The industry pledged to raise $2 million for President Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972.

Cyprus Crisis Role Wanted By Russians

Times News Services

The Soviet Union moved today to play a role in settling the Cyprus crisis, complicating an explosive situation threatened by faltering peace talks and warnings of new violence.

The Russians called the third United Nations Security Council meeting in as many days today to push demands for unilateral UN action to enforce the ceasefire on Cyprus and restore the government of Archbishop Makarios.

Other UN delegates showed little enthusiasm for a new set of Soviet proposals, including sending a mission to Cyprus for on-the-spot supervision of the situation.

The other 14 members of the Security Council had only grudgingly complied with Soviet envoy Vasily S. Safronchuk's request for a council meeting Sunday night. The council took no action after two hours of debate but scheduled a new meeting for today to consider the Soviet proposals.

On Cyprus, Greek and Turkish Cypriots traded charges of atrocities and massacres. "We are checking them all, but we have no evidence to substantiate any so far," a UN truce official said.

A UN official on the island reported the week-old ceasefire holding, but a high Turkish official warned of possible military action to protect minority enclaves in Greek areas.

In Geneva the foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey and Britain agreed early today on a "provisional solution" to end the military confrontation on Cyprus. But the Turkish government balked, apparently at provisions concerning the Turkish invasion force on the Mediterranean island.

The Turkish cabinet met at dawn and discussed the proposal telephoned from Geneva for nearly three hours. Premier Bulent Ecevit said the Geneva negotiations "are in the final stage" and "if there is going to be an agreement, we will know today."

But he said his cabinet decided it will not even discuss the presence of Turkish armed forces on Cyprus and

More Canadians For UN Force

EDMONTON (CP) — Planeloads of commando troops that will raise to battalion strength Canada's peacekeeping contingent on Cyprus begin leaving today for the troubled Mediterranean island.

Military spokesmen at the Canadian Forces base near this western provincial capital said Sunday that a total of 450 troops, mainly from the Canadian Airborne Regiment stationed here, will be airlifted to Cyprus during the next eight days.

They will bring to 936 the number of Canadians in the United Nations force that is charged with the chore of keeping at arms length Greek and Turkish antagonists.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp admitted Sunday Canada's armed forces are "stretched" to meet the peacekeeping roles this country has undertaken.

However he said he had not heard any suggestion in cabinet that this country consider expanding the present forces.

The minister stirred up a strong reaction at the United Nations last week when he suggested more nations should be called on to share the burden of peace-keeping on Cyprus.

Several diplomats in New York interpreted the Canadian minister's remarks as support for Warsaw Pact countries including the Soviet Union to move into Cyprus as part of the UN force.

'Only Miracle' To Save Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill says "only a miracle" can prevent the full House of Representatives from voting to impeach President Nixon. Senate Republican whip Robert Byrd, however predicts Nixon would be acquitted if a Senate trial were held now.

The House is ready to impeach by a margin of about 70 votes, O'Neill said.

"I'd have to say that around 50 Republicans will vote to impeach him and I would say there will be 40 members of the Democratic Party who will not vote to impeach him. The difference would be somewhere around, I believe now, about 70 votes."

Only a majority vote of the 435 House members is necessary to impeach and send articles to the full Senate for trial.

A two-thirds vote in the Senate is required to convict and remove Nixon from office.

Nixon, however, his chief aide says, remains determined not to resign.

White House Chief-of-Staff Alexander Haig, asked Sunday if Nixon would step down rather than face a Senate trial, said: "No. At this juncture I just don't foresee it."

The president does not feel quitting would be in the best interests of the American people, Haig said.

Haig admitted: "We have suffered some losses this week and some very severe losses, quite obviously."

He cited what he termed "a triple whammy" that involved a "rehash of evidence" by the House Judiciary Committee, an adverse Supreme Court ruling in the Watergate tapes and documents case and the shift of some judiciary committee Republicans to pro-impeachment positions.

If a vote were to be held now on the House floor on whether to impeach Nixon and place him on trial before the Senate, "it would be very close," Haig said.

As the committee resumed debate today, it appeared certain that the panel would approve a second article recommending Nixon be removed from office for abusing his presidential powers.

The margin could be as great or greater than the 27 to 11 vote by which the committee urged Nixon be impeached, tried and removed from the presidency for obstruction of justice.

Rep. Robert McClory (Rep.—Ill.), second-ranking Republican on the committee, said he would switch his vote and urge Nixon be impeached for abuse of office.

Meanwhile, many southern Democrats in the House of Representatives, a group crucial to President Nixon's hopes of avoiding impeachment, appear prepared to follow their three judiciary committee colleagues into the pro-impeachment camp.

Interviews with a dozen southern Democrats, representing a cross-section of the 74 from 11 states, and estimates of experienced House head-counters indicate Nixon may hold barely half of them.

With most of the 174 northern and western Democrats expected to vote for impeachment, that means the president would have to hold almost all of the 187 House Republicans, a difficult task after six of 17 Republicans on the judiciary committee voted for impeachment.

Some Nixon aides now claim the White House has failed to develop a coherent strategy to prevent Nixon's impeachment and removal from office.

Members of the White House staff, now often openly acknowledging despair, say that there is little or no guidance from the president or senior advisers in the efforts to save the presidency.

On Capitol Hill, according to sources there, some key

Arab Surge Seen

WASHINGTON — The Arab oil-producing bloc could have more than $1 trillion to invest in the U.S. and other countries by 1985, according to a confidential study by the World Bank.

That is 10 times the total $100 billion book value of current U.S. investments overseas and 100 times the value of all the gold now held by the U.S. government.

In short, the staggering amount of money building up in the treasuries of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) from selling oil promises to revolutionize economic and power relationships in the world within 10 years.

The World Bank report, which has a "not for public use" admonition on its cover, states the OPEC countries will be so rich that they will find "massive" overseas investments "unavoidable."

At the Treasury Department, officials expressed astonishment at the size of OPEC money reserves projected by the World Bank in its "Background Paper III" entitled "Prospects for the Developing Countries," Report No. 477.

Specifically, that report states: "The accumulated reserves of all OPEC countries could rise to $650 billion in 1980 and about $1,200 billion ($1.2 trillion) by 1985. Massive outflows in some form will therefore be unavoidable."

The reason outside investment will be "unavoidable," the report states, is that OPEC countries will have more money "than could be effectively absorbed by their domestic economies in the short term."

Iran, in announcing last week its purchase of a one-fourth interest in Germany's giant Krupp steel manufacturing interests, was showing the world the thin edge of this new wedge OPEC nations are driving into the world's economy.

COOLING OFF Tokyo style brought an estimated 10,000 people together in giant swimming pool on Sunday, the first weekend after the long rainy season. Temperatures were in the low nineties.

Matrimony's Great Test: Too Much Togetherness

Due to what is, I trust, a temporary case of the vapors I have been doing most of these little pieces for the paper from home, limiting my office visits to a ceremonial weekly pilgrimage, and at least two of my editors are of the opinion that it bodes ill for my marriage.

The notion that excessive marital togetherness may be a fast route to the divorce court is, of course, not without some basis. I daresay that a daily eight-hours at his desk is a good thing for a husband and perhaps even gooder for a wife. I know, myself, that there's no conversation more rewarding than when a man arrives home after a day in his chains and can entertain his lady with a complete character assassination of his office buddies.

My thoughts on this subject might be filed and forgotten under the heading of purely personal trivia, but it occurs to me now that they may have some value of couples nearing retirement and facing the hideous prospect of being together all the time.

I bring some raw experience to it, since I spent some 18 years writing from home when I was doing columns for the Vancouver Sun. The difference then was that for at least three months of every year I was on some foreign assignment. This away-ness, or the prospect of it, kept my wife from going completely out of her mind.

Lousy though it may be I get awful moody doing my little chore at the typewriter, but in the moments of crisis when I was clearly unbearable there would always be a rescuing phone call to send me to some far-off corner of the earth and so we survived.

That salvation is a thing of the past now and, what's more, our children have left the nest so that we're entirely alone, under each other's feet all day and night, as bound together as Siamese Twins, and God only knows why we're not at each other's throats.

Yet I have come to the curious conclusion — and this is the Significant Observation for couples nearing retirement — that the real peril in a husband and wife being too close or having too constant a geographical proximity is not the danger of abrasiveness, but the risk of becoming over-compatible! (We are allowed two exclamation marks a year and that's my first.)

A study was made years ago on the incredible affinity developed by oxen who'd worked together for years, harnessed to the same heavy yoke. These animals developed such a subconscious, intuitive sensitivity to each other that they would walk exactly in step, turn or stop or back up together without any apparent communication and perform exactly alike even when un-yoked! (Well, there goes the second.)

Early signs of hostility, apparently not at all uncommon in oxen, as in humans, disappeared entirely, it was demonstrated, with the knowledge that it was less work for each beast if he toiled in perfect tandem. They adjusted to each other, in other words, for purely selfish motives.

It would be a dreadful, bovine marriage of convenience, you'll agree, that answered this description. Yet most couples who have been under the matrimonial yoke for a number of years may discover that they've developed responses and reactions that are all but mystically anticipative.

I have found, myself, that my wife and I may develop a frightening one-ness. Only last week I came down from my attic "office" to look at the mail. My wife was reading across the room. I brooded over the bills for a minute or two, looked at my wife and said, "Any time you say," and my wife said, "Would you like a little lunch?" Like those oxen, we'd just got so completely compatible that we were on the same wavelength. Communication, itself, had become unnecessary.

The problem, you see, is in adapting so much, in working out an arrangement that will provide the maximum comfort and serenity, that it might, in the end, degenerate into complete passiveness. That, of course, is fatal to the zest of any marriage since any sacrifice of individuality in any situation is a crime against humanity.

Having said this I don't know that I would apply it to older people in retirement and won't be altogether sure, I suppose, until that happens to us.

We've several older friends now in those circumstances. One couple in particular live almost entirely to themselves much of the time with every outward sign of complete happiness. The funny thing is, as they're the first to admit, that they'd a turbulent, uncertain marriage for the 40-odd years of his working career, but have come as close as possible now to blissful wedlock, without being downright nauseating, by total togetherness.

I guess it only proves that life and marriage are what you make them, as one oxen said to the other.

Expect Worst If on Unhappy Rollcall

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

You can expect the worst if your name appears on the RCMP Tourist Alert — a death in the family, a serious accident or illness at least.

Only compassionate cases qualify for this unhappy rollcall.

An uncle dies in Victoria. Next-of-kin are holidaying in the Fort St. John area. How are they contacted?

In years past the RCMP would be notified and told, for example, to watch out for a white Chevrolet passing through their area.

In the course of a summer day, there might be many such requests, and, consequently, there was little chance police, beset with other duties, would locate the person.

But it's different this summer since the RCMP started Tourist Alert.

Now, travellers sought by relatives — "compassionates to locate" in the police jargon — only have to listen to the radio or read the newspaper to learn they are needed back home.

"We've turned the ball around . . . instead of us looking for them, they're looking for us," says Cpl. Don MacIver, acting police community relations NCO in Victoria.

To date, more than 180 names have gone on the Tourist Alert list distributed daily by RCMP. Responses or "hits" trave totalled more than 50.

The program, offered "strictly" as a public service with most provincial daily newspapers, including the Victoria Times, participating, got off to an auspicious start July 1.

The first "hit" was a man vacationing in Princeton who was astonished to hear his name over the local radio station at 9:05 a.m. Two minutes later he burst into the RCMP office.

"What did you guys want me for?" he cried.

The officer telexed the RCMP Crime Index Section in Vancouver which controls and co-ordinates the program throughout the province.

A death in the family.

"Gosh, thanks for letting me know," the man said and ran out.

The list is limited to eight names. The figure was arbitrarily set by a group of media people meeting in Prince George June 6.

When demand is high, names only run once.

The list goes to 117 locations, including radio stations, weeklies and bi-weeklies, tourist and visitor bureaus, park sites, the Bennett dam, B.C. ferry boats, as well as the Port Angeles and Anacortes ferries.

The idea of Tourist Alert originated in Saskatchewan last year. This spring a circular was sent out inquiring if police in the other western provinces would like to set up a program. A logo and general guidelines were prepared by the RCMP Research Division in Regina.

"We'll review the situation in October to see if any changes should be made for 1975," he says. The program ends Labor Day.

The results of this summer's program could have a more far-reaching impact.

"If it proves a success it could be the model for a national system," he says.

Clack Report May Prompt Second Look

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

The Rod Clack report on the Inner Harbor is "not without some good suggestions" offers ideas that may prompt city council to reconsider certain plans but also gives the city grounds for grave concern.

Those were the initial reactions today of zoning committee chairman and acting mayor-for-the-day, Ald. Mike Young, in commenting on the waterfront planning report prepared by former Victoria planner Rod Clack.

The report was released last Friday by Resources Minister Bob Williams.

Young, who stressed he had not had an opportunity to read the report thoroughly said Clack's suggestions for making Wharf Street a pedestrian precinct and his obvious dislike of a total mall concept for Government Street "bear consideration" by council.

Even though the city administration was not committed to making Government a full mall, he said, the idea of malling the street at all would have to be questioned if a traffic ban on Wharf was to be considered.

"It's a fair question," Young said. "We opted for a mall on Government simply to avoid breaking up the inner core of the city with a heavily-used traffic route, and because a pedestrian walk around the periphery of the core is not as valuable as one through it.

"But I don't think it's practical to suggest closure of Wharf unless we're prepared to replace the laneage (traffic capacity) elsewhere . . . . in other words leave Government Street as it is."

Young said it was unfortunate that Clack, is assembling his report, had not considered it necessary to contact anyone at City Hall to acquant himself with the background to the city's thinking on both general and specific aspects of waterfront planning.

He also voiced concern about the "political implications" of the document and its call for some kind of "broader authority" to oversee the development of the Inner Harbor.

"Will it be used as the justification (for the NDP government) to control the entire harbor and not just the frozen (Wharf Street) area?" he said.

"Does this mean some type of commission to cover the entire waterfront?"

Ald. Sam Bawlf, responsible for central-area planning, said the general planning principles enshrined in the Clack report have "all been said before" in numerous city planning studies, and endorsed as policy by city council.

"The province obviously thinks it has something new here but if it had taken the trouble to study various policies and proposals advanced by the city it would jealize that most of this was old hat," he said.

Bawlf admitted, however, that the report was "an excellent summary" of such points and from that point of view it would serve a useful purpose.

He disputed Clack's assertion that leaving Wharf as a traffic artery would tend to alienate the waterfront from its immediate hinterland.

Bawlf said the entire waterfront area could be made a vehicle-free precinct, but unless there were attractions and interest there to draw pedestrians it would be underused.

"Eaton's is the biggest people-place in town and pedestrians cross six lanes of traffic on Douglas to get to it," he added.

NEWSPRINT TO DARKEN

British Columbia newspapers will soon look a little darker because of a shortage of sulphur dioxide, the brightening agent for newsprint, a MacMillan Bloedel spokesman said today.

A strike at Cominco's plant has cut off the major source of sulphur dioxide for all newsprint producers.

MacMillan Bloedel has just started manufacturing the slightly-darker paper and all other firms are expected to do the same. At its worst, the newsprint would look no darker than that used in newspapers in 1954, the company said.

The Victoria Times will not be using the new, darker newsprint before September.

MacMillan Bloedel said the average reader would not notice much difference unless the Cominco strike lasted beyond September. If the strike is prolonged, a further drop in brightness might be needed. Pulp is the color of wood before sulphur dioxide is added. Some sulphur dioxide is available from U.S. sources.

Hospital Staffs Accept Pact

About 175 staff members at two former Victoria private hospitals have voted unanimous acceptance of a new contract which gives them "substantial" wage increases and longer vacations.

Bill Muir, Victoria representative for the Hospital Employees Union, said today the settlement will give members working at Glengarry and Mount Tolmie Hospitals wage increases ranging from $117 to $257 a month in two stages over the 18-month term of the contract. Both hospitals were bought by the provincial government.

Licensed practical nurses will be receiving $855 a month after a year's service, as part of what Muir termed a standard agreement in effect at more than 90 hospitals where the HEU represents employees.

Members will receive four weeks vacation after 12 months of service, an increase of one week.

Employees at Glengarry and Mount Tolmie earlier voted 87 per cent to be represented by the HEU rather than the Canadian Union of Public Employees and the HEU has been accused of raiding CUPE memberships.

But Muir said the employees came to the HEU seeking the change.

The HEU was able to reopen the CUPE contract covering the two hospitals, which did not expire until the end of this year. The new contract runs from July 1 to the end of 1975 and the wage hikes are effective July 1 and next Jan. 1.

The new contract, includes a cost-of-living clause and adjustments will be made this September and in March and September of next year.

Fernwood Pub Plan Opposed

A group calling itself the Fernwood Neighborhood Association, opposed to the idea of a neighborhood pub in the area, has called a public meeting for Tuesday evening to discuss the issue.

An association spokesman said today the meeting will be held at the Orange Hall, Fernwood and Balmoral, at 7:30 p.m. and the objective of the organization is to "defeat the proposed establishment of a pub in the Fernwood-Gladstone area."

Another community organization, the Fernwood Community Association, is spearheading a drive to open a neighborhood pub in the old Weston Bakeries building and launched an information campaign among local residents last week.

The opposition group spakesman said her group wants to "maintain the freedom of the area from liquor-drinking places."

Good Times Inc. Taps Eager Teens

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

"Will there be a store on Sidney Island? . . . an A & W maybe?"

"I brought two tents. But I think I forgot the thread. Think I'll need it?"

"Where is this place anyway?"

Those were a few of the queries from teenaged gung-ho campers gathered at the Government Wharf, the designated meeting place for a three-day camping trip to Sidney Island.

Seventeen-year-old Glen Marks has lived in Sidney "for years," but he'd never before been to the island — a quick 10-minute trip from the wharf by motorboat.

But the others were early too.

None of them had seen Sidney Island either.

Sponsored by a teen group new to Sidney, called Good Times Inc., the eager entourage included three counsellors, program co-ordinator David Pettigrew, one chaperone and . . . only nine teens.

"We could have handled more than twice this number," said a concerned Pettigrew while scrutinizing parental permission slips for each of the youths.

"Kids just don't know what's going on," said Pettigrew.

"As long as I can remember, people have been crying that there's nothing organized for teens' recreation during the summer," said the 23-year-old York University student who's vacationing at home with his parents in Sidney.

So this summer Good Times opened Parklands school gymnasium and auditorium for teens' recreation Monday through Friday; the group has planned coffee house entertainment Friday evenings, and biking trips to the Gulf Islands, but no more than 25 have registered.

Department of human resources social worker Mona Herring got the project off the ground earlier this summer and activities started last week.

She says there's about 1,200 eligible teens in North Saanich, Sidney and Central Saanich who could be taking part.

Goal is to get youths from the 13 to 18 age group involved — "those that don't have cars.

David, Mona, and five project workers — all hired on a summer student employment program — have tacked up posters all over the peninsula advertising upcoming activities. They've even advertised in local newspapers and still . . . "I guess the only way to get kids out is to wait until word of mouth spreads.

"Kids sure don't read posters."

And with the enthusiasm that registered on the faces of the campers as they piled into two motorboats for ferrying to an Island unknown, Good Times Inc. will have gained at least nine town criers, to stir up participants for this week's schedule of events.

Thief Gets Jewels, Cash In Oak Bay

About $8,000 in cash and jewelry was reported stolen from a house in Oak Bay overnight and one of its occupants saw a young person leaving the premises shortly after 5 a.m.

Mrs. Pearl Mui of 2081 Allenby St., said she had returned from work when a cousin told her she had just seen what appeared to be a young person leave by a patio door.

Among jewelry taken was a pendant and diamond rings. Mrs. Mui said she had insurance covering the house but did not know how much of the stolen goods would be covered.

Saanich Bans Open Burning

Saanich fire chief Harold Gains said today he is imposing an immediate prohibition on any open burning apart from properly screened incinerators where a permit has been issued.

Gains said rapidly drying conditions have sharply increased the fire hazard with outdoor burning and the department has already had to cope with two or three minor grass fires.

Russia Seeks Peace Role In Cyprus

Times News Services

The Soviet Union moved today to play a role in settling the Cyprus crisis, complicating an explosive situation threatened by faltering peace talks and warnings of new violence.

The Russians called the third United Nations Security Council meeting in as many days today to push demands for unilateral UN action to enforce the ceasefire on Cyprus and restore the government of Archbishop Makarios.

Other UN delegates showed little enthusiasm for a new set of Soviet proposals, including sending a mission to Cyprus for on-the-spot supervision of the situation.

The other 14 members of the Security Council had only grudgingly complied with Soviet envoy Vasily S. Safronchuk's request for a council meeting Sunday night. The council took no action after two hours of debate but scheduled a new meeting for today to consider the Soviet proposals.

On Cyprus, Greek and Turkish Cypriots traded charges of atrocities and massacres. "We are checking them all, but we have no evidence to substantiate any so far," a UN truce official said.

A UN official on the island reported the week-old ceasefire holding, but a high Turkish official warned of possible military action to protect minority enclaves in Greek areas.

In Geneva the foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey and Britain agreed early today on a "provisional solution" to end the military confrontation on Cyprus. But the Turkish government balked, apparently at provisions concerning the Turkish invasion force on the Mediterranean island.

The Turkish cabinet met at dawn and discussed the proposal telephoned from Geneva for nearly three hours. Premier Bulent Ecevit said the Geneva negotiations "are in the final stage" and "if there is going to be an agreement, we will know today."

But he said his cabinet decided it will not even discuss the presence of Turkish armed forces on Cyprus and

More Canadians For UN Force

EDMONTON (CP) — Planeloads of commando troops that will raise to battalion strength Canada's peacekeeping contingent on Cyprus begin leaving today for the troubled Mediterranean island.

Military spokesmen at the Canadian Forces base near this western provincial capital said Sunday that a total of 450 troops, mainly from the Canadian Airborne Regiment stationed here, will be airlifted to Cyprus during the next eight days.

They will bring to 936 the number of Canadians in the United Nations force that is charged with the chore of keeping at arms length Greek and Turkish antagonists.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp admitted Sunday Canada's armed forces are "stretched" to meet the peacekeeping roles this country has undertaken.

However he said he had not heard any suggestion in cabinet that this country consider expanding the present forces.

The minister stirred up a strong reaction at the United Nations last week when he suggested more nations should be called on to share the burden of peace-keeping on Cyprus.

Several diplomats in New York interpreted the Canadian minister's remarks as support for Warsaw Pact countries including the Soviet Union to move into Cyprus as part of the UN force.

Truant Taku Sighted Near City

Taku, the truant killer whale that gave federal fisheries researchers the slip almost a year ago, was sighted Saturday alive and well off Trial Island.

The bull whale was released at Pedder Bay last October but evaded his trackers when bleeps from a telemetric device fitted on his dorsal fin were blocked out by rock formations.

Named for the windy conditions that prevailed when he was released, Taku had taken off on a fling for freedom and led researchers on a merry chase until they ran out of bleeps.

Dr. Michael Bigg of the department's biological station at Nanaimo said today the department had received no information about the bull whale until Saturday when he was sighted among a pod of 30 to 40 whales off the Island.

"We're one hundred per cent certain the bull sighted near Trial is Taku," he said, explaining positive identification had been made by nicks on Taku's dorsal fin and other markings.

Bigg said pictures taken of the whale Saturday showed no sign of the transmitter, designed to record movement of the whale for one month when it was supposed to drop off.

"We had hoped to be able to pick up the animal's whereabouts during that month, but lost him after only a half-day of tracking and we were curious to know what had happened."

Bigg described the experiment as a success. "We are happy the transmitter did come off and there were no negative effects to the animal, which was playing with a female and calf and otherwise behaving normally.

"It also means the animal has stayed in the area."

Fisheries researchers "will be keeping an eye out" for the evasive Taku, Bigg said, although there are no plans to capture him for a transmitter re-test.

REACTION TO CLACK

In discussing the Rod Clack report on the future of Victoria's Inner Harbor, Victoria's two aldermen primarily concerned with planning today expressed both criticism of the report and some qualified approval.

Ald. Mike Young said Clack, the Ottawa planner, has some suggestions on malls that could lead city council to reconsider its Government Street mall project. And Ald. Sam Bawlf said the report although "old hat" is also an "excellent summary" of city-endorsed principles on waterfront planning (see story Page 17.)

Land Sales Law Alters

All purchasers of land in B.C. will have to register their nationality with the land registry office, beginning Thursday when amendments to the land registry act come into effect.

The amendments will give the government an opportunity to find out how extensive is foreign ownership of B.C. land.

10% BONUS FOR ICBC

An interim 10 per cent cost-of-living bonus for the 1,500 government insurance corporation employees was on pay cheques for the first time last week.

The move, granted Insurance Corp. of B.C. staff retroactive to June 1 by the Labor Relations Board, quelled unrest stemming from the fact that some employees had been with ICBC more than a year without a raise while living costs jumped by about 16 per cent.

Employees were reported to have been ready to strike in support of a wage hike, but the move would have been illegal.

Insurance corporation employees have no union representation or contract with the government, although the LRB has ruled in favor of the corporation's position that a single union should represent all employees.

LRB Registrar R. F. Bone said in Vancouver today a second board decision forthcoming within a matter of days would determine which of two vying union organizations will be granted certification of ICBC staff.

They are the Office and Technical Employees Union and a joint group of B.C. Government Employees' Union and Canadian Union of Public Employees, which presented a bid under the name of the Association of ICBC Employees.

Connally Indicted

Times News Services

WASHINGTON Former United States treasury secretary John Connally was indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of bribery, perjury and obstructing justice.

He was charged with accepting $10,000 in bribes to influence the setting of support prices paid by the government to dairy products.

A Watergate grand jury also indicted Jake Jacobsen, a long-time Texas colleague of Connally's, on one count of making an illegal payment to a public official.

Connally thus became the fourth former member of President Nixon's cabinet to be indicted in connection with Watergate scandals and related investigations.

Connally has repeatedly denied as "rumors and lies" reports that he took money for his role in helping milk producers to change the administration's mind on supports. The industry pledged to raise $2 million for President Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972.

'Only Miracle' To Save Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill says "only a miracle" can prevent the full House of Representatives from voting to impeach President Nixon. Senate Republican whip Robert Byrd, however predicts Nixon would be acquitted if a Senate trial were held now.

The House is ready to impeach by a margin of about 70 votes, O'Neill said.

"I'd have to say that around 50 Republicans will vote to impeach him and I would say there will be 40 members of the Democratic Party who will not vote to impeach him. The difference would be somewhere around, I believe now, about 70 votes."

Only a majority vote of the 435 House members is necessary to impeach and send articles to the full Senate for trial.

A two-thirds vote in the Senate is required to convict and remove Nixon from office.

Nixon, however, his chief aide says, remains determined not to resign.

White House Chief-of-Staff Alexander Haig, asked Sunday if Nixon would step down rather than face a Senate trial, said: "No. At this juncture I just don't foresee it."

The president does not feel quitting would be in the best interests of the American people, Haig said.

Haig admitted: "We have suffered some losses this week and some very severe losses, quite obviously."

He cited what he termed "a triple whammy" that involved a "rehash of evidence" by the House Judiciary Committee, an adverse Supreme Court ruling in the Watergate tapes and documents case and the shift of some judiciary committee Republicans to pro-impeachment positions.

If a vote were to be held now on the House floor on whether to impeach Nixon and place him on trial before the Senate, "it would be very close," Haig said.

As the committee resumed debate today, it appeared certain that the panel would approve a second article recommending Nixon be removed from office for abusing his presidential powers.

The margin could be as great or greater than the 27 to 11 vote by which the committee urged Nixon be impeached, tried and removed from the presidency for obstruction of justice.

Rep. Robert McClory (Rep. Ill.), second-ranking Republican on the committee, said he would switch his vote and urge Nixon be impeached for abuse of office.

Meanwhile, many southern Democrats in the House of Representatives, a group crucial to President Nixon's hopes of avoiding impeachment, appear prepared to follow their three judiciary committee colleagues into the pro-impeachment camp.

Interviews with a dozen southern Democrats, representing a cross-section of the 74 from 11 states, and estimates of experienced House head-counters indicate Nixon may hold barely half of them.

With most of the 174 northern and western Democrats expected to vote for impeachment, that means the president would have to hold almost all of the 187 House Republicans, a difficult task after six of 17 Republicans on the judiciary committee voted for impeachment.

Some Nixon aides now claim the White House has failed to develop a coherent strategy to prevent Nixon's impeachment and removal from office.

Members of the White House staff, now often openly acknowledging despair, say that there is little or no guidance from the president or senior advisers in the efforts to save the presidency.

On Capitol Hill, according to sources there, some key

Arab Surge Seen

WASHINGTON — The Arab oil-producing bloc could have more than $1 trillion to invest in the U.S. and other countries by 1985, according to a confidential study by the World Bank.

That is 10 times the total $100 billion book value of current U.S. investments overseas and 100 times the value of all the gold now held by the U.S. government.

In short, the staggering amount of money building up in the treasuries of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) from selling oil promises to revolutionize economic and power relationships in the world within 10 years.

The World Bank report, which has a "not for public use" admonition on its cover, states the OPEC countries will be so rich that they will find "massive" overseas investments "unavoidable."

At the Treasury Department, officials expressed astonishment at the size of OPEC money reserves projected by the World Bank in its "Background Paper III" entitled "Prospects for the Developing Countries," Report No. 477.

Specifically, that report states: "The accumulated reserves of all OPEC countries could rise to $650 billion in 1980 and about $1,200 billion ($1.2 trillion) by 1985. Massive outflows in some form will therefore be unavoidable."

The reason outside investment will be "unavoidable," the report states, is that OPEC countries will have more money "than could be effectively absorbed by their domestic economies in the short term."

Iran, in announcing last week its purchase of a one-fourth interest in Germany's giant Krupp steel manufacturing interests, was showing the world the thin edge of this new wedge OPEC nations are driving into the world's economy.

Truant Taku Sighted Near City

Taku, the truant killer whale that gave federal fisheries researchers the slip almost a year ago, was sighted Saturday alive and well off Trial Island.

The bull whale was released at Pedder Bay last October but evaded his trackers when bleeps from a telemetric device fitted on his dorsal fin were blocked out by rock formations.

Named for the windy conditions that prevailed when he was released, Taku had taken off on a fling for freedom and led researchers on a merry chase until they ran out of bleeps.

Dr. Michael Bigg of the department's biological station at Nanaimo said today the department had received no information about the bull whale until Saturday when he was sighted among a pod of 30 to 40 whales off the Island.

"We're one hundred per cent certain the bull sighted near Trial is Taku," he said, explaining positive identification had been made by nicks on Taku's dorsal fin and other markings.

Bigg said pictures taken of the whale Saturday showed no sign of the transmitter, designed to record movement of the whale for one month when it was supposed to drop off.

"We had hoped to be able to pick up the animal's whereabouts during that month, but lost him after only a half-day of tracking and we were curious to know what had happened."

Bigg described the experiment as a success. "We are happy the transmitter did come off and there were no negative effects to the animal, which was playing with a female and calf and otherwise behaving normally.

"It also means the animal has stayed in the area."

Fisheries researchers "will be keeping an eye out" for the evasive Taku, Bigg said, although there are no plans to capture him for a transmitter re-fest.

REACTION TO CLACK

In discussing the Rod Clack report on the future of Victoria's Inner Harbor, Victoria's two aldermen primarily concerned with planning today expressed both criticism of the report and some qualified approval.

Ald. Mike Young said Clack, the Ottawa planner, has some suggestions on malls that could lead city council to reconsider its Government Street mall project. And Ald. Sam Bawlf said the report although "old hat" is also an "excellent summary" of city-endorsed principles on waterfront planning (see story Page 17.)

Land Sales Law Alters

All purchasers of land in B.C. will have to register their nationality with the land registry office, beginning Thursday when amendments to the land registry act come into effect.

The amendments will give the government an opportunity to find out how extensive is foreign ownership of B.C. land.

10% BONUS FOR ICBC

An interim 10 per cent cost-of-living bonus for the 1,500 government insurance corporation employees was on pay cheques for the first time last week.

The move, granted Insurance Corp. of B.C. staff retroactive to June 1 by the Labor Relations Board, quelled unrest stemming from the fact that some employees had been with ICBC more than a year without a raise while living costs jumped by about 16 per cent.

Employees were reported to have been ready to strike in support of a wage hike, but the move would have been illegal.

Insurance corporation employees have no union representation or contract with the government. Although the LRB has ruled in favor of the corporation's position that a single union should represent all employees.

LRB Registrar R. F. Bone said in Vancouver today a second board decision forthcoming within a matter of days would determine which of two vying union organizations will be granted certification of ICBC staff.

They are the Office and Technical Employees Union and a joint group of B.C. Government Employees' Union and Canadian Union of Public Employees, which presented a bid under the name of the Association of ICBC Employees.

Connally Indicted

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Former United States treasury secretary John Connally was indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of bribery, perjury and obstructing justice.

He was charged with accepting $10,000 in bribes to influence the setting of support prices paid by the government to dairy products.

A Watergate grand jury also indicted Jake Jacobsen, a long-time Texas colleague of Connally's, on one count of making an illegal payment to a public official.

Connally thus became the fourth former member of President Nixon's cabinet to be indicted in connection with Watergate scandals and related investigations.

Connally has repeatedly denied as "rumors and lies" reports that he took money for his role in helping milk producers to change the administration's mind on supports. The industry pledged to raise $2 million for President Nixon's re-election campaign in 1972.

Russia Seeks Peace Role In Cyprus

Times News Services

The Soviet Union moved today to play a role in settling the Cyprus crisis, complicating an explosive situation threatened by faltering peace talks and warnings of new violence.

The Russians called the third United Nations Security Council meeting in as many days today to push demands for unilateral UN action to enforce the ceasefire on Cyprus and restore the government of Archbishop Makarios.

Other UN delegates showed little enthusiasm for a new set of Soviet proposals, including sending a mission to Cyprus for on-the-spot supervision of the situation.

The other 14 members of the Security Council had only grudgingly complied with Soviet envoy Vasily S. Safronchuk's request for a council meeting Sunday night. The council took no action after two hours of debate but scheduled a new meeting for today to consider the Soviet proposals.

On Cyprus, Greek and Turkish Cypriots traded charges of atrocities and massacres. "We are checking them all, but we have no evidence to substantiate any so far," a UN truce official said.

A UN official on the island reported the week-old ceasefire holding, but a high Turkish official warned of possible military action to protect minority enclaves in Greek areas.

In Geneva the foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey and Britain agreed early today on a "provisional solution" to end the military confrontation on Cyprus. But the Turkish government balked, apparently at provisions concerning the Turkish invasion force on the Mediterranean island.

The Turkish cabinet met at dawn and discussed the proposal telephoned from Geneva for nearly three hours. Premier Bulent Ecevit said the Geneva negotiations "are in the final stage" and "if there is going to be an agreement, we will know today."

But he said his cabinet decided it will not even discuss the presence of Turkish armed forces on Cyprus and

More Canadians For UN Force

EDMONTON (CP) — Planeloads of commando troops that will raise to battalion strength Canada's peacekeeping contingent on Cyprus begin leaving today for the troubled Mediterranean island.

Military spokesmen at the Canadian Forces base near this western provincial capital said Sunday that a total of 450 troops, mainly from the Canadian Airborne Regiment stationed here, will be airlifted to Cyprus during the next eight days.

They will bring to 936 the number of Canadians in the United Nations force that is charged with the chore of keeping at arms length Greek and Turkish antagonists.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp admitted Sunday Canada's armed forces are "stretched" to meet the peacekeeping roles this country has undertaken.

However he said he had not heard any suggestion in cabinet that this country consider expanding the present forces.

The minister stirred up a strong reaction at the United Nations last week when he suggested more nations should be called on to share the burden of peace-keeping on Cyprus.

Several diplomats in New York interpreted the Canadian minister's remarks as support for Warsaw Pact countries including the Soviet Union to move into Cyprus as part of the UN force.

'Only Miracle' To Save Nixon

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill says "only a miracle" can prevent the full House of Representatives from voting to impeach President Nixon. Senate Republican whip Robert Byrd, however predicts Nixon would be acquitted if a Senate trial were held now.

The House is ready to impeach by a margin of about 70 votes, O'Neill said.

"I'd have to say that around 50 Republicans will vote to impeach him and I would say there will be 40 members of the Democratic Party who will not vote to impeach him. The difference would be somewhere around, I believe now, about 70 votes."

Only a majority vote of the 435 House members is necessary to impeach and send articles to the full Senate for trial.

A two-thirds vote in the Senate is required to convict and remove Nixon from office.

Nixon, however, his chief aide says, remains determined not to resign.

White House Chief-of-Staff Alexander Haig, asked Sunday if Nixon would step down rather than face a Senate trial, said: "No. At this juncture I just don't foresee it."

The president does not feel quitting would be in the best interests of the American people, Haig said.

Haig admitted: "We have suffered some losses this week and some very severe losses, quite obviously."

He cited what he termed "a triple whammy" that involved a "rehash of evidence" by the House Judiciary Committee, an adverse Supreme Court ruling in the Watergate tapes and documents case and the shift of some judiciary committee Republicans to pro-impeachment positions.

If a vote were to be held now on the House floor on whether to impeach Nixon and place him on trial before the Senate, "it would be very close," Haig said.

As the committee resumed debate today, it appeared certain that the panel would approve a second article recommending Nixon be removed from office for abusing his presidential powers.

The margin could be as great or greater than the 27 to 11 vote by which the committee urged Nixon be impeached, tried and removed from the presidency for obstruction of justice.

Rep. Robert McClory (Rep. Ill.), second-ranking Republican on the committee, said he would switch his vote and urge Nixon be impeached for abuse of office.

Meanwhile, many southern Democrats in the House of Representatives, a group crucial to President Nixon's hopes of avoiding impeachment, appear prepared to follow their three judiciary committee colleagues into the pro-impeachment camp.

Interviews with a dozen southern Democrats, representing a cross-section of the 74 from 11 states, and estimates of experienced House head-counters indicate Nixon may hold barely half of them.

With most of the 174 northern and western Democrats expected to vote for impeachment, that means the president would have to hold almost all of the 187 House Republicans, a difficult task after six of 17 Republicans on the judiciary committee voted for impeachment.

Some Nixon aides now claim the White House has failed to develop a coherent strategy to prevent Nixon's impeachment and removal from office.

Members of the White House staff, now often openly acknowledging despair, say that there is little or no guidance from the president or senior advisers in the efforts to save the presidency.

On Capitol Hill, according to sources there, some key

Arab Surge Seen

WASHINGTON — The Arab oil-producing bloc could have more than $1 trillion to invest in the U.S. and other countries by 1985, according to a confidential study by the World Bank.

That is 10 times the total $100 billion book value of current U.S. investments overseas and 100 times the value of all the gold now held by the U.S. government.

In short, the staggering amount of money building up in the treasuries of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) from selling oil promises to revolutionize economic and power relationships in the world within 10 years.

The World Bank report, which has a "not for public use" admonition on its cover, states the OPEC countries will be so rich that they will find "massive" overseas investments "unavoidable."

At the Treasury Department, officials expressed astonishment at the size of OPEC money reserves projected by the World Bank in its "Background Paper III" entitled "Prospects for the Developing Countries," Report No. 477.

Specifically, that report states: "The accumulated reserves of all OPEC countries could rise to $650 billion in 1980 and about $1,200 billion ($1.2 trillion) by 1985. Massive outflows in some form will therefore be unavoidable."

The reason outside investment will be "unavoidable," the report states, is that OPEC countries will have more money "than could be effectively absorbed by their domestic economies in the short term."

Iran, in announcing last week its purchase of a one-fourth interest in Germany's giant Krupp steel manufacturing interests, was showing the world the thin edge of this new wedge OPEC nations are driving into the world's economy.

COOLING OFF Tokyo style brought an estimated 10,000 people together in giant swimming pool on Sunday, the first weekend after the long rainy season. Temperatures were in the low nineties.
